MICHELLE RANCK

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — No two trees are the same. Just as surely as there are various species, sizes, and environmental influences, there are different shapes, dimensions, and value of trees.

In the lumber industry, then, to fairly exchange this product, a quality and quantity grade is given to the logs.

"Buyers and sellers both use grades to treat each other fairly," said Lee Stover, Penn State senior research assistant for the wood products program in the school of forest resources.

Stover, who is also faculty coordinator for the wood products extension service, early this week led a two-day course that taught participants how to grade hardwood logs.

"This course helps the experts become more efficient and profitable, and the landowner to know what the value of their wood is, to determine what kind of lumber is in their logs," said course coordinator Danielle Kocovsky.

Kocovsky, professional development coordinator for the School of Forest Resources, said the school has been an annual offering for years.

However "this is the first year it was a two-day program. It gives the students more hands-on experience."

This year participants were able to follow the log through the sawmill stages to see the quality of lumber taken from the log.

Weighing All Factors

Participants, armed with scaling sticks, tape measures, lecture notes, books, and calculators, weighed the various factors to determine a grade for the logs in Penn State's Ag Arena.

"It really is a hands-on learning experience, not something you can learn from a book," said Kocovsky. "That's why these courses are so important to people in the industry. We feel it's very important to share re-

Lancaster Farming Includes More Than 100 Market Reports

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — For the first time in its 45-year history, with this issue, Lancaster Farming includes more than 100 market reports in section A, covering a wide variety of crops and species.

In the past several months, market staff representatives at the paper have been working diligently to provide additional market coverage. That includes the market at a glance summary on page A2 and additional coverage throughout the section.

Also, expanded coverage of Virginia feeder cattle markets has been included. Our popular produce and poultry market reports have been expanded.

Look for additional improvements in the way we publish your paper, the "business desk" of Northeast and Mid-Atlantic high-production agriculture.

Farmland Preservation Grows

Esther and Waldo Wood are happy to be the first farm in Tioga County that has entered the process to preserve farmland. "We didn't want this nice land to be developed," said Waldo. Protecting the family farm is a high priority for the Wood family, and that belief played a huge role in their decision to sell the development rights to their farm. Photo by Carolyn Moyer, Bradford Co. correspondent

Tioga Preserves First Farm

KNOXVILLE (Tioga Co.) — Protecting the family farm is a high priority for the Wood family.

That belief played a huge role in their decision to sell the development rights to their farm, making this the first farm in Tioga County to be a part of the Farmland Preservation Program.

While Tioga County is widely known for its rolling tree-covered hills and prime hunting ground, farming is also a major economic force, with dairy farming high on the list. And, while development pressures are not as great here as in some areas of the state, the pressure is still very real.

The Wood's farm is situated only 15 miles from Rt. 15, a major north-south corridor. The farm is very near Cowanesque Lake and the Tioga-Hammond Dam, a prime recreation area. In fact, the farm is located right

Moms never get a break, even if it is a holiday. A sow accompanies her pigs at a swine grazing operation, the John Moyer farm, on Stricklerstown Road south of Newmanstown. The state ag statistics service reported the week ending May 20 as suitable for fieldwork, but soil moisture was rated 37 percent very short, 44 percent short, 18 percent adequate, and 1 percent surplus. But corn and soybean planting continued ahead of the five-year average. Pasture was rated 62 percent fair to good, compared to 80 percent the previous week, because of overall lack of moisture. But rain returned to many farms this week, revitalizing pastures. Photo by Stan Hall

Egg Quality In Spotlight At National School

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

SALISBURY, Md. — About 80 people from all phases of the egg industry attended the National Egg Quality School (NEQS) conducted in this Eastern Shore town from Monday through Thursday this week.

Egg producers, processors, vendors, consumers, and government inspectors representing more than 20 states and several countries including Belgium, Canada, and Mexico studied all aspects of egg quality with national experts during four days of intensive learning sessions and laboratories.

NEQS Director Dr. Ken Anderson said that the national school began in 1993 when eastern and mid-western regional egg quality schools merged.

"The core emphasis (of the school) is always shell-egg quality, from farm to table," Anderson said. That includes physical quality of the egg as well as microbiological, he said.

Anderson said that emphasis on microbiological quality of the egg is a fairly new development, which began in the early 1990s as a response to concerns about Salmonella bacteria.

"The definition of quality has changed," he said.

New approaches to nutrient management — such as those being developed in Maryland as a result of the state's Water Quality Improvement Act of 1998 — could also have a bearing on egg quality, according to Anderson.

Maryland is taking measures to control excess phosphorus applications to the land. One is the treatment of poultry feed with an enzyme that increases the efficiency of phosphorus utilization in the bird, thus decreasing the amount of phosphorus excreted in the manure. (See related nutrient management story on page 36.)

Anderson said that such dietary changes can have a bearing on egg quality because phosphorus is a key compound in skeletal and shell structure and is closely linked in function

June 2 Issue For Dairy Readers

Lancaster Farming's annual tribute to dairy farms and the entire dairy agri-industry is scheduled next week. Included are several features, including a young family new to dairy farming, a milk bottler in the central part of the state, work under way to create a more nutritional milkshake, and lots of dairy recipes. The entire month will feature additional dairy news and views. For dairying, they should be dandy!

New York Broilers/Fryers
ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity on ready-to-cook whole broiler/fryers was mostly fairly to moderate during midweek trading. Supplies of the 3 pound birds and lighter birds were in good balance, but the heavier sizes were at least adequate. Movement through and distributive channels was mostly fair to moderate with more active interest centering around seasonal business. The market tone was fully steady on the smaller sizes, generally steady on the heavier birds.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat bids lower again as ideal weather conditions allow spring wheat seeding and winter wheat harvesting to progress. Corn and soybean bids regained some of the losses made over the past few days due mainly to trade corrections and some fund buying on the Board. Wheat mostly steady to 1 cent lower. Corn 1 to 2 cents higher. Sorghum 1 cent higher. Soybeans 2 to 7 cents higher.

Export sales overnight helped underpin wheat bids early in the day but weakness set in again midday with little else to offer support. Favorable weather continues for spring wheat planting and some areas of Texas are harvesting winter wheat and new-crop soft red winter wheat is moving into elevators in Louisiana, Mississippi, and Georgia.

Despite the lack of fresh foreign news, corn and soybean bids showed some strength today. The major factor was technical buying on the Board.

The past few days of lower trends were seen as overdone. Good weather conditions, however, are limiting gains in both commodities.

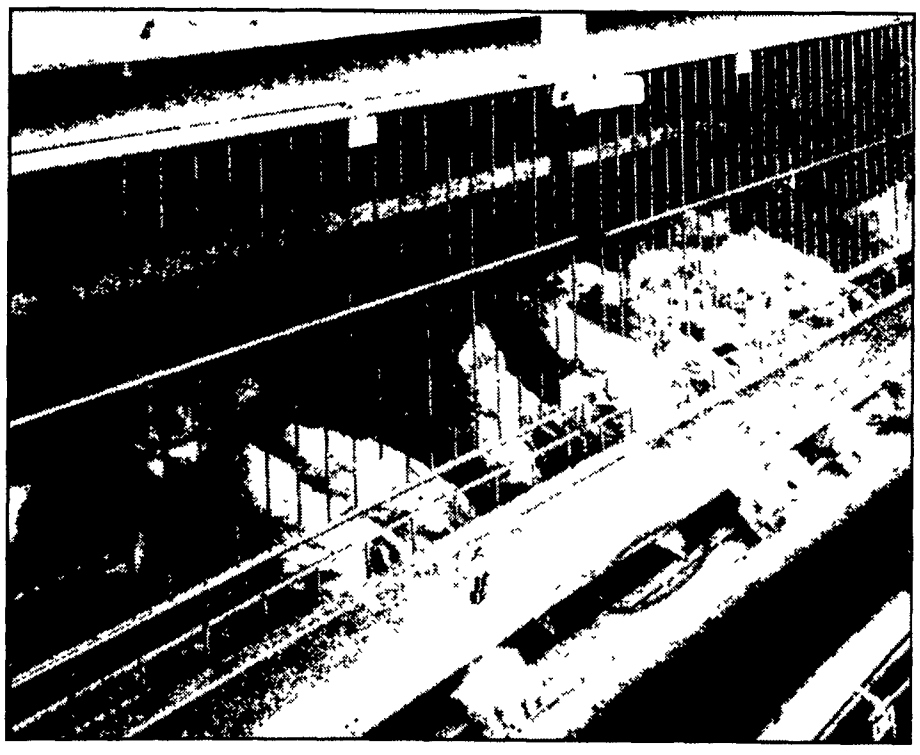
WITH Big Dutchman.

UNIVENT Starter Pullet Cages
Stacked with Manure Belt



Advantages
- simple assembly of 3 to 8 tiers;
- feed troughs are mounted on supports for trough stability and long service life;
- feed trough with inner rim provides minimal feed losses;
- upper walkway for batteries with more than 5 tiers = easy bird control;
- better thermal economy (reduced heating expenses and reduced investment costs per bird) is achieved with systems of 4 or more tiers due to increased density;
- remarkably low bird mortality during rearing.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

MAY 28–JUNE 3, 2001

MEMORIAL DAY (OBSERVED), MAY 28

BLANKET THOSE BERRIES

Ruled by Venus, according to 17th-century herbalists, strawberries were once used in remedies for inflamed eyes and sunburned skin, and as lotions, gargles, and cooling drinks. In 1615, Captain George Waymouth noted that on the Maine island of Monhegan, "all along the shore. . . grow plentifully raspberries, gooseberries, strawberries, roses, currants, [and] wild vines." Today's crops seem to require more tending, particularly a good mulching once the spring soil has warmed. Grass clippings or other organic matter are common, but where slugs and fruit rot are problems, landscape cloth may be preferable. Ask your local garden nursery for advice.

No occupation is so delightful to me as the culture of the earth. –Thomas Jefferson (1743–1826)

TIP OF THE WEEK

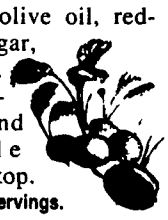
ROASTED BEETS AND ARUGULA

2 pounds beets
handful of fresh thyme (about 2 dozen sprigs), chopped
4 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 cup fresh orange juice
1/4 cup herb-flavored or other vinegar
salt and pepper, to taste
1/4 cup olive oil
2 tablespoons red-wine vinegar
1/2 teaspoon grated orange zest
2 large bunches arugula, chopped
1 cup grated fresh Parmesan

Preheat oven to 400°F. Trim beets, combine with fresh thyme, garlic, orange juice, the ¼ cup vinegar, salt, and pepper. Cover and roast for 1 hour. Peel and cube beets. Combine olive oil, red-wine vinegar, and zest. Add arugula, toss, and sprinkle cheese on top.



Makes 8 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Ne'er cast a clout till May be out.

Mist in May and heat in June / Makes the harvest right soon.

Phosphorus 'Can Of Worms'

We learned not too long ago from our friends in the farm press that in January last year, the Virginia General Assembly passed a house bill that requires poultry farms to develop and implement phosphorus nutrient management plans by Oct. 1 this year (from a story in the Delmarva Farmer, reprinted in the May 2001 PennAg Journal).

The article goes on to talk about how soils high in phosphorus can only receive vary low amounts of poultry litter, if at all.

This is a literal "can of worms" that we saw coming years ago. Though Pennsylvania's nutrient management law is nitrogen-based, we thought other states may try to "rethink" the requirements to include phosphorus.

Agronomy experts will tell you that some southeastern Pennsylvania soils test extremely high for phosphorus. Penn State has worked diligently with NRCS and other U.S. agencies to develop a "site index" for phosphorus. To try to simplify the complexities of the plan, the "site index" merely is a method to allocate only specific amounts of phosphorus-loaded nutrients to certain areas specific to the actual farm. For example: No placing phosphorus material next to a farm pond, or creek that runs through the farm, or drainage area, etc. But it's OK to place the phosphorus where the crops will readily make use of it.

But there's a real headache at work here. Many plants make so little use of phosphorus, compared to the amounts that turn up in confinement-operation based manure. Poultry litter is loaded with phosphorus, in many cases.

There have been widespread attempts to allow animals to more successfully utilize phosphorus in feed. But still, amounts get bypassed from the animal into the manure.

The real question is: how will Virginia be able to police such a plan? Many times, state conservation districts can't even enforce regulations pertaining to soil movement, let alone nutrient/nitrogen management.

If Northeast states, where confinement housing is a literal farm way of life, end up changing nitrogen-based nutrient management plans to phosphorus-based, that would be one can of worms we don't think anybody would want to open.

To Scout Corn Fields For Weeds

Recent rains have significantly changed the weed control situation in a lot of corn fields.

With moisture to germinate both the crop and the weeds, it will soon be obvious whether the rain arrived in time to activate the preemergence herbicides.

Before you rush to decide if postemergence herbicide applications are needed, allow a few days to see if any of the herbicides with reachback potential will still burn down small, emerged weeds.

Identify the weed species you have to deal with and the severity of infestation. It may be that a pass with a rotary hoe or cultivator may be sufficient to control the escaped weeds. If you are not equipped for those options, then make plans for an application of postemergence herbicides. Check your agronomy guide for information related to the relative effectiveness of various herbicides on specific weeds. Read the product labels carefully and use the recommended spray adjuvants.

An adjuvant is any product added to the herbicide formulation or added to the spray tank by the operator to increase herbicidal activity or application characteristics. There are a number of different kinds of additives used for this purpose but the most common type is activator adjuvants. These additives are primarily used with postemergence herbicides.

Before a foliar-applied herbicide can do its intended job it must be transferred from the leaf surface into the plant tissue.

Before the herbicide can be transferred into the plant tissue it must pass the cuticle of the leaf, which has water-repellant waxes. This barrier varies in effectiveness between the different weed species. For example, lambsquarters cuticle is very resistant to the passage of water-soluble herbicides while other weeds are less resistant.

The most common types of activator adjuvants used are surfactants, oils, and salts. These additives influence the physical and chemical properties of the spray solution, including surface tension, density, volatility, and solubility. These properties will in turn modify the spreading, wetting, retention, and penetration of the spray solution. It is important that the right additive be selected for the herbicide product you are using. Adding the right adjuvant can significantly improve herbicidal activity.

To Scout For Black Cutworm Infestations

While you are walking your cornfields to evaluate weed control, keep an eye out for insect damage. One of the pests to be looking for is the black cutworm. Newly hatched larvae are about ¼ inch long and, when fully grown, are about 2 inches long. The color ranges from gray to nearly black. There is a pale stripe along the center of the back.

The texture of the skin is what distinguishes the black cutworm from other cutworms. The skin texture consists of convex, rounded, coarse granules with smaller granules interspaced between. Magnification to five times or more is needed for this character to be readily seen.

While the insect overwinters in Pennsylvania as pupae and adults, significant outbreaks occur when moths migrate into the area on storm fronts during April and May. When the moths drop out of the storm systems they lay their eggs where they land. Most of the eggs are believed to be laid before the crop is planted.

The feeding pattern of the black cutworm is influenced by the soil moisture conditions. When soil moisture is adequate, the larvae hide in the soil during the day and move to the surface at night, where they cut off the plants just above the soil surface. Where soil conditions are dry the larvae do not move to the surface to feed but instead chew into the plants just below the soil surface. This causes the corn plants to wilt and usually die.

Economic thresholds for when one should treat have been established. The thresholds are for seedleaf-emerged corn — 2 percent of the plants cut; two-leaf stage — 3 percent of the plants cut; three-leaf stage — 5 percent of the plants cut; and four-leaf stage — 7 percent of the plants cut. If the majority of the cutworms are 1 to two inches long, however, control will not help because most of the feeding is finished.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

YOUR 'PRECIOUS' LIFE

Background Scripture:
Acts 20:13-38.
Devotional Reading:
1 Corinthians 15:10-11.

It is quite possible to misunderstand Paul when he says, "But I do not account my life of any value nor as precious to myself, if only I may accomplish my course and the ministry which I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the gospel of the grace of God" (20:24).

Actually, part of the problem is that this verse is translated awkwardly in the King James and Revised Standard versions. The J.B. Philips and Living Bible paraphrases render the verse more smoothly:

"But I do not consider my own life important or valuable to me, so long as I can finish my course and complete the ministry which the Lord Jesus has given me . . ." (Philips)

"But life is worth nothing unless I use it for doing the work assigned me by the Lord Jesus . . ." (LB)

The Jerusalem Bible gives us a slightly different slant:

"But life to me is not a thing to waste words on, provided that when I finish my race. I have carried out the mission the Lord Jesus gave me . . ."

The Precious Life

The problem is that Paul seems to be denigrating the value of his God-given life.

After reading and re-reading this verse several times, I don't think that is really what Paul is saying. In each paraphrase and translation, if the second part of the sentence had been placed first, his comments on the value of his life would be more forcefully within the context of his desire to fulfill God's purpose for him.

(Try that in each of the four versions above. For example: "So long as I can finish my course and complete the ministry which the Lord has given me, I do not consider my own life important or valuable to me" — Philips.)

The important thing here is not the worthlessness of his life to him, but the impetus to fulfilling his ministry.

So what does all that matter? To me it matters because I would not be able to join Paul in saying "my life is worth nothing," nor could I say it is not "precious to myself." My life is worth a great deal and is precious to me. I thank God for it every day, morning, noon, and night. As I get older I realize ever more what a precious gift it is from God.

My Life

So, it is not because my life is worthless, but because it is worth so much that I must be concerned with the second part of Paul's declaration. Compared to the purpose for which he created me, the possessive portion of "my life" is dwarfed by God's design.

I would not borrow Paul's language to say it, but I think we essentially agree. No matter what I want for my life, what really matters most of all is for me to come as close to fulfilling his purpose as I can. Nothing in this world can equal that goal.

What that meant for Paul was a humble ministry trusting, not in himself or others, but the grace of God. "And now, behold, I am going to Jerusalem, bound in the Spirit, not knowing what shall befall me there; except that the Holy Spirit testifies to me in every city that imprisonment and affliction await me."

I close with two questions: How precious is your life to you? And how precious is your life to the Lord?

Egg Quality

to calcium.

"Any time you alter the diet you can have an effect on egg quality," he said. "It's a touchy balance."

Food safety has become a major focus of the NEQS in addition to the traditional emphasis on physical factors such as shell strength, shape, cleanliness, and soundness; as well as quality of the white, visibility of the yoke, and size of the air cell when eggs are viewed with a candling light.

NEQS laboratory director and Maryland grader Jim Greer said that egg grading focuses on interior and exterior physical qualities of eggs as opposed to microbiological concerns.

At time of laying, most eggs are of AA quality — the highest grade, Greer said. After that, the protection of egg quality depends on how the eggs are handled and stored. Cartoned eggs sold in Maryland grocery stores must be Grade A quality or higher.

Using a small laboratory version of a candling light, Greer demonstrated how candling is used to examine the interior physical quality of eggs, showing how with increasing age the yolk becomes more visible and the air cell within the egg grows larger, aging signs that lower the grade from AA through A then B quality. Candling also reveals blood spots inside the egg that reduce grade quality.

According to Greer, an older egg is not always a bad thing. "It depends on what you want to do with (it)," he said, pointing out that when hard-boiled, older eggs are easier to shell than fresher eggs.

Focusing on the safety of eggs as food, several of the training sessions introduced principles of the USDA's Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points (HACCP) program as it could be applied to the egg industry.

NEQS student Jose Ambriz of the Mexican Department of Health learns candling technique used to examine interior physical quality of the egg.

Maryland and Pennsylvania already have their own egg quality assurance programs in place (MEQAP and PEQAP, respectively.)

According to Dr. Deana Jones of the USDA Agricultural Research Service, HACCP is already being applied to meat and poultry production, but has not yet been mandated for the egg industry. However, in response to market demands such as egg buyers requiring uniform safety standards, some egg production and processing facilities are already employing their own programs similar to HACCP.

Jones said that HACCP is a "self-monitoring, proactive" program for evaluating the production and handling of animal products for human consumption. The goal is to identify potential hazards, then apply solutions at "critical control points" to lower the incidence of food safety problems, she said.

An example of HACCP in egg production would be the identification of an incorrect washing temperature or pH level causing higher than acceptable levels of bacteria.

Jones said that HACCP applied to eggs will differ from its application to meat and poultry because many of the nation's eggs are produced and processed at the same site.

"With meat and poultry, HACCP starts at the door of the processing plant," she said. "Eggs are produced at the facility (where they are processed.)"

In-shell pasteurization of eggs was the topic of another training session offered at NEQS.

Deanna Baldwin of the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) food grading service said that in-shell pasteurization uses new technology that heats the egg to just under the temperature at which the white coagulates.

Intended to increase microbial safety, pasteurization will likely be applied to certain types of eggs such as those going for uses that involve little or no cooking, she said.

Baldwin has worked with MEQAP since its start in the early 1990s.

Essentially identical to PEQAP, Baldwin said that MEQAP "is all about safety" and includes biosecurity, environmental and Salmonella testing in all stages from egg production through processing.

Not a mandatory program, MEQAP involvement is nevertheless in demand because of competition in the market, Baldwin said.

Maryland Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Brad Powers said that egg production has made a solid contribution to the state's diverse agriculture for years.

Compared to other types of production such as dairy, "The egg industry has been more stable in Maryland," Powers said, pointing out that the last decade has seen relatively little change in the numbers of eggs produced in the state.

Including eggs bound for hatcheries, about 900 million shell eggs are produced in Maryland per year, Powers said.

Nutra-Flo FOLIAR PLANT FOOD ...the Yield Booster!

Completely Safe, Will Not Burn Plants

Nutra-Flo "foliar plant food" is completely safe for foliar application.

- made from 100% orthophosphate
- chloride-free
- 100% water soluble
- crystal clear, water-white liquid
- low-salt index
- neutral pH

Improves Soybean, Corn & Alfalfa Yields

Research shows foliar feeding boosts maturity, quality and yield. Plants get an immediate source of N-P-K when soil nutrients are unavailable. Large applications of nitrogen, high organic matter, high or low pH, dry conditions, excess moisture, extreme heat or cold can reduce macro or micronutrient availability.

CROP	BENEFITS OF FOLIAR PLANT FOOD	YIELD INCREASE
Soybeans	• Improves and increases pod set • Hastens maturity	Up to 12 bu/A
Corn	• Higher test weight • Drier corn at harvest	Up to 9 bu/A
Alfalfa	• Increased protein quality • Hastens maturity	Up to 4 ton/A

Easy to Apply with Post-Emerge Chemicals

Nutra-Flo foliar plant food can be piggy-backed with most insecticide and herbicide applications. It meets Monsanto's strict compatibility specifications for combining liquid N-P-K with Roundup® Ultra for application on Roundup Ready® soybeans.

Foliar Application Guidelines

CROP	FIRST APPLICATION	SECOND APPLICATION	AMOUNT FOR EACH APPLICATION
Soybeans	4th to 6th leaf trifoliate	60 to 80% pod set	3 to 6 gals/A
Corn	3 to 5 leaf collar	10 to 15 days before tassel	3 to 6 gals/A
Alfalfa	4 to 6 days after each cutting		3 to 6 gals/A

Lower Costs, Higher Yields

SAVE Up to 25%

Nutra-Flo foliar plant food costs less. You'll enjoy these other economic benefits when you foliar apply Nutra-Flo plant food:

Cow Numbers Heading Down

- April milk production report released.
- April milk down 1.9 percent.
- Cold storage shows fewer dairy stocks.

USDA released the April milk production and cold storage reports this week. They reveal a recent trend toward less milk from fewer cows and lower inventory levels for cheese and butter.

Milk production in 20 major dairy states during April 2001 totaled 12.2 billion pounds, down 1.9 percent relative to a year ago. March revised milk production was 12.4 billion pounds, down 2.3 percent from March 2000.

Production per cow in the 20 major dairy states averaged 1,572 pounds for April 2001, a drop of 21 pounds relative to April 2000. And cow numbers on farms was 7.74 million head for April 2001, 45,000 head less than a year ago and 12,000 head less than March 2001. The data indicates there have been eight successive months of declines in cow numbers.

An analysis of the April 2001 data indicates that 13 of the 20 major dairy states experienced a decline in milk production relative to a year ago. In fact, production changes in April relative to a year ago for the top 5 major milk producing states (in order) were California up 1.6 percent, Wisconsin down 3.3 percent, New York down 4.? percent, Pennsylvania down 5.7 percent, and Minnesota down 5.2 percent.

Fourteen out of the 20 major dairy states had a reduction in cow numbers in April relative to a year ago, and 13 out of 20 experienced reduced production per cow.

The only states with production growth in April (relative to April 2000) were Indiana (+10.6 percent), Idaho (+8.6 percent), New Mexico (+3.8 percent), California (+1.6 percent), Michigan (+0.4 percent), and Ohio (+0.3 percent).

The top five worse performing states in April with regard to milk production growth were Texas (-12.3 percent), Missouri (-10.5 percent), Arizona (-9.4 percent), Vermont (-6.4 percent), and Pennsylvania (-5.7 percent).

One possible reason for the sudden reduction in cow numbers may have been due to beef prices. USDA's NASS office reports that cull cow prices (Wisconsin) rose $1.60 per CWT from $41.70 in March to $43.30. Cull cow prices in April 2000 were just $40.50 per CWT. Some farmers may be using higher beef prices to replace low-end cows. The problem, however, is that the cost of replacements has also risen in recent months.

The cash markets remain very strong. At the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, barrel cheese prices closed at $1.5675 per pound and block cheese prices closed at $1.6075 per pound on Friday, May 18 (both had no sales). Grade AA butter prices advanced slightly this week, closing at $1.91 per pound on Friday. The butter price rose on Friday because no one was willing to sell butter at prices between $1.88 and $1.91 per pound.

Futures settlement prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange also remained firm in light of the milk production report. Class III futures settlements on May 18 rose to $13.78 for May 01, about $14.50 for June through September 01, $13.79 in October, 13.26 in November, and $12.65 in December. Class IV settlement prices on May 18 were $14.90 for May 01, about $15.20-$15.42 for June 01-September 01, $14.95 for October, $14.15 for November 01, and $13.85 for December 01.

USDA released the April cold storage report today. April butter stocks were down 17.5 percent relative to a year ago. American cheese stocks at the end of April were down 10 percent.

Finally, all cheese stocks by the end of April were down 9.2 percent. This trend in cheese and butter inventories signals a significant reduction in inventories in the next few months, if the milk supply continues to be tight.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Export Sales Highlights

Report Supplied By USDA

This summary is based on reports from exporters for the period May 11 - 17, 2001.

Wheat: Net sales of 159,900 metric tons (MT)—a marketing-year low—were 6 percent lower than the previous week and 26 percent less than the 4-week average. Increases for Mexico (45,100 MT), Japan (39,400 MT), Venezuela (36,000 MT), Yemen (33,200 MT), Nigeria (22,500 MT), and Cyprus (22,000 MT) were partially offset by decreases for unknown destinations (74,600 MT) and Guatemala (31,000 MT—switched to 200½002). Net sales of 251,200 MT for delivery in 200½002 (which begins June 1) were mainly for South Korea (40,400 MT), the Philippines (34,500 MT), Guatemala (31,000 MT), Israel (30,200 MT), Nigeria (30,000 MT), and Indonesia (26,000 MT). Exports of 363,100 MT were 4 percent over the prior week, but 27 percent under the 4-week average. The primary destinations were Japan (84,800 MT, including late reporting of 40,600 MT), Peru (49,700 MT), Yemen (40,200 MT), Indonesia (33,000 MT), and Mexico (25,600 MT).

Corn: Net sales of 1,190,700 MT were 34 percent above the week earlier and 38 percent above the 4-week average.

Major increases were reported for Japan (204,200 MT), Egypt (179,000 MT), Mexico (126,500 MT), unknown destinations (104,000 MT), Turkey (79,800 MT), and Taiwan (79,300 MT) Net sales of 40,000 MT for delivery during the 200½002 marketing year were primarily the result of increases for the United Kingdom (55,000 MT) and Jamaica (2,500 MT) being partially offset by decreases for Turkey (17,500 MT). Exports of 624,200 MT were 12 percent below the previous week and 18 percent below the 4-week average. The primary destinations were Japan (421,700 MT, including late reporting of 64,100 MT), Turkey (41,800 MT), Saudi Arabia (33,100 MT), Mexico (25,400 MT), and Tunisia (24,400 MT).

Barley: Net sales of 300 MT were all to Japan. Sales of 5,000 MT for delivery in 200½002 (which begins June 1) were to Japan. Exports of 10,000 MT were two-thirds below the prior week and 62 percent under the 4-week average. The destinations were Japan (7,200 MT) and Mexico (2,800 MT).

Sorghum: Net sales of 107,300 MT were 19 percent below the previous week and 14 percent under the 4-week average.

The buyers were Mexico (95,300 MT) and Japan (11,900 MT). Optional origin sales of 3,200 MT to Japan were declared other than U.S. origin. Exports of 110,200 MT were 48 percent below the week earlier and 12 percent under the 4-week average. The destinations were Mexico (102,300 MT) and Japan (7,900 MT).

Rice: Net sales reductions of 35,400 MT resulted as major increases for El Salvador (7,200 MT—all rough), Honduras (6,000 MT—all rough), Haiti (4,400 MT), and Ghana (3,300 MT) were offset by reductions to Mexico (62,900 MT—all rough). Exports of 42,700 MT were 20 percent below the prior week and 10 percent under the 4-week average. The primary destinations were the Philippines (10,900 MT), Haiti (7,200 MT), Mexico (5,300 MT), Honduras (3,800 MT), and Ghana (3,000 MT).

Soybeans: Net sales of 114,700 MT were off two-thirds from the previous week and one-half from the 4-week average.

Major increases for Japan (66,100 MT), Mexico (29,900 MT), Trinidad (22,000 MT), and Russia (10,000 MT) were partially offset by decreases for Turkey (22,500 MT). Increases of 116,500 MT for delivery in 200½002 were mainly for unknown destinations (60,000 MT) and Mexico (38,500 MT). Optional origin activity for China includes new sales of 55,000 MT for the current marketing year and 110,000 MT for the 200½002 marketing year. Exports of 165,300 MT were 48 percent below the week earlier and 24 percent under the 4-week average. The primary destinations were Mexico (61,300 MT), South Korea (42,500 MT), and Japan (30,700 MT).

Soybean Cake and Meal: Net sales of 179,000 MT were 18 percent over the prior week and 78 percent above the 4-week average. Increases were for unknown destinations (43,500 MT), Turkey (21,900 MT), Canada (20,100 MT), Indonesia (18,000 MT), and Guatemala (17,600 MT). Exports of 151,800 MT were 71 percent higher than the week earlier and 49 percent above the 4-week average. The primary destinations were Australia (31,900 MT), Russia (30,800 MT), and the Philippines (22,100 MT).

Soybean Oil: Net sales of 500 MT resulted as increases to Canada (600 MT) and Haiti (100 MT) were partially offset by reductions to Nicaragua (100 MT) and Guatemala (100 MT). Exports of 3,000 MT were 32 percent below the 4-week average. The major destinations were Guatemala (1,400 MT) and Nicaragua (1,400 MT).

Cotton: Net Upland sales of 60,000 RB were 63 percent below the previous week and 37 percent under the 4-week average. The major buyers were India (17,500 RB), Bangladesh (6,200 RB), Taiwan (6,000 RB), Indonesia (5,700 RB), and Turkey (5,200 RB). Net sales of 63,500 RB for delivery in 200½002 were primarily to Mexico (31,000 RB), Indonesia (7,400 RB), and South Korea (7,100 RB). Exports of 163,400 RB were 15 percent above the prior week and 22 percent over the 4-week average. The primary destinations were Mexico (33,800 RB), Turkey (24,500 RB), India (17,300 RB), Taiwan (11,100 RB), and South Korea (10,200 RB).

Hides and Skins: Net sales of 471,400 pieces were down 13 percent from the previous week, but equaled the 4-week average. Whole cattle hide sales of 428,000 pieces were primarily for South Korea (141,600 pieces), China (85,500 pieces), and Taiwan (72,000 pieces). Exports of 525,600 pieces were 8 percent over the prior week and 11 percent over the 4-week average. Whole cattle hide shipments of 468,600 pieces were destined mainly for South Korea (186,200 pieces), China (92,300 pieces), and Taiwan (75,400 pieces).

Net sales of 167,500 wet blues (mainly unsplit) were one-half above the prior week and more than two and one-quarter times the 4-week average. The primary buyers were Taiwan (79,700 unsplit and 26,700 grain split), Hong Kong (20,900 unsplit and 5,300 grain split), and China (15,000 unsplit). Exports of 125,400 hides were 53 percent over the previous week and 57 percent over the 4-week average. The primary destinations were Taiwan (39,900 unsplit and 15,400 grain split), Hong Kong (15,000 unsplit and 3,600 grain split), and Italy (14,400 unsplit). Net sales of splits totaling 3,297,100 pounds were three and four-fifths times the prior week and nearly four and three-fourths times the 4-week average. The major buyers were Mexico (1,554,700 pounds), Hong Kong (1,182,900 pounds), and China (435,000 pounds). Exports of 1,463,100 pounds were down 11 percent from the prior week and 10 percent from the 4-week average. Hong Kong (779,900 pounds), South Korea (229,600 pounds), and Mexico (223,700 pounds) were the primary destinations.

National Organic Standards Board To Meet June 6-7

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA's National Organic Standards Board (NOSB) will meet June 6-7 at the Best Western Midway Hotel, La Crosse, Wis. Meeting sessions will run from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on June 6 and from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on June 7. All sessions are open to the public.

At this meeting, the NOSB will receive committee reports; updates from the Aquatic Task Force Working Group, the Task Force on Board Policy for Expert Presentations, and the Task Force on Outreach to Producers; an update from the USDA National Organic Program (NOP); and presentations by the Environmental Protection Agency on pesticide product labeling and the USDA Foreign Agricultural Service on trade issues.

The NOSB will also review the following materials for possible inclusion on the National List of Approved and Prohibited Substances:

- For livestock production — DL-Methionine (including DL-Methionine Hydroxy Analog and Hydroxy Analog Calcium).
- For crops — Monocalcium Phosphate.
- For processing — Potassium Hydroxide, Ammonium Hydroxide, Cyclohexlamine, Diethylaminoethanol, Morpholine, and Octadecylamine.

For additional information, see the NOP's home page at www.ams.usda.gov/nop.

Time has been scheduled for public comment on June 6, 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., and June 7, 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Those wishing to provide comments to the NOSB on any organic issue should send requests to Toni Strother, USDA-AMS-TMP-NOP, P.O. Box 96456, Room 2510-S, Ag Stop 0268, Washington, D.C. 20090-6456, or fax (202) 205-7808 by May 31. For more information, call (202) 720-3252.

USDA published its final National Organic Program regulations in the Federal Register December 21, 2000 (65 FR 80548). The regulations became effective April 21, 2001.

Free Composting Conference June 28

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), in partnership with the Pennsylvania Compost Association, Pennsylvania Association of Sustainable Agriculture, and Professional Recyclers of Pennsylvania, has scheduled a free composting conference called "Growing Your Business: Composting Strategies for Expanding Markets" from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. June 28 at the Holiday Inn in Grantville.

Acting DEP Secretary David E. Hess will be among the featured speakers, as will nationally known recycling and composting expert Nora Goldstein and Bob Rynk of the U.S. Compost Council.

The conference will include presentations from the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation and DEP's Bureau of Mining, recycling initiatives, and private industry perspectives on recycling organic wastes. Also included will be panel discussions to help business owners learn about new markets for compost and how to make their compost more competitive.

Although there is no charge to attend, preregistration is required.

To register, contact Pamela Rosser at (215) 772-0118 or e-mail pam@prosserpr.com.

May 1 Cattle On Feed 2 Percent Higher Than Year Ago

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 11.17 million head on May 1, according to the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS).

The inventory was 2 percent above May 1, 2000, and 11 percent above May 1, 1999.

Placements in feedlots during April totaled 1.55 million, 9 percent below 2000 and 8 percent below 1999. Net placements were 1.46 million.

During April, placements of cattle and calves weighing less that 600 pounds were 334,000, 600-699 pounds were 384,000, 700-799 pounds were 494,000, and 800 pounds and greater were 339,000 head.

Marketings of fed cattle during April totaled 1.82 million head, 3 percent below 2000 and 7 percent below 1999.

Other disappearance totaled 89,000 during April, 1 percent below 2000 and 14 percent below 1999.

Historic 7 States Up 2 Percent

Cattle on feed May 1 in the historic 7 states for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 9.56 million, up 2 percent from the previous year and 11 percent above May 1, 1999.

Placements in feedlots during April totaled 1.32 million, 10 percent below 2000.

search being done at Penn State with people throughout the state.

A portable sawmill and edger allowed students to see the transformation from log to board and the defects that may show up in lumber.

Variety Of Participants

The 21 participants, representing a variety of backgrounds in forestry, came from New York, Canada, and across Pennsylvania.

Andrew Marshall, for example, a Tyrone High School student, plans to attend college for forestry at Penn Tech, Williamsport.

As with many of the participants who are involved in the industry, Bob Hobbes, a consultant forester and buyer of standing timber, attended to continue his education.

David Krutsch, from the Philadelphia area, has no prior lumber industry experience but "wanted to find out more about the woodlot I have and I thought this would be the best way to do it. I didn't know what was fair value for my wood, so this was a way to gain experience. I also learned from talking to people in the industry."

Agriculture education teacher at Tyrone High School, Christine McCahren, anticipates incorporating course information into the classroom in the upcoming year.

"Our school is located in an area with a lot of forestry industry around it, so it's good to pass on this learning to the students," said McCahren. She is also looking forward to sharing the curriculum with physics and biology teachers besides tying the information into her own plant science course.

Todd Stanford, Mill Hall, a forest technician, attended the course to keep up with his certification as a forester, which requires 60 credit hours over a three-year period.

Stanford brought with him employee Brian Kehler to brush up on grades and keep knowledge up to date. The two came to learn "to do a better job for the landowners," said Stanford, who manages acreage for long-term benefits and offers woodland evaluations for landowners.

During the hands-on portion of the course, instructor Lee Stover, kneeling, gives advice to students about the shortcuts in log grading.

"Landowners are here so they can get a better understanding of what they have in their woods as far as quality, what it's worth. The forest consultants are here so we can better understand how to sell what the landowners have."

Evaluation Factors

"In the last 200 years, there has been 95 different scales developed, but we're down to mostly three," said Stover.

The Doyle, Scribner Decimal C, and International ¼ inch are the most widely used on hardwood factory logs. Grading ranges from the highest quality, F1, to the lower-quality F3.

To determine a log's scale, a grader gets the diameter of the smallest end of the tree by measuring through the center of the log and then again at a right angle.

After finding the length of the log, a quick glance at the scaling stick reveals how much wood yield can be expected. Subtracting the defects will give the net scale, then grading rules applied for the grade.

"You've learned how to scale, then determine how much you have in the gross scale and then modify that because of defects for the net scale," said Stover.

"It becomes quite a brain game, a puzzle, when you factor in everything."

An Important Industry

Richard Deppen, Selinsgrove, of Deppen's Inspection and Consulting service, also served as an instructor at the school.

"Pennsylvania is known for its hardwoods. It ranks up there as one of the top industries in the state. The lumber industry supports a lot of people," said Deppen. "In the 1940s and early 50s Williamsport was the hardwood capitol of the world, as far as production, buyers, and wood manufacturers."

"Most hardwoods are used for manufacturing furniture, cabinets, and some flooring. The lower grades are used for pallets."

Deppen pointed out the defects in the boards, which may or may not show up on the outside of the log. He has found such items as horseshoes, railroad spikes, and nails nestled inside a tree and degrading its quality.

Long streaks of blue, the result of the oxidation process, are "a telltale sign that there's hardware in the log," he said. Besides causing an unsightly mark in the board, nails can also take the teeth off of a saw blade.

The trees used for the course were taken from a nearby woodlot and, unfortunately, were used as part of a fence, so nails were a problem.

Defects

Trees are examined for defects in the ends, whether they are rotten, hollow, or have spiraling cracks. The sides are also checked for defects, as the knots where the limbs were will show up on lumber. Worm holds or bird pecks are also duly noted.

Rot, caused by water infiltrating the tree, possibly by a hole from the limb area, is another defect, along with a gray or blue stain, a problem if the log lays too long without proper drying after it is harvested.

In evaluating the end of the trees, which must be used to find the grade, participants looked at the heart center, the core of the tree, and surrounding quality zones.

An affected area is an area in which there are blemishes within three inches of each other. "You have to figure in the collective area, not just specific spots," explained Stover.

A stain or black to dark gray discoloration indicates the degradation process already starting and must be factored in.

The knots present in boards are cut around, explained Deppen. Different size cuttings fit into different (cabinet, pallet, furniture) industries.

The Production Process

Toward the end of the process, a debarker removes the bark, making mulch. An edger achieves a "clear" piece by taking off the bark and finishing the edge of the board.

The slab wood, the outer shell of the tree, is sawed into smaller pieces and used for firewood. Also the debarked slab wood could also be put through the chipper to be used for paper. The nail-pierced pieces go for firewood or are chipped.

"The big mills use sawdust for bedding and burn the shavings for energy," said Deppin. "There's very little that's wasted anymore."

However "the total product is not much," said Stover. "Only 23-25 percent makes it into the final, high-end product."

Participants noted seams, frost cracks, and splits which may not be considered a defect if they are deeper than 15 percent of the log diameter.

Bird pecks are not considered a defect unless there are more than four pecks within a square foot. Birds peck at the tree's cambium for liquid and food, said Stover. The tree has to heal the spot over, creating a dark brown spot.

Additional schools, approximately eight a year, will also be conducted. The schools will address wood-related topics such as kiln drying, wood properties, and lumber grading.

For more information contact Kocovsky at: School of Forest Resources; The Pennsylvania State University; 113 Ferguson Building, Univeristy Park, PA 16802-4300 or call (814) 863-1113.

Richard Deppen, Selinsgrove, owner of an inspection and consulting service, stands in front of a board with blue blemishes because of a nail which has oxidized inside of the tree. In the background is a portable sawmill used during the course.

Forestry consultant Bob Hobbes, Tunkhannock, woodlot owner David Krusch, Philadelphia area, and Tyrone High School student Andrew Marshall represent the cross section of participants in the two-day school.

Land Holdings To Be Auctioned

PHILADELPHIA — Land totaling about 248 acres and consisting of eight parcels in Brecknock Township will be sold at absolute public auction on behalf of a well-known Berks County family.

The auction will be under tent, rain or shine, Saturday, June 2 at 11 a.m.

A second auction for the same family will be Tuesday, June 5, at 1 p.m. To be sold this day are a five-acre parcel with a small commercial shop and a parcel with a stone duplex home. These properties are located on New Holland Road in Cumru Township, close to the Kenhorst Shopping Center.

Approximately 248 acres, including eight tracts of land, are situated in one of Berks County's most picturesque areas between Reading and Morgantown. The zoning varies for each parcel, ranging from R-A rural agricultural to R-1 low density residential and R-2 medium density residential. Three of the parcels feature farmhouses with barns and ponds, and all showcase beautiful scenery.

The buildings will be open for inspection Tuesday, May 29, from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. Before beginning individual inspections, prospective bidders are asked to visit Parcel 4, the main farm, at Hartz Store Road and Maple Grove Road. High bidders the days of the auctions will be required to place a 15 percent deposit per property by personal check. Settlement must occur on or before Aug. 1.

Farmers Union Promotes Competition In Ag And Food Industries

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In a recent hearing before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture, Rural Development and Related Agencies, North Dakota Farmers Union President Robert Carlson told panel members that increased concentration through mergers, integration, and other business combinations in the food, agriculture and transportation industries continues to compromise the viability of rural communities, rural infrastructure and America's family farms and ranches.

"Clearly, the healthy profits being reaped by big business are coming at the expense of our nation's small farms and ranches," Carlson said. "There are fewer farmers today than there were 20 years ago, and there are fewer businesses in control of the transportation, processing, and marketing of family farm produced crops and livestock. The old adage that 'bigger is better' does not apply to increasing concentration in agriculture industries, especially considering the impact to family farm agriculture, rural communities and consumers."

Concentration in the agriculture, food and transportation industries continues to be a major concern for family farmers and the National Farmers Union. Recent mergers, joint ventures and marketing alliances follow a trend that may provide efficiencies for large businesses but make it difficult for family farmers and ranchers to bargain for fair prices and contract terms, Carlson told subcommittee members. Farmers face diminished choices when seeking places to sell their product, transport their product, and buy inputs such as seed, fertilizer, and fuel.

Carlson also pointed to studies commissioned by Farmers Union that shows how a multifaceted food industry with hundreds of independent competitors have consolidated into five horizontally and vertically integrated 'food clusters," that comprise production, processing, farming input, and retail entities. The economic muscle of this oligopoly squeezes commodity producers and consumers.

Farmers Union recommends actions by Congress and the administration to: Provide oversight in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Grains Inspection, Packers, and Stockyards Administration over mergers and their effect on agriculture markets and rural communities; prohibit packer ownership of livestock; place a moratorium on mergers in the agriculture industry; require more disclosure and enhance data reporting on concentration; focus research on family-sized farms; strengthen the contracting and bargaining rights of contract producers; and increase competition in the marketplace.

'Pedal To Preserve' To Benefit Farmland Trust

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster Farmland Trust's fifth annual Pedal to Preserve will take place rain-or-shine June 23 at Donegal High School, 955 Marietta Avenue, Mount Joy.

Cyclists can choose from three routes through some of western Lancaster County's most beautiful farmland: a six-mile "family ride" starting at 9:30 a.m.; a 20-mile ride starting at 9 a.m.; or a new 52-mile ride starting at 8 a.m.

Registration is $20 in advance or $25 on the day of the event (children under 12 ride free with an adult).

Water stops, snacks, and support vehicles will be provided along the route. All riders will receive a free T-shirt and water bottle. Riders can also raise extra funds and win prizes by getting pledges for miles traveled.

Brochures, which include a registration form and additional information, are now available. Riders from previous years will automatically be mailed a brochure. You can also now register on our Website, www.savelancasterfarms.org.

This year's sponsors include: Certified Carpet; Concord House Real Estate; Fulton Bank; Golden Barrel Products; Hurst Brothers Development Company; Lancaster Farming Newspapers; New Holland North America; Nissley Vineyards; Hinkle Pharmacy; Wenger's Feed Mill, Inc.; Leroy M. Sensenig, Inc.; Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.; and Union National Community Bank.

Approximately 40 volunteers are needed for rider registration; water stops; course marshals; course vehicle support; morning set up; and afternoon tear down.

Volunteer assignments will be available from 7:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. The schedules are flexible and not all jobs span the entire time.

Volunteers are invited to attend the final Pedal to Preserve committee meeting, June 6, 5:30 p.m., at the Donegal High School athletic field.

Anyone interested in volunteering should contact Carol Crosby at 293-0707, or via e-mail: carol@savelancasterfarms.org.

Farm Bureau Member Appointed To Animal Health Commission

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is pleased to announce the state Senate confirmation of James Henry of New Bethlehem, Clarion County, to a four-year term on the Pennsylvania Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission.

Henry's nomination was supported by Pennsylvania Farm Bureau. He will represent livestock producers on the 15-member Commission.

The Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission was established through legislation enacted with Farm Bureau's support in 1988. It operates within the Department of Agriculture and is responsible for developing policy on all animal health, research, diagnostic and indemnity programs in the state.

Henry has extensive experience in livestock production as owner/operator of Leatherwood Stock Farms, a 500-acre intensively grazed livestock farm in Clarion County.

The farm includes a 75-head Angus cow/calf operation plus a 250-calf backgrounding operation. Henry has also owned and operated several businesses and had a 13-year sales and management career with Ralston Purina specializing in large animal feed and animal health products.

Henry is current president of the Pennsylvania Grazing Lands Conservation Initiative, a coalition of 15 producer-member groups including Pennsylvania Farm Bureau. He is also an active member of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association and is the Governmental Relations chairman of the Clarion County Farm Bureau.

Pa. Poultry Production Up 2 Percent In 2000

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The combined value of Pennsylvania poultry production in 2000 was $647.2 million, up two percent from the $634.0 million in 1999, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service. Egg production accounted for 44 percent of the total value, broiler production was 37 percent of the total, turkey production accounted for 18 percent, and the value of mature chickens sold (excluding broilers) accounted for less than one percent of the total value.

Total egg production for 2000 was valued at $287.2 million, up four percent from $276.6 million one year earlier. During the year 6.31 million eggs w :roduced, three percent more than in 1999. Prices for all eggs sold, including hatching eggs, averaged 54.6 cents per dozen during the year, compared to 54.1 cents per dozen in 1999.

Broiler production during 2000 was valued at $242.6 million, down seven percent from the previous year. A total of 133.3 million broilers were produced in 2000, down less than one percent from 1999. The average price received by producers in 2000 was 35.0 cents per pound live weight, compared to 37.0 cents per pound received a year earlier.

Turkey producers raised 9.3 million poults during 2000, down five percent from the previous year. The value of turkey production in 2000, at $113.8 million, was 22 percent more than in 1999. Producers received an average of 45 cents per pound live weight during the year, up 3 cents per pound from 1999.

Mature chickens sold (excluding broilers) in 2000 were valued at $3.4 million, three percent less than the previous year. A total of 12.9 million mature chickens were sold during the year, three percent less than in 1999. Prices for mature chickens averaged 7.5 cents per pound live weight, unchanged from the previous year.

Nationally, the combined value of production from broilers, eggs and turkeys, and the value of mature chickens sold in 2000, was $21.2 billion, down five percent from the $22.3 billion in 1999. Of the combined total, 66 percent was from broilers, 20 percent from eggs, 13 percent from turkeys, and less than one percent from other chickens.

The value of broilers produced during 2000 was $14.0 billion, down eight percent from 1999. The total number of broilers produced in 2000 was 8.26 billion, up one percent from 1999. The 2000 average price per pound on a live weight equivalent basis was 33.6 cents per pound, compared to 37.1 cents per pound in 1999.

Value of egg production in 2000 was $4.35 billion, up one percent from the $4.29 billion in 1999. Egg production totaled 84.4 billion eggs, up two percent from the 82.7 billion eggs produced in 1999. In 2000, eggs averaged 61.8 cents per dozen, compared with 62.2 cents in 1999.

The value of turkeys produced during 2000 was $2.84 billion, up one percent from the $2.81 billion the previous year. Turkey production in 2000 totaled 6.99 billion pounds live weight, compared with 6.89 billion pounds in 1999. The prices received by producers during 2000 averaged 40.7 cents per pound live weight, compared with 40.8 cents a year earlier.

The value of sales from chickens (excluding broilers) in 2000 was $64.7 million, down 12 percent from the $73.2 million a year ago. Prices averaged 5.8 cents per pound, compared with 7.1 cents in 1999.

Most Farm Workers Treated Well, According To New York Ag Chairman

ALBANY, N.Y. — New York Assembly Agriculture Committee Chair Bill Magee (D-Nelson), breaking ranks with his fellow Democrats voted against a legislative package recently put forth in the Assembly aimed at farm labor protections and benefits.

"While these bills are certainly well intentioned, unfortunately they do not recognize the reality involved in farming — the fact that agriculture, unlike any other industry, deals in a perishable product and farmers cannot simply tell their crops to stop growing and their cows to take a day off," Magee emphasized.

Included in what has been dubbed as the "Farm Workers Practices Act" were provisions seeking to provide farm workers with the ability to organize and collectively bargain; provide for a mandatory day off each week; provide for an eight hour work day as well as overtime pay.

"The very vast majority of farmers treat all of their employees with great respect, and because of that, farm laborers are provided with most of the same protections and benefits as other workers," Magee said. "I would invite my colleagues to join me in touring farms around this state so they can see what's really happening."

Among the protections and benefits currently provided to farm workers are those including coverage under minimum wage laws; whistleblower protections related to workers who testify or disclose to an enforcement agency an employer who is disregarding regulations and posing dangers to the public health or safety; workers compensation coverage; access to migrant child care centers; as well as protections related to improper exposure to pesticides. Also, there are currently a number of agencies which regulate and inspect farmers, including the state and federal Departments of Labor, the Department of Environmental Conservation, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Occupational Safety and Health Agency, the Safety and Health Administration, and the state and federal Departments of Agriculture.

Extension Agents, Others Work With Horses

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania 4-H Horse Driving Clinics will be June 18-21 throughout the state. Registration deadline is June 11.

For registration information and additional details, see the clinic flyer on the Website at: http://www.das.psu.edu/Horse%20Program/youthext/events/pdf/drivingclinic01.pdf.

The driving clinics are open to the public as space permits, but are designed primarily to teach youth to prepare, harness, and drive horses and ponies. Proper turnout, safety considerations, and driving rules will be covered.

The clinician is Lore Homer, AHSA and American Driving Society registered judge.

Clean, fresh, quality drinking water on your farm could make a bigger difference than you think.

Assembly Agriculture Committee Beefs-Up Food Safety

ONEIDA, N.Y. — The Assembly Agriculture Committee, chaired by Assemblyman Bill Magee (D-Nelson), met recently with a list of legislation aimed at dealing with improving various food and animal safety programs.

"While we are well positioned in this state and country — due to the research of Cornell University and others — to avoid any outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease or BSE such as what has happened in Great Britain, we must, nonetheless, remain vigilant in our efforts," Magee said.

Among the bills acted on during the Committee meeting were:

• Assembly bill 8595, sponsored by Assemblyman Bill Magee, which officially authorizes the Commissioner of Agriculture to establish and maintain the New York State Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory to evaluate domestic and wild animal populations for disease. While the Diagnostic Lab has been in existence for decades, this bill provides greater strategic direction to continue to address the challenges presented by agricultural and public health concerns.

• Assembly bill 8597, sponsored by Assemblywoman Margaret Markey, which officially authorizes the Commissioner of Agriculture to establish and maintain the New York State Cattle Health Assurance Program. This program's objectives are to increase the health and productivity of cattle herds while promoting and researching public and environmental health.

• Assembly bill 2760, sponsored by Assemblywoman Vivian Cook, which establishes an advisory committee within the Department of Agriculture and Markets to improve food safety protection and inspection programs.

"It is clear the consumer confidence in food safety and demand for agricultural products go hand-in-hand, so I cannot stress enough that these bills, along with other programs and research being carried out by Cornell, the Department of Agriculture and others increase protection of our farms and farm animals as well as the food supply and public health," Magee commented.

Also advanced during the meeting was Assembly bill 8596, sponsored by Assemblyman Magee, to include New York State in the Interstate Pest Control Compact. The Pest Control Compact provides financial assistance to member states to identify and control new, significant pest outbreaks and infestations.

The need for this bill is well established given that since 1992 there have been three foreign pest species identified in New York State including the Golden Nematode and the Asian Long Horn Beetle.

To assist New York in dealing with the Asian Long Horn Beetle, the Compact has already contributed $100,000 to conduct a program in Brooklyn to control the infestation. As of 2000, 32 states had become members including those in the northeast such as Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

"Clearly, joining this compact is in the best intent of this state but, unfortunately, there are those that would rather do nothing than do something meaningful that may include, to a small extent, the use of pesticide applications," Magee said.

Potato Growers Assistance Sign-Up Extended

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The program to provide relief to Russet potato farmers and to help stabilize market conditions has been extended by the USDA.

Jackie Stonfer, program chief, Pennsylvania State Office of the Farm Service Agency, said, "The new deadline for the diverting the potatoes from marketing has been extended to June 12, and producers have from that date until July 13 to sign-up for the program. This is for all varieties of 2000 crop fresh Russet potatoes, except sweet potatoes."

Farmers are encouraged to divert their harvest or a portion of the crop from normal trade and commerce to charitable food institutions, livestock feed, and ethanol production.

Payments for diverting 2000 crop Russet potatoes are $1 per hundredweight. Potatoes offered for diversion must meet specific minimum U.S. Grade standards and must be inspected and certified by USDA inspectors or Federal State Inspection Service before diversion.

Full requirements of the proposal are at http://www.ams.usda.gov/fv/fvcomm.htm and more information is available from the Commodity Procurement Branch, AMS Fruit and Vegetable Programs, USDA Stop 0239, 1400 Independence Avenue SW, Washington, D.C. 20250-0239, (202) 720-4517, fax (202) 720-2782, or e-mail michelle.warren@usda.gov.

Increased harvested acreage and record yields in 2000 combined to push Russet potato production past 500 million hundredweight for the first time in history, prompting growe prices to plummet. The National Agricultural Statistics Service reported the March 2001 season average grower price for all uses at $5.62 per hundredweight — down 10 percent from the March 2000 average of $6.26 and the lowest March grower price since the 1997 crop year. Record potato crops in Canada and Europe have compounded the domestic market problem, limiting U.S. sales in Canadian, European, and Asian markets.

Farm Bureau: Incentive-Based Programs Best For Improving Water Quality

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Layering federal regulations on top of existing state water quality rules is not needed and would unfairly burden America's farmers and ranchers, Farm Bureau said in a recent statement to a House Resources panel. Farm Bureau also emphasized the positive steps producers have voluntarily taken to improve water quality and the success of incentive-based initiatives.

"Our members are concerned about our environment and have a long history of implementing sound conservation practices," Farm Bureau stated. "The increased federal regulation of animal feeding operations (AFOs) envisaged by EPA in the proposed regulations is neither needed in order to fill a regulatory vacuum nor justified by water quality data."

The statement was submitted regarding the Environmental Protection Agency's proposals to implement a national permit and effluent limitation guideline for captive animal feeding operations. Farm Bureau highlighted the success of existing state permitting schemes, saying the addition of federal schemes would "result only in increased coordination costs for federal and state governments and unnecessary heightened regulatory burdens for producers."

Pointing to water quality data, Farm Bureau said increased federal regulation of AFOs is not needed. "EPA's data shows that impact on watersheds by feedlots and agriculture, in general, is only a problem in a few localized areas in the United States," Farm Bureau stated. "Data does not suggest that the solution to such problems should be approached on a national level."

Tied with the EPA's proposals, Farm Bureau stated, is the fact that the Clean Water Act grants statutory authority for EPA to regulate only point sources. Concentrated animal feeding operations are deemed to be point sources under the Clean Water Act. However, EPA does not have statutory authority to regulate AFOs.

According to Farm Bureau, EPA's proposals clearly overstep Congress's intent with the Clean Water Act. Specifically the EPA proposals unreasonably and/or impermissibly significantly expands the number of farms classified as captive animal feeding operations; eliminates the 25-year, 24-hour storm event exception; regulates land application of organic nutrients; mandates "permit nutrient plans"; and co-permits corporate entities.

"Over the decades, agricultural producers have achieved extraordinary conservation gains through voluntary, incentive-based programs to conserve fragile soils, wetlands, and protect water quality and wildlife habitats," Farm Bureau stated. "(We) urge the Congress to continue and increase its strong support for programs to improve water quality without increasing the costs borne by agriculture. Farm Bureau submits that the EPA's current effort to expand the scope of regulation goes well beyond congressional intent, and, as a matter of policy, believes that the nonpoint source issues of animal feeding operations are best addressed through incentive-based programs."

New Paint Technology To Aid Environment, Farmers

HATTIESBURG, Miss. — An environmentally friendly paint developed by polymer science researchers at the University of Southern Mississippi will serve a dual purpose of reducing pollutants in the atmosphere and increasing market opportunities for farmers.

The paint, developed by a Southern Mississippi research team led by Dr. Shelby Thames, was unveiled during an Earth Day celebration April 24 at the Pentagon in Washington D.C. Within the next year, the paint will be used on approximately one-fifth of the interior walls in the Pentagon.

"I'm very hopeful that this will be a breakthrough that will not only be beneficial to the environment, but will provide longer wear and an odor-free environment throughout the services," said Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., who led the effort to secure federal research money for the project. "This shows that molecular science can find new uses for agricultural commodities that will help farmers and improve our environment at the same time."

Under Thames' direction, Southern Mississippi researchers have developed a monomer, a chemical building block, from an agricultural product — in this case, castor oil — which is built into the chemical base of the paint. The monomer, called a "castor oil acrylated monomer," takes the place of a solvent in the formulation of the paint. That, in turn, dramatically reduces the amount of toxic pollutants given off by water-based paint into the atmosphere.

Conventional paint, Thames said, contains volatile organic compounds (VOCs), which pollute the air and give fresh paint its unpleasant odor. The paint industry has been called upon to reduce VOCs, but has not had the technology to do so.

The new technology will remove the VOCs from the paint, cutting the level of pollutants from, typically, 200-400 grams per liter of paint to as low as three grams.

"The bottom line is this technology uses castor oil, soybean oil or lesquerella oil to allow us to make latex polymers that have wide applications," Thames said. "Not just paints, but inks, adhesives, carpet backings, coating for fibers, coatings for concrete steel, just a huge potential for applications. And we can make these coating systems that have no odor and release no pollutants into the atmosphere."

"I'm excited about this new technology because we're using agricultural products," said Dr. Lester Spell, Mississippi's agriculture commissioner. "We're getting away from those toxic-type ingredients we have in so many products today."

33 More Pa. Farms Approved For Preservation In May

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes has announced that during May, 33 farms, totaling 3,619 acres across Pennsylvania, have been approved for preservation and will remain permanently in agricultural use.

"With the continued support of Gov. Tom Ridge's 'Growing Greener' investment, it's been another fast-paced year for Pennsylvania's farmland- preservation effort — 119 farms totaling 13,703 acres have been approved since January," said Secretary Hayes.

"Pennsylvania has taken the lead nationally by preserving 1,600 farms totaling nearly 195,000 acres since 1989. Fifty-one counties across the commonwealth have answered the preservation call by participating in the Pennsylvania Farmland Preservation Program."

Hayes also noted more than $70 million in county and state funding have been allocated for farmland preservation in the upcoming year.The following is a list of state easement purchases by county, including name, municipality, acres and purchase price:

Adams County:

• Henry and Gailya Fissel, Franklin Township, 39 acres, $41,022.

• Knud Hermansen and Sons, Huntington and Reading townships, 240 acres, $299,255.

Berks County:

• Stephen and Connie Bennetch, Marion Township, 57 acres, $113,000.

• Stephen and Connie Bennetch, Marion Township, 87 acres, $174,600.

• Erwin Green, Longswamp and Maxatawny townships, 53 acres, $106,400.

• Erwin Green, Longswamp and Maxatawny townships, 44 acres, $88,200.

• Earl and Pearl Hoffman, Oley Township, 83.6 acres, $167,200.

• Marlin and Ruth Stoltzfus, Exeter Township, 162 acres, $324,200.

Blair County:

• Kenneth and Debra Bush, Woodbury Township, 115 acres, $114,545.

Bucks County:

• Kenneth and Patricia Worthington, Plumstead Township, 128 acres, $1,377,000.

Franklin County:

• Hissong Farmstead, Peters Township, 145 acres, $239,335.

• Hissong Farmstead, Peters and Montgomery townships, 93 acres, $159,939.

• Marcus and Chester Martin, Montgomery Township, 180 acres, $285,106.

• Ronald and Merilyn Shadle, Peters Township, 90 acres, $150,588.

• Stoner's Hijos Hill Inc., Peters and Montgomery townships, 245 acres, $393,682.

• Rodney and Darlene Stuff, Peters Township, 152 acres, $238,417.

Lancaster County:

• Abram and Sara Zeiset, West Donegal Township, 36 acres, $77,604.

• Abram and Sara Zeiset, West Donegal Township, 36 acres, $85,523.

Lawrence County:

• Dennis and Betsy Musser, North Beaver Township, 99 acres, $99,110.

• Thomas and Frank Telesz, Washington Township, 84 acres, $83,890.

Lehigh County:

• Mary Sue Ubben, Weisenburg and Upper Macungie townships, 248 acres, $695,791.

• Dwight Wanamaker, Weisenberg Township, 55 acres, $136,333.

Luzerne County

• Richard and Betty Thomas, Butler Township, 76 acres, $190,165.

Montgomery County:

• Nan Urb, Douglass Township, 39 acres, $198,287.

• Richard and Merris Hoffman, Upper Hanover Township, 80 acres, $393,194.

Snyder County:

• Harry Lynn and Susan Sanders, Centre Township, 90 acres, $83,463.

York County:

• Rene and Christine deBrabander, Codorus Township, 313 acres, $428,217.

• Paul and Patricia Miller, North Codorus Township, 212 acres, $336,125.

The Farmland Preservation Board also approved preservation of five farms totaling 336 acres in Lancaster and Lehigh counties. Luzerne County also was recognized for preservingits first farm in the Farmland Preservation Program.

For more information on the Farmland Preservation Program, contact the Bureau of Farmland Preservation at (717) 783-3167, or access the Department of Agriculture's homepage through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.pda.state.pa.us.

600 Producers Have Begun Pa. BQA Certification Program; More Training Scheduled

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. — The Pennsylvania Beef Quality Assurance Program recently certified its first group of about 30 beef producers from Chester County and surrounding areas who successfully completed the state's new training and certification program.

This program is funded by the joint efforts of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

According to Wendall Landis, director of Pa. BQA certification, the state's beef producers have demonstrated a strong response and enthusiasm for the program. The number of producers who have completed the first part of the two-part training is approaching 600.

Lancaster and surrounding county producers who did not have the opportunity to participate in the part-one classroom training during Cattle Feeders Day in February will have another opportunity to attend a part-one classroom training scheduled for June 18 at Blue Ball Elementary School in eastern Lancaster County.

The Pa. BQA program trains, certifies, and recognizes beef producers who adopt and maintain BQA guidelines and best management practices. To become certified, producers must complete both parts of the two-part training.

The second part consists of a chute-side hands-on demonstration of quality assurance practices. Certified producers must also sign an agreement outlining the BQA practices they will adopt on their farms and agree to an on-farm evaluation every two years to keep their certification status current.

Certified producers receive a Pa. BQA reference manual, which includes helpful management information and blank record-keeping forms for copy, use and adaptation in the farm operation.

They also receive a certificate of completion, a "Certified Producer" sign emblazoned with the program's blue and gold logo for display on their farm, and ear tags or back tags to identify their cattle as coming from the farm of a "Certified Producer."

With the current climate of concern about food safety and animal health issues here and abroad, and the increasing trend toward brand name beef and source verification, the Pa. BQA Certification Program offers producers a way to be recognized for quality assurance management practices and to identify their cattle for potential market value premiums.

Training and evaluation are handled by extension and industry professionals whose purpose it is to assist producers in taking the necessary steps to ensure the safety and quality of beef.

Part-two chute-side trainings will be scheduled across the state in June and July. Producers who have already completed the part-one classroom training will be notified and the dates will also be publicized.

Producers in Lancaster County and surrounding areas who want to attend the part-one classroom training scheduled for Monday evening, June 18 at Blue Ball Elementary should contact 717-939-7000 for details. The school is located on Ewell Road between Routes 23 and 322 near Shady Maple Smorgasbord east of New Holland.

For more information about the program or the upcoming part-two completion trainings for your area, contact 717-939-7000 or your local extension office.

Preserving Water Resources: Simple Steps To Protect Small Streams

Penn State
Cooperative Extension
Program Assistant

Small streams are treasures. They are the sources of our trout streams and major rivers. They supply clean water and support a variety of plants and animals. However, it is easy to damage small streams — they need our care and protection.

Landowners can enhance and protect streams flowing through their properties by implementing a few inexpensive practices. These practices will reduce flooding and benefit fish, mammals, birds, and other life forms that depend on healthy streams.

The first practice to protect streams is to prevent erosion and sedimentation. Erosion from poorly managed lands and unprotected stream banks contributes large amounts of sediment to streams. Sediments harm aquatic life by covering habitat, choking gills, and raising water temperature (because cloudy water absorbs more heat from the sun than clear water).

Landowners can take steps to prevent any vehicles from fording their streams. Vehicles can destroy streamside vegetation and destabilize stream banks, causing serious erosion problems. If vehicle crossings are necessary, permitted culverts or wooden bridges can minimize erosion. Similarly, domestic animals can damage streams by trampling protective vegetation and wearing down stream banks. Fencing farm animals away from streams helps prevent erosion.

Some landowners unknowingly destroy habitat for fish and other aquatic organisms by removing logs and other woody debris from streams. Research on small streams clearly shows that woody debris benefits aquatic life, including trout. Tree trunks and other large pieces of wood create small dams that delay water flow and reduce erosion and flooding during severe rainstorms.

These dams also create a complex stream channel with series of pools and riffles, which provide habitat for a variety of aquatic organisms. Debris dams also trap leaves, twigs, seeds, and other plant matter that sustain aquatic food chains.

Some property owners believe that straightening stream channels and clearing vegetation from banks will eliminate flooding. On the contrary, these actions merely increase stream velocity, resulting in rampant bank erosion, especially downstream from the straightened area. Meandering stream channels are full of natural pools and riffles that hold fish and provide feeding areas.

Landowners can plant trees and shrubs near streams flowing through open pastures or other areas lacking woody vegetation. A few of the shrubs and trees recommended for streamside planting in Pennsylvania include smooth alder, black willow, red osier and silky dogwood, box elder, black ash, pin and swamp white oak, river birch, sycamore, cottonwood, and silver maple. Streamside vegetation helps shade streams. Shading is important because it keeps water cool. Cooler water holds more oxygen and thus, supports more aquatic life. Streamside trees and shrubs also help control erosion, absorb nutrients, attract terrestrial animals, and provide food to trout and other aquatic organisms when leaves and branches fall into the water.

A final suggestion for protecting streams is to avoid applying pesticides and fertilizers too close to streams. Even minute quantities of some chemicals can gravely harm aquatic plants and animals. Landowners should make prudent use of these products for their own safety, as well as for the health of stream organisms.

In summary, landowners can protect small streams by preventing soil erosion, allowing natural stream channels and accumulation of woody debris, planting streamside trees and shrubs where they are lacking, and being very careful when using fertilizers and pesticides near streams. By following these simple steps, landowners can enhance their streams and ensure the well being of plants and animals that depend on high-quality water.

Maryland Develops Nutrient Management Strategies

Deputy Secretary of Ag Says State Seeks Compliance Through Education Rather Than Enforcement

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — With phosphorus now a major concern of its nutrient management plan, Maryland is working on a variety of solutions aimed at curbing the amount of this nutrient applied to the soil.

Although nitrogen has been the primary basis of nutrient management programs for years, phosphorus has become a concern in some regions because of high levels found in many soils, particularly in areas with concentrated animal operations.

Phosphorus is a nutrient essential to crop growth. However, its accumulation — along with nitrogen — in bodies of water can cause excessive aquatic plant growth leading to the depletion of oxygen in the water, a condition that endangers aquatic animal life.

In Maryland and Pennsylvania, nutrient management plans have centered on the prevention of excessive nutrients entering the Chesapeake Bay.

Maryland nutrient management projects in the works include animal waste handling strategies, development of a phosphorus site index, and the addition of phytase to poultry feed.

Animal Waste Handling Strategies

Maryland Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Brad Powers said part of the problem is corn transported from the Midwest and fed to Maryland poultry. Some of this "imported" phosphorus contained in the corn is not used by the birds and ultimately enters the ecosystem in the form of manure.

According to Powers , one solution to that problem is to ship the manure back to the Midwest on empty return train cars in a form that can be used either as a plant starter fertilizer or animal feed.

Several companies on the Delmarva peninsula are working on technology to convert chicken manure into more easily transportable forms such as pellets or cubes, Powers said.

One of them combines the more fibrous parts of the manure with sweet corn refuse (cob ends, husk, etc.) which can be used as feed.

The Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) is also helping to fund the composting of manure into a bagged, marketable, fertilizer product. At one dairy facility in the state, Powers said that solid parts of the manure are separated out and put through a static composting process.

Work is also being done to turn manure into useable energy, either by burning or "gasifying it."

Powers pointed out one Maryland example of chicken manure being gasified and the energy used to run the same poultry facility where it was produced.

Destruction of the manure by burning to convert it to electricity is a less desirable option, according to Powers .

"It has been our philosophy that the organic matter is too valuable (to destroy)," he said.

For that reason, Powers said he favors technologies that preserve the organic matter in the manure, turning it into a transportable, useable form. Powers said that the state has funded about $2.5 million in projects focusing on alternative uses of animal waste, with about $.5 million remaining.

Phosphorus Site Index

Maryland Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Robert Halman said that the management of phosphorus involves many different factors. In an attempt to account for this complexity in its nutrient management planning, Maryland is developing a "phosphorus site index."

The goal of the phosphorus site index is to take into account the variety of factors associated with phosphorus management at particular locations and use the information to make site-specific recommendations.

Still in the research stage, the index will reflect not only phosphorus levels in the soil in a particular field (or part of a field), but also include soil type, slope, availability of phosphorus in the soil, pH, and proximity to surface water.

According to "Emerging Phosphorus Management Options" a recent publication of the Maryland Office of Resource Conservation, phosphorus can occur in either dissolved or particulate forms. "Using soil tests to indicate when problems may exist from phosphorus buildup incorrectly equates levels above agronomic optimums to environmental impact," the article noted.

In other words, soil testing alone is not enough to show if phosphorus runoff will pose a problem at a given location.

According to Earl Canter of MDA's nutrient management team, because research on the phosphorus site index is ongoing, Maryland will not require animal manure applicators to implement phosphorus-based nutrient management plans until 2005. Individual plans based on nitrogen, however, must be implemented by 2002.

And farmers who use commercial fertilizers must have working nutrient management plans that account for both nitrogen and phosphorus by 2002.

According to Halman, any property in Maryland that exceeds 10 acres and/or a total of eight animal units (one animal unit equals 1,000 pounds) is required to have a nutrient management plan.

Powers acknowledged the potential difficulties involved in the state's enforcement of nutrient management laws.

"MDA clearly believes in compliance through education, not enforcement," he said.

Phytase in Feed

Another means of controlling phosphorus is the addition of the enzyme phytase to animal feeds.

According to Powers , phytase increases the useability to animals of phosphoric acid in feeds. Addition of the enzyme to feed can reduce phosphorus excretions in manure by 25 to 30 percent, he said.

Reduction of overall phosphorus content in feed is another approach that goes hand in hand with the addition of phytase.

Powers summed up the challenges of developing a comprehensive nutrient management plan: "What it boils down to is a balancing act based on inputs and outputs," he said.

Pa. Soybean Board Announces Rules For 2001 Yield Contest

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — As soybean acreage increases each year, so do the number of entries in the Pennsylvania Soybean Yield Contest.

The brochures for the 2001 contest have been printed and mailed to known soybean growers and agribusinesses.

The first prize, in addition to a trophy, is a round-trip air and lodging for two to the 2002 Commodity Classic, Feb. 21-23, 2002, in Nashville, Tenn. Second prize is $500 cash and a trophy; and third prize, $250 cash and a trophy.

Whether being a veteran soybean farmer or a first-time planter, the contest provides information on soybean varieties and the use of chemicals and other practices to maximize yields and produce a profitable crop.

Any bona fide farmer who farms in Pennsylvania and grows five acres or more of soybeans within the boundaries of the state is eligible. Participants must grow nonirrigated soybeans, but they are not restricted on variety, fertilization, spacing, or other cultural practices.

Soybean contest rules follow:

1. Notice of intent to participate must be submitted and postmarked by September 30, 2001.

2. Three (3) acres in one block (ex. 209 ft. x 627 ft. = 3 acres) from a field of at least five acres within the physical boundaries of Pennsylvania shall be selected by the grower. For convenience, the test area may be measured after harvest.

3. A designated representative (of other than the grower) shall a. Measure the test area. b. Be present when the test area is harvested. c. Supervise weighing on state-inspected scales or an approved weight wagon. d. Sign the report.

The designated representative may be a Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) staff person, extension employee, production credit association representative, Farmers Home Administration (FHA) representative, FFA vocational ag instructor, bank ag loan officer, private crop consultant, state/private college agriculture staff member, or a retiree from one of these occupations.

4. Only one entry form per farm will be accepted.

5. There is no charge for contest participation.

6. Moisture content shall be obtained on a state-approved moisture meter.

7. Acre yield will be calculated on the basis of 13 percent moisture.

8. Awards for growers: Participants must complete all required forms provided with the application and meet all other requirements as herein stated to become eligible for awards.

a. The grower who is certified in the contest as having produced the greatest yield per acre in accordance with contest rules will be declared the state yield champion for that year and receive first prize and a trophy.

b. Second- and third-place winners will be recognized with appropriate prizes and trophies.

c. Each contestant producing more than 60 bushels per acre from a plot officially entered and measured will receive an engraved plaque giving membership in the 60-Bushel Club.

9. Publicity: Production practices used by participants producing 60 bushels or more per acre will be publicized at the time county and state winners are announced.

For a contest brochure and/or an application, contact John Yocum at (717) 653-4728 or write to Pa. Soybean Yield Contest, Attn: John Yocum, P. O. Box 308, Landisville, PA 17538.

Prevent a Foot and Mouth Catastrophe

Watch for Signs of Foot and Mouth Disease

Clinical signs of Foot and Mouth Disease (FMD):

Early Signs may include:
- Fever
- Off feed
- Reluctant to move
- Excessive squealing when forced to move

Followed by blisters:
- Just above the hoof and on the heels
- Between the cloven hoofs
- On the snout

If you suspect Foot and Mouth Disease FMD in your herd:

1. Do NOT under any circumstances move any animals off the farm
2. Immediately report suspected case to either the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) or the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA).
   Contacts:
   PDA - Dr. Phil Debok at 717-783-8300
   USDA - Dr. Lynne Siegfried at 717-782-3442
3. A veterinarian especially trained to diagnose foreign animal diseases will come to your farm to make the diagnosis.
4. Government programs are in place to reimburse farmers for the value of their animals sacrificed in the control program.

USDA Appoints Adams To Head Massachusetts FSA

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently named Sandra D. Adams as Massachusetts state executive director for the Farm Service Agency (FSA) State Office.

Adams owned and managed Sage Brook Farms, where her horses won regional and national awards. Before this, she established Stonewall Farms; a sheep, cattle, and nationally recognized Morgan horse breeding operation.

Adams has been manager of the annual award-winning Massachusetts Morgan Horse Show since 1987. She has published articles and produced television and films spots on horse breed promotion and marketing techniques.

University Correspondence Course Focuses On Forestry Basics

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Landowners, farmers and other folks interested in forestry can learn to manage their wood lots for timber products, wildlife and overall forest health by taking a General Forestry Correspondence Course developed by Maryland Cooperative Extension specialists at the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. Registrations are being accepted now for the fall semester.

The General Forestry Correspondence Course provides the basics of forestry, forest ecology and forest health. Studying in the comfort of their home, students learn how to protect trees from insects, diseases and fire, and explore the details of the forestry business, including tax nuances and the sale and harvest of forest products. They can use their own property, a friend's forest or nearby public lands to apply practical exercises in forest management. Ultimately, the course exercises help them develop an actual forest management plan.

The General Forestry Correspondence Course is presented as a notebook of lessons and supplemental readings. Its six units each contain several lessons with questions at the end of each unit. Maryland Cooperative Extension experts at the university's Wye Research and Education Center correct answers and return them throughout the course, so students have constant feedback.

As part of the $150 registration fee, learners receive a General Forestry Correspondence Course text notebook and a separate appendices packed with resources. Supplemental readings provided include A Sand County Almanac, The Woodland Steward: A Practical Guide to the Management of Small Private Forests and American Forests: A History of Resiliency and Recovery. A certificate of completion is awarded when all assignments are completed.

For more information or to register, contact Bob Tjaden or Tawna Mertz at the Wye Research and Education Center, P.O. Box 169, Queenstown, MD 21658; phone: (410) 827-8056; e-mail: rt20@umail.umd.edu or tm177@umail.umd.edu.

Pa. Boar And Ram Performance Testing Under Way

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The annual Boar Performance testing program and the Ram Performance testing program of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center (MAEC) are well under way, according to Glenn Eberly, director.

All 20 boar pens at the center are occupied. The current group of boars includes 39 Yorkshires, nine Durocs, three Hampshires, three Poland China's, three Berkshires, and three Hampshire sired X-breeds.

Eberly said the boars are growing well and will remain on test until the average weight of their pen reaches 250 pounds. After completing the testing period, the boars will be scanned with real-time ultra-sound and will be evaluated for soundness by a committee of producers and swine extension specialists.

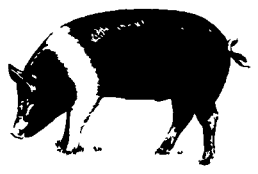
The 26th annual Pennsylvania Performance Tested Boar Sale is scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 15, at 6 p.m. in the Ag Arena on the Penn State campus. The sale date falls during Ag Progress Days.

The 88 rams on test are gaining extremely well, thus far. This group consists of 28 fall-born Dorsets, 21 junior Dorsets, 22 junior Suffolks, nine junior Hampshires, four senior Suffolks, two Shropshires, one Oxford, and one senior Hampshire. After completing their 84-day testing program, the rams will be evaluated for breeding soundness, structural correctness and breed character. They will also be scanned ultrasonically to determine fat thickness and loin-eye area. Final indexes will be calculated based on average daily gain, feed efficiency and fat thickness.

The 23rd annual Performance Tested Ram Sale is scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 4, in Penn State's Ag Arena. The Pennsylvania Sheep Producers Field Day committee is planning a tremendous program for Saturday, Aug. 4 in conjunction with the Ram Sale and Invitational Ewe Sale.

The Meat Animal Evaluation Center is a cooperative effort through Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Penn State, and livestock organizations.

For further information or to request sale catalogs, contact Glenn Eberly, director, MAEC, 651 Fox Hollow Road, State College, PA 16803; phone (814) 238-2527 or (814) 865-5857.



Cattlemen To Address USDA's Faulty Price Reporting

Washington, D.C. — The National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) recently met with USDA officials to address concerns raised as the result of the agency's inaccurate price reports on beef cut-out values.

USDA Secretary Ann Veneman requested a review of the livestock reporting system, which has been reporting inaccurate price reports since its induction April 2.

Lynn Cornwell, NCBA president, noted that beef producers may have used the inaccurate information for six weeks prior to the USDA's announcement earlier this week reporting that the numbers were incorrect.

Thousands of contracts and cattle sales rely on the information in the reports, which were stating lower than market value prices for the sales.

This mistake questions USDA's integrity and threatens producer confidence in the marketplace, according to Cornwell. Potentially, it could cost producers millions of dollars.

According to USDA officials, products that were not quality graded, known as "no-roll," were mistakenly included into prices reported for select and choice box-beef. USDA attributes the error to a software problem.

Among the concerns that will be addressed by NCBA in its meeting with USDA include:

1. USDA's plans to address losses experienced by producers.

2. NCBA's need for assurances and guarantees that future prices reported will be accurate and truly reflective of the market.

3. Information on when the problems started and correct information on prior marketing information to allow producers to accurately define their losses.

4. Assurances that NCBA will be informed of other potential system weaknesses.

NYBIC Trains Meat Managers At Tops Friendly Markets

WESTMORELAND, N.Y. — Over 350 meat and seafood professionals at Tops Friendly Markets attended a Beef College training session sponsored by the beef industry.

In conjunction with the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, Pennsylvania Beef Council, and Ohio Beef Council, the New York Beef Industry Council (NYBIC) coordinated a seminar to teach meat department employees the basics of beef.

The presentation began with a consumer overview, discussing how customers are unfamiliar with anatomy and how retailers need to help them in purchasing the correct cut of beef to suit their needs. Today's consumers only know four cuts: steak, ground beef, chicken breast and pork chops. By helping them to use the right cut of beef, retailers are ensuring a positive eating experience every time.

Additionally, women (the primary meal preparers) are starved for time and it's important that meat department staff members recognize how convenience items can be part of a quick and nutritious meal. The attendees were later invited to try their hands at preparing beef stir-fry and grilled top blade steaks.

With a bite to eat in their stomachs, the session continued with a discussion on beef's power pack of nutrients: zinc, iron, and protein. Finally, the program concluded with a presentation on the components of beef, including a segment on tenderness, marbling, and quality grades.

NFU Asks USDA To Correct Price Reporting System

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In a May 22 letter to U.S. Agriculture Secretary Ann Veneman, the National Farmers Union (NFU) called on the USDA to immediately correct reporting problems in the long-awaited mandatory livestock price-reporting system that began in early April of this year. The NFU alleges that computer program errors in a system that provides transparency for livestock markets has cost producers millions of dollars. The letter also called on USDA to eliminate the department's "3/60 rule," a guideline that according to the NFU, protects the confidentiality of firms but nullifies the intent of the new program and is detrimental to producers.

"We have worked with farmers and ranchers for a long time to create a level playing field for producers trying to receive a fair price for their livestock," said Leland Swenson, president of NFU. "Underreporting by USDA is unacceptable. The error should be corrected immediately, and farmers and ranchers need to be compensated for their losses."

The letter calls for immediate action to rectify alleged erroneous calculations by USDA for boxed-beef prices that have occurred since the beginning of mandatory price reporting. It also encourages the department to compensate producers who have endured losses due to errors in reporting of boxed beef values.

Farmers Union also calls for the immediate elimination of the 3/60 guideline that protects companies' identities when there are fewer than three firms buying livestock in a market or when one firm controls at least 60 percent of the market. The rule is designed to protect confidentiality and proprietary information for firms purchasing livestock but has adversely affected producers by reducing price transparency and limiting the availability of important information.

"The mandatory price reporting program will not work effectively until the 3/60 guideline is eliminated," Swenson said. "In this increasingly concentrated industry, the existence of this rule has led to less disclosure of information than that provided under the previous protocol. The mandatory price reporting system should set us one step forward, not two steps back."

Pa. Businesses Should Apply For Export Awards

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Tom Ridge recently encouraged Pennsylvania businesses to apply for the 2001 Export Excellence Awards.

"We have worked hard over the last six years to make Pennsylvania internationally competitive," Gov. Ridge said. "The Export Excellence Awards are a perfect way to honor those employers who have worked with us to make Pennsylvania a major player on the world economic stage. These businesses should stand up and be recognized for their outstanding efforts."

Pennsylvania is not only a leader among states but also a competitor among nations. Under Gov. Ridge, Pennsylvania has opened 13 trade offices around the world, bringing the total to 17 — more than any other state.

Eligible applicants must produce, manufacture, or assemble a product or provide an exportable service from a registered Pennsylvania business.

Up to eight awards will be presented in the "Agriculture" and "Manufacturing" categories (includes new-to-export, small, medium, and large size or type of company). Two awards also will be presented in the category of "Services" for either an exportable or trade-support company.

Ten additional awards will be given in a new category this year. The "Special" category was created to recognize Pennsylvania companies that have achieved international success that does not reflect in their export sales. This category will be by nomination only from an entity other than the nominee.

Each applicant must submit a copy of the appropriate financial data for the past three years (except for companies that fall under the "new-to-export" and "special" categories), along with a narrative about their business' experience of exporting products.

Applications will be rated using a mathematical formula based on financial data to determine increases in exporting over the past three years. A panel of judges made up of members of the Team Pennsylvania Export Network will review the applications. The judges will focus on company financials, trade activities during 2000 provided in a written narrative, and international success to determine the award finalists.

The Team Pennsylvania Export Network was developed to assist Pennsylvania business with global development and is comprised of a network of trade professionals within 10 regions of the state. Its mission is to enable Pennsylvania firms to expand their sales into international markets and to increase the number of Pennsylvania firms selling their products and services overseas.

All applicants will be notified by the end of July as to their selection. The finalists will be invited to the Governor's Export Excellence Awards on Sept. 25 in Pittsburgh.

Applications must be submitted to the Office of International Business Development, Fourth Floor, Commonwealth Keystone Building, Harrisburg, PA 17120-0225 by 5 p.m. Monday, July 9. For more information or to obtain an application, contact a local Team PA Export Network Regional office at 1-888-PA-EXPORT or call the Office of International Business Development at (717) 787-7190.

Pro Ag Urges New Pricing Formula

PHILADELPHIA — Testifying at a hearing conducted by the U.S. Senate Agriculture Subcommittee on Appropriations, Arden Tewksbury, manager of the Progressive Agriculture Organization (Pro Ag), warned the committee that the milk pricing formula used to pay dairy farmers must be changed in order to assure a continuance of our family dairy farms and to assure the U.S. consumer an adequate supply of domestically produced milk.

The subcommittee hearing, which was chaired by Sen. Arlen Specter from Pennsylvania, was conducted recently in Philadelphia.

The main purpose of the hearing was to explore the wide range of prices paid to dairy farmers and the prices paid by the consumer for dairy products. Tewksbury told the committee that the retail price for dairy products often remain at a high level, even after prices to dairy farmers collapse. The Pro Ag manager informed Sen. Specter that he had talked with 120,000 consumers in the past 26 months and the consumers are baffled regarding the disparities of milk pricing.

The Pro Ag official pointed out some of the discrepancies:

1) In November 2000, the price paid to dairy farmers across the U.S. for milk used to manufacture cheese was $9.57 per CWT (74 cents per gallon). This price was the lowest since November 1977. Even with the low farm price, cheese was selling for $15 for a five-pound block in many supermarkets. Yet, at a store in Meshoppen, the price was $8.50 for a five-pound block.

2) Recently, a Pro Ag survey of butter prices in a Berwick supermarket found a pound of Land-O-Lakes butter selling for $3.44. In another Berwick store, another brand of the same grade butter was selling for $2.29 per pound.

3) In a supermarket in Honesdale, Pro Ag found milk selling for $2.87 per gallon (Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board minimum price). Yet, three feet away, a gallon of Deans milk was selling for $3.25 per gallon. Officials of the supermarket told Pro Ag that Deans was supposedly bottling both gallons of milk.

The Pro Ag manager warns the committee of the increased amount of dairy products being imported into the U.S., especially casein and milk protein concentrate (MPC). Tewksbury told Specter it appears foreign countries have found ways to circumvent the GATT agreements by shipping milk products into the U.S. in concentrated forms. MPC appears not to be regulated by the GATT agreement.

Pro Ag thinks the imports of dairy products are displacing several billions of pounds of domestic milk, causing additional problems for local dairy farmers.

The Pro Ag leader made several recommendations to the committee.

- Investigate the legality of MPC being imported into the U.S.
- Investigate the legality of MPC being used in the U.S.
- Investigate the amounts of casein coming into the U.S.
- Pro Ag strongly recommends there be no imports of dairy products into the U.S. from countries where hoof and mouth disease has been discovered. Furthermore, there should be no imports of dairy products from countries where mad cow disease exists.
- Pro Ag strongly urges the U.S. Congress to adopt a new dairy bill that would price milk to dairy farmers based on the average cost of producing milk as determined by the USDA.
- Pro Ag strongly recommends the reauthorization of the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact. Pro Ag further urges the U.S. Congress to authorize any state, or group of states, to enact dairy compacts.

Fair Time At Kempton

KEMPTON (Berks Co.) — Come out to one of the greatest agricultural fairs of the area. Kempton Country Fair will be June 14-16. The fairgrounds are located at 83 Community Drive, Kempton.

Gates open at 4 p.m. on Thursday, June 14. For the 38th year, the Tractor Pull Contest will be held beginning at 6 p.m. commencing with the 4,500-pound Farm Stock class through the 9,500-pound. For additional information or to register, please call (570) 386-4091.

Take a break and listen to Len and Jen and Sidekicks on the Main Stage with two shows at 6:45 and 8:45 p.m. or the Mud Flaps at 7:45 and 9:45 p.m. Alternatively, if you prefer listen to DJ — JM Sounds in the tent beginning at 7:15 p.m.

Goodtime Amusements is returning with ride specials (only $9 per rider) Thursday from 6 to 9 p.m. and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. Ride all the rides for just one price.

Friday brings more Farm Stock Tractor Pull beginning at 6 p.m. with the 11,500-pound class through the 15,500-pound class. Modified Stock class Street Legal Trucks and Local 4x4 trucks follow the Farm Stock pull.

Enjoy Friday evening listening to the sounds of Tracy Lee and Country on stage at 6:45 and 8:45 p.m. or Leroy Van Dyke at 7:45 and 9:45 p.m.

Come early on Saturday and stay the whole day for the many activities. Everyone will enjoy Lynda Holiday (ventriloquist) at 1 and 3 p.m. Children between 5- and 10-years-old are encouraged to enter the Pedal Tractor Pull Contest on Saturday at 4:30 p.m.

Enter the Hershey Chocolate Cake Contest on Saturday. Cake entries will be received from noon to 2 p.m. with the judging at 2:30 p.m. Contestants can sign up any time before the event during the fair. Fill out the registration form in the Premium Book and return it to a fair official or at the information booth. For a Premium Book, please call (610) 756-6444 or pick one up at local businesses.

Saturday at noon, the Es Liebichst Maedel (Miss Kempton Fair) will be held. For information on the pageant, call (610) 926-6038.

The fair has a petting zoo, many animal exhibits, and livestock shows of dairy, swine, sheep and rabbits. Thursday at 7 p.m. is the 4-H and FFA Sheep Show. Friday at 5 p.m., the Rabbit Show and 7 p.m. the Swine Show. Saturday at 11:30 a.m. the Dairy Show.

Additional entertainments on Saturday at 11 a.m. See the ever-popular Mountain Madness off Road Racing (4x4 figure eight); at 4 p.m. see the 4x4 Drags. At 2 p.m., observe a presentation by Hawk Mountain Sanctuary at the Entertainment Tent. Witness the Dog Agility Demo at 5:15 and 7 p.m.

Saturday evening will be "Coalcracker Chorus" on the Main Stage at 5 p.m. and "Black Hills" on stage at 6:45 and 8:45 p.m. and "Come Sundown" at 7:45 p.m. Can't stop your toes from tapping, visit the Country Line Dance Lessons with Mim at 7 p.m. and Country Line Dancing with Chicken Man at 7:30 p.m. at the Entertainment Tent.

Daily activities include sampling good food, games, rides, petting zoo, competitive exhibits, animals exhibits, plus so much more. Join us this year at Kempton Country Fair.

The grand finale of the Kempton Country Fair 2001 will be the spectacular fireworks display at 11 p.m. on Saturday.

Fair hours are Thursday and Friday from 4 to 11 p.m. and Saturday from 11 a.m. to midnight. There is an admission fee of $5 per person, $3 for children 6- to 12-years-old, and under six free, with free parking. For more information, please call (610) 756-6444.

Cummings Receives Lake Erie Regional Grape Award

NORTH EAST (Eric Co.) — Christine Cummings, research aide at the Fredonia Vineyard Laboratory, received a Special Recognition Award here at the Lake Erie Regional Grape Program Annual Conference in February at the North East Pennsylvania High School.

Cummings is only the fourth person to receive this award, joining the company of Assemblyman William Parment (1992), former Extension Grape Specialist James Kamas (1996), and retired Fredonia Lab Research Support Specialist Harriet Hubbard (1998).

Cummings' current supervisor at Fredonia, Rick Dunst, presented the award.

Proposal To Save Farms Divided By County Lines Heads To Governor's Desk

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Legislation that would improve Pennsylvania's nationally recognized farmland preservation program is now on its way to the governor's desk, said Rep. Sheila Miller (R-129), prime sponsor of the measure.

"The boundaries of farms in Berks County and across the state don't often follow county and municipal boundaries," Miller said. "By making it easier to enroll these multicounty farms in the program, we ensure that this valuable land can be preserved for agricultural use for generations to come."

Under House Bill 101, counties will be able to purchase easements on entire farms which cross county lines, as long as the farmstead or the largest portion of the viable agricultural land is within the purchasing county.

Currently, when a farm is bisected by county boundaries, each county must arrange for the easement purchase on the portion of land within its borders. This is a problem due to counties' different systems for ranking land to be preserved. Counties also differ in the amount of funding they provide for farmland preservation, if they even participate in the program at all.

"This simply doesn't make sense, as it leaves too many whole farms or portions of farms ineligible for state funds to preserve the land," Miller said.

For example, a farmer who has 70 total acres with 40 acres in one county and 30 acres in another would not qualify for any state funds for farmland preservation in either county because state law dictates a minimum of 50 acres to qualify, unless the farm is at least 10 acres in size and is adjacent to other preserved land. Otherwise, the only way the farm could be preserved under current law is by using only county funds.

Miller's bill was amended in the Senate to require land that crosses into another local government unit be included in a proposed agricultural security area as long as the majority of the land is located in the proposed area, and there is no established security area in the local government unit in which the minority portion of the land is located. Farmland must be located in an agricultural security area of at least 500 acres to be eligible for farmland preservation funding.

The House previously amended the bill to eliminate the $10,000 per acre cap on state funds used for easement purchases and to allow farms that have enrolled land in a federal conservation program to have those acres included in the easement purchase program.

"Since 1989, our farmland preservation program has saved more than 195,000 acres of farmland," Miller said. "As the program continues to grow, we must provide a clear and fair method to protect farms that cross local and county government lines."

Note: The elimination of the state's $10,000 per acre cap on easement purchase price will not affect Berks County farms because Berks County has its own $2,000 per acre cap in place.

Farmland Preservation Grows

next to the Cowanesque River.

As of April 19, 191,000 acres of farmland have been preserved in Pennsylvania. According to Ray Pickering, director of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Farmland Preservation, that number represents 1,567 farms in 44 counties.

"The program began in 1989 with a statewide bond referendum to provide the funding. That first year we had a handful of farms," Pickering said. "Now, across the state, there are at least 1,500 farmers on waiting lists to get into the program."

The year 2000 was a banner year for sign-ups with 283 farms approved, totaling 33,000 acres of land.

"Pennsylvania is number one in the nation with the number of farms preserved," Pickering said.

There are farmland preservation boards in 51 counties with a few more counties seeking more information. Continued funding for the program comes from a two cents tax on each pack of cigarettes sold. The Pennsylvania Legislature is also committed to the program, and has allocated millions of dollars. An additional $100 million was made available in a five-year period when Gov. Ridge put his stamp of approval on the "Growing Greener" initiative. Counties can also qualify for more state money by providing matching funds.

Bradford County, which ranks seventh in the state in number of farms, according to the Pennsylvania Statistics Service, is just beginning the process.

Bradford County Commissioner Janet Lewis, a former dairy farmer, agrees that the county should pursue the process. They recently sent a survey form to all farmers in Bradford County to gauge interest.

"We sent out 2,400 surveys and got back 60 from people who wanted to get more information. We took that as a positive — even though there is not a large interest, there is some interest. We are going the next step and will talk with the Department of Agriculture to get more information," said Lewis.

The county commissioners decided to take a proactive approach to farmland preservation rather than a reactive approach.

"Farmland preservation is about preserving open space. We're not yet feeling the development pressure in Bradford County that they are in some of the southern counties, but we're beginning to see the start of it. So it's just like anything else. If we're planning, we want to have a program in place before we need it."

But Lewis cautions that selling development rights should be done with careful consideration.

"My concern is that farmers get into this for the right reason. Forever is a long time and many farmers don't have a retirement plan. They look at their farm as their nest egg for retirement. They need to have a financial planner working with them."

The monetary issue is a stumbling block for many farmers who think that the land values are not yet high enough in some areas of the state to cash in on the program. Pickering estimates that in counties such as Chester, easement purchases could range from $3,000 to $5,000 per acre, while other areas may range between $800 and $1,000. Lancaster County purchases average about $2,300 per acre.

"The best way to look at it, I think, is that you are selling about half the value of your farm, because it's worth about twice as much for development, at least that's the way our appraisal came out," Waldo noted about his farm. "In other areas, it would be worth much more for development. But still, the development potential is real. Even for business and industrial, there's some potential here."

Because the formula weighs the value for agriculture against the value for development, easement purchases for land with a high development value and a lower agriculture value would be higher. But for the Wood family, the money was secondary.

"My son is very interested and very heritage-minded and likes the farm. It fits in with all his plans and my plans," explained Waldo. "When I saw an ad in the paper that applications were going to be accepted, immediately my son and I thought generally it sounded like something we'd be interested in. We didn't want this nice land to be developed. The more we found out about it, the better it sounded. We had a lot of questions, and there are still questions that aren't fully answered, because you can't look into the future."

Although all the paperwork for the Wood family has yet to be submitted to the state board, all the groundwork is in place for final approval.

"We have a contract ready to go," said Kerry Gyekis, Tioga County planner and a key member of the Farmland Preservation Board. "This came together because of many people working together."

Gyekis noted that the board is already accepting applications for the next round.

"We had seven good applicants last year and we have eight this year. I thought it really interesting that you have to be in an agriculture security area. Some of the agricultural townships never did that, so a lot of townships are calling to ask how they can get that done."

Gyekis said that the board first studies the soil types.

"We try to find the best soils and the most acreage of that soil," he said. "The other thing we ask is, is it in an agricultural area that will survive?"

Waldo and Esther, and their son and daughter-in-law Wayne and Kathy, firmly believe in the farm family heritage and are determined to continue farming. Wayne's sons, Nathan and Bradley — although they are too young to make a decision to farm — are the seventh generation to be a part of the Wood's Century Farm, which was purchased in 1860 by Waldo's great-great-grandfather.

Right now, two of the three Wood family farms, or about 318 acres, are enrolled in the program with the third farm high on the list for consideration.

They can only purchase one farm per year. Because the deeds are different, they couldn't put the whole farm in this year. Waldo and Esther are named on two of the deeds and the third is in Wayne and Kathy's names.

The family runs the three farms, which total 525 acres, as a partnership, growing alfalfa and corn on their deep alluvial soils to feed their herd of 60 Holsteins. As an additional enterprise, Wayne is expanding his herd of 80 beef cows, utilizing side-hill pasture from neighboring farms. The pastures around the barn are intensively grazed from April to October for the 40 milking cows.

"You have no idea the potential in pasture until you intensively graze," noted Waldo.

In order to make the 36 acres of pasture more manageable, Waldo has developed his own fence-changing system.

"We change our fence every evening with a four-wheeler," said Wayne. "We don't have a paddock system set up."

For several years, Waldo has been developing an easier fence-changing system and now he can change one quarter of a mile of fence without exiting his four-wheeler.

The system consists of a spool of polywire mounted on the four-wheeler, and a bucket which holds all the posts, clips, and hammer. He carefully threads the polywire around the corners of the four-wheeler and drives along, pounding in posts as needed. Wire is attached to the plastic posts with small strips of vinyl, so it very easily slides up and down the post.

When it's time to take the fence up, he pushes up on the spool of polywire and an attached wheel turns against the four-wheeler wheel, winding up the fence.

"You can go as fast as you want to," said Waldo.

"We've switched to using this for all our fence," said Wayne, who says that even the beef cows stay in the pastures.

Even though they are a small farm, their outlook for the future is optimistic.

"It seems to me that a good manager who can control costs can make a living at farming. It's not easy, and you're not going to have one of the highest incomes of anybody around, but if you like it, I think it's a good living — even for the small dairy," said Waldo.

Said Wayne, "We're happy. It won't change our operation at all and it will help us perhaps compete a little bit. I know a lot of farms are sold and never farmed again, and I think that's a shame."

When it's all said and done, the Woods realize that they have to do what they believe is best for the land.

"We feel the Lord gave us the farm and it really isn't ours, we're just here to take care of it. We don't hold on to possessions too strongly," said Waldo.

Farmland Preservation Bond Referendum Approved

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's program to save farmland from development will get a $150 million boost if legislation approved recently by the state House of Representatives is enacted.

Sponsored by Rep. Raymond Bunt Jr. (R-147), the proposed bill places a $150 million bond referendum on the ballot for approval by the voters. Before appearing on the ballot, the referendum must pass through the Senate and be signed by Governor Ridge.

Ridge spokesman Kevin Shivers said that Pennsylvania already leads the nation in farmland preservation and that the governor is concerned about additional debt that would be incurred by the bonds.

The sale of the the proposed bonds would supplement the $21 million per year from the cigarette tax that is dedicated to farmland preservation. A previous bond referendum, for $100 million, was approved by the voters in 1987 and the bonds were sold by 1998.

"Pennsylvania's farmland preservation program is the number one program of its kind in the nation, protecting 195,000 acres of prime farmland from development since 1989," said Bunt, who chairs the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee.

"We want to make sure it remains successful for years to come, and for that reason we need another dedicated funding source to supplement the cigarette tax revenue and funding from the five-year Growing Greener initiative."

Farmers In Adams County To Discuss New Means To Sell Development Rights

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Officials from the State Bureau of Farmland Preservation will meet with farmers from Adams County and representatives of the Adams County Agricultural Land Preservation Board June 28 to discuss the new Installment Purchase Agreement (IPA) program.

Through the IPA program, the county can leverage its preservation dollars by offering farmers unique tax advantages in return for easements on their farms.

The dinner meeting is open to the public Thursday, June 28, at 6:30 p.m. at the Adams County Agricultural and Natural Resource Center, Gettysburg.

The IPA program allows counties to preserve farmland by offering landowners capital-gains tax deferral. With the new program, farmers can sell easements using agreements that defer all or part of the purchase price for up to 30 years.

Zesty Garlic Shrimp

For the marinade:
- 1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil
- 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped Italian parsley
- 2 teaspoons dried oregano
- 1 1/2 teaspoons minced garlic
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon zest
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes
- 20 jumbo shrimp (about 1 1/4 pounds), peeled and deveined
- 1 tablespoon fine dried bread crumbs

To make the marinade: In a medium bowl whisk together the marinade ingredients

Place the shrimp in a large, resealable plastic bag and pour in the marinade Press the air out of the bag and seal tightly Turn the bag to distribute the marinade, place in a bowl and refrigerate for 30 minutes to 1 hour

Remove the shrimp from the bag and discard the marinade Thread the shrimp onto skewers, either one per skewer as an hors d'oeuvre or five per skewer as an appetizer Sprinkle the bread crumbs evenly over the shrimp Grill over Direct Medium heat until just opaque in the center and firm to the touch, 4 to 6 minutes, turning the skewers once halfway through grilling time Serve warm

Makes 4 to 20 servings

Paradise Grilled

For the glaze:
- 3/4 cup fresh orange juice
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 1 tablespoon fresh lime juice
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 4 slices fresh pineapple, about 1/2 inch thick each
- 1 teaspoon cracked dried green peppercorns or cracked black peppercorns
- 4 scoops vanilla ice cream

To make the glaze: In small saucepan combine the glaze ingredients and whisk until smooth Bring to boil over medium-high heat and cook until thickened, 1 to 2 minutes Keep the glaze warm or reheat when ready to serve

Season both sides of the pineapple slices with the peppercorns Grill over Indirect Medium heat until well marked, 6 to 8 minutes, turning once halfway through grilling time. Serve each pineapple slice with a scoop of ice cream and some of the glaze drizzled over the top.Makes 4 servings

Pantry Pork Chops

For the marinade:
- 1/4 cup plus 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- 3 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
- 1/2 teaspoon light brown sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon chopped fresh rosemary
- 1/4 teaspoon kosher salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 4 pork rib chops, about 1 1/4 inches thick each

To make the marinade: In a medium bowl whisk together the marinade ingredients.

Place the chops in a large, resealable plastic bag and pour in the marinade. Press the air out of the bag and seal tightly. Turn the bag to distribute the marinade, place in a bowl and refrigerate for 20 to 30 minutes Remove the chops from the bag and discard the marinade

Sear the chops over Direct High heat for 6 minutes, turning once halfway through searing time Continue grilling over Indirect Medium heat until the juices run clear, 6 to 8 minutes. Season with salt and pepper. Serve warm

Makes 4 servings

PASSION FOR GRILLING

"If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen," the saying goes, and that's what millions of Americans with barbecue grills will be doing as summertime approaches.

When all the elements come together on a warm evening—the background sounds of sprinklers going and kids splashing in the swimming pool—it's time to fire up the grill for backyard barbecues, neighborhood parties and holiday cookouts.

From the chef who's barely flipped a burger to the local barbecue guru, grilling offers a wide variety of recipe possibilities from fast and delicious weekday meals (Pantry Pork Chops and grilled pineapple with vanilla ice cream) to weekend entertaining (Zesty Garlic Shrimp and Warm Beet and Onion Salad).

There's something about grilling that draws us back to paradise and sets the world right again. This is the exact passion for grilling that will be sending millions of Americans outside to their backyards this summer.

Warm Beet and Onion Salad

Warm Beet and Onion Salad

- 2 medium golden beets with leafy tops, about 2 1/2 inches in diameter each
- 2 medium red beets with leafy tops, about 2 1/2 inches in diameter each
- Extra-virgin olive oil

For the dressing:
- 1 medium orange
- 1/3 cup extra-virgin olive oil
- 2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh basil
- 1 teaspoon minced garlic
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 1 large red onion, cut into four 1/2-inch slices
- 2 hearts romaine lettuce

Trim the leafy tops from the beets, leaving about 1/2 inch attached; reserve the tops. Leave the root ends intact Scrub the beets under cold water Lightly spray or brush with olive oil Grill over Indirect Medium heat until tender when pierced with the tip of a knife, 1 to 1 1/2 hours depending on size, turning once halfway through grilling time Remove from the grill and allow to stand until cool enough to handle. Trim the ends from the beets and discard. Rub off the skins. Cut the beets into 1/4- to 1/2-inch slices and place the red beets and the golden beets in separate bowls (to keep the red beets from dyeing the golden beets red).

To make the dressing: Wash and dry the orange. With a zester, scrape off 1 tablespoon of zest. Alternatively, use a vegetable peeler to remove enough strips of zest to total 1 tablespoon when finely chopped. Reserve the zest.

Cut the remaining skin and white pith from the orange and, working over a separate medium bowl, separate the orange into sections, letting the sections and any juice fall into the bowl. Add the reserved zest and the remaining dressing ingredients to the orange sections, including pepper to taste. Gently stir to combine

Lightly brush the onion slices with some of the dressing and grill over Direct Medium heat until tender, 10 to 12 minutes, turning once halfway through grilling time Remove from the grill and allow to cool slightly, then separate into rings

Rinse the reserved leafy tops of the beets under cold water Select the smallest, most tender leaves and place with the romaine lettuce in a large bowl. Add half of the dressing and toss Divide the lettuce mixture among four salad plates. Top with the beets and the onion rings and drizzle on the remaining dressing. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Makes 4 servings

The Griller's Toolbox

If you love the sport, you gotta have the right equipment. Here's a checklist of the basics and a few handy add-ons you might want, too:

ESSENTIALS

WIDE SPATULA: Burgers, chicken pieces, steaks and veggies take a turn for the better with a wide metal spatula.

GRILL TONGS: For turning sausages and franks, but also scallops, shrimp, tortillas/pitas.

MEAT FORK: For lifting large roasts and whole birds once they're done cooking. Also helps with carving.

GRILL BRUSH: Brass bristles resist rust and won't scratch porcelain enamel. Steel brushes are better for cast-iron grates.

BASTING BRUSH: We recommend natural boar bristles (nylon bristles will melt if they touch the cooking grate) and a long handle. Always wear a mitt when basting, in case of flare-ups.

BARBECUE MITTS: Long-sleeve, flame-resistant mitts protect your hands and forearms. Use two when lifting roasts.

MEAT THERMOMETER: Invest in a quality one. Most are a probe you stick into the center of the meat for a quick read and cannot be left in the meat. Others can be left in—the probe is attached to a wire that runs outside the grill. These usually have an alarm that sounds when the food reaches the desired temperature. The latter saves on guesswork (and money) when you want to get dinner right.

CLEANING TIP: Wash tools with hardwood handles by hand to preserve the wood finish. Wash natural-bristle basting brushes by hand. Use plenty of hot, soapy water to wash oils out and rinse well. Smooth the bristles and allow to air-dry completely.

NICE ADDITIONS

- A super-wide spatula designed for turning whole fish.
- Skewers make turning small foods quick and easy. Soak wooden/bamboo ones for 30 minutes before loading them.
- A vegetable wok/grill topper makes grilling small and delicate vegetables easy.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

Sad. So sad.

Despite the season's early dryness, the countryside is lush with spring growth. Bushes in the fencerows have covered their scraggly branch skeletons with foliage, while early wildflowers bloom at their feet.

A tunnel has formed where the field road passes through the small woodlot, as oaks and hickory spread leafy limbs in a green tangle. Enroute to harvest haylage for the cows, the forage chopper and field trucks simply disappear into the dark thickness, to magically reappear climbing the grade of the distant fields.

Sad. Frustrating, too.

Contoured strips wrap around our rolling hills, the early-cut rye stubble now straw-colored, pinstriped with green rows of baby cornstalks. Alfalfa stubble is regreening after the first cutting, enticing the return of this year's early and destructive alfalfa weevil infestation. These costly bugs devour lush alfalfa and reduce a highly-nutritious crop feed to worthless stems. So, along with the usual crunch of spring field work, The Farmer (and most of our alfalfa growing neighbors) is strategizing bug battles in the alfalfa stands.

Not even buggy warfare detracts from the glorious beauty of the early perennial blooms, as the iris in the borders burst into full pink and yellow and purple glory. Their majestic, yet fragile, blossoms combine with the white and pink peony blooms waving above their sturdy, tall stems, both right on time for traditional Memorial Day remembrance bouquets.

Sad. Frustrating. Feeling helpless.

Enroute to a bank branch in one of our nearby small towns, I was almost stopped short by a dramatic, stark change in the landscape. Tall trees loom over a particular farmstead, usually not noticeable because of its location tucked among the green hills. But, on this day, the house and barn seem strangely lonely, huddled beneath a green canopy.

Because outside of that small circle — a house, a barn, a few old trees — the green is gone. What was once a lovely pasture with cavorting horses, what was once a hillside planted to corn and hay and soybeans, now more resembles a battleground. Not an alfalfa weevil battleground, though, because this ground will never again see alfalfa, nor corn, wheat or soybeans, but rather lawns and landscaping.

Bulldozers, earthmovers, trucks, a battery of heavy-duty equipment have, in short order, reduced this pastoral scene for the moment to scarred and barren hills. Imminent conquering of this once-productive farmland by "progress" had been well advertised. Still, the starkness of the barn and house huddled there, devoid of their purpose in the sea of dry earth, flooded me with a sense of loss.

Sad. So sad.

Memorial Day. Time of remembrance of wars and battles and lives lost in defense of our beautiful, productive country. Yet we continue to squander the very ground our veterans fought to defend, vanquishing our own precious, irreplaceable land with earthmovers, pillaging in the name of progress.

How many more acres will be destroyed in the progress wars before the next Memorial Day weekend rolls around? How many more rolling hills of corn and hay and soybeans will go under the blade of the bulldozer? How many more prime examples of urban sprawl will replace cows munching their way across a pasture and food crops stretching to the horizons?

Farming is an endless battle — against cold and heat, wet and dry, life and death, economic inflation against 40-year-ago commodity prices. But the final battle is the loss of land itself, sliced by earthmovers, never to grow again.

Our flag is out for Memorial Day and in remembrance of all those — living and dead — who served and defended our country and our freedom. And it's also out in personal tribute to the battle we lose ground — literally — in every day. Our lifeblood. Our land.

Ours to protect. Ours to lose.

We must win this battle for future generations.

And make them glad. So glad that we did.

Eicher Indian Museum Shop Presents Herb Program

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Kathy Lesher, known locally as the "Herb Lady" will be talking about "The Versatility of Herbs" on Sunday, June 3, at the Eicher Arts Center starting at 2 p.m. The free program, open to the public, is sponsored by the Eicher Indian Museum Shop located in the Tom Grater Ephrata Park, Cocalico Street, Ephrata.

Her talk will clarify the many differences in herbs. Lesher said, "Herbs can be incorporated in so many ways into our daily lives. We can cook with them, treat minor health discomforts, freshen our homes, repel insects, learn about our past from them, and even craft with them. Plus, we can all gain enjoyment and tranquility from walking through the herb garden."

Herbs are wonderful plants to attract butterflies and hummingbirds to the garden.

The possibilities of herbs are endless. During her program, Lesher will be sharing many of these possibilities.

She will show many of the plants she grows and offer them for sale after her talk.

Lesher will hand out recipes using herbs such as Creamy Mint Carrots, Sage Tea Bread, Rice Salad with Cilantro Dressing, Rosemary Roast Chicken and for the sweet tooth, Oatmeal Apple Muffins and Monster Cookie Balls, which both incorporate the herb stevia in them.

Lesher will also make pesto from fresh herbs to mix with pasta for participants to sample.

Another treat will be Navajo Sage Bread made by Ruth Rogers, which will be served during refreshment time. The wheat flour and sage mixture as well as herb soup mixtures can be bought at the Eicher Indian Museum Shop.

Kathy Lesher and her husband Jesse are the owners of Deer Farm located north of Adamstown on Route 222. Their business started eight years ago in a refurbished chicken coop in the rear of their historic Tudor home.

After two years, they expanded into a greenhouse and barn where they grow more than 300 varieties of potted herbs. They use the barn as the gift shop area as well as offering workshops in it every month. They are a three season business, beginning in the spring with plants, many of which are of unusual varieties. In the summer, they move to growing and harvesting by filling the barn with dried flowers and herbs used in herbal crafting. They shift to fresh greens at Christmas, helping their customers decorate their homes with wreaths, swags and centerpieces, all handmade at Deer Creek Farm.

For more information, call the Eicher Indian Museum Shop at (717) 738-3084, or Kathy Lesher (610) 775-4504.

Grill More Vegetables

Many vegetables can be grilled simply by tossing them in a small amount of oil and grilling them two- to six-inches from the heat source. Season as desired.

Thin vegetables are grilled closer to the flame, thicker or slower cooking vegetables farther from the flame so they brown more slowly and will cook thoroughly.

Some root vegetables like carrots and beets may be parboiled just before grilling to assure complete cooking and tenderness.

Try some of these vegetables on the grill: thick slices of potato; sweet potato; eggplant; zucchini; all kinds of summer squash; leeks; and peppers and onions.

Do You Suffer From Fibromyalgia?

When I was introduced to New Image I was 50 pounds over weight and suffered from fibromyalgia I was so depressed and in pain the majority of the time I was taking steroids and four other medications, one of which made me so 'groggy' I could hardly get out of bed and another gave me ulcers I began taking New Image secretly because I thought my family would make fun of me After a month, I discovered I had lost eight pounds and seven inches Wow! Then it dawned on me, I was feeling better, the depression and pain were gone In two months I was off all medications "I feel SUPERIFIC!" Now two years later I have lost 43 pounds and 30 inches Thank you New Image for giving me a new life again Judy Swift - Mt Washington, KY

Juniata County Holds 25th Anniversary Dairy Princess Pageant

MIFFLINTOWN (Juniata Co.) — The Walker Grange Hall, Mexico, was the site of a special dairy princess pageant, May 6, celebrating 25 years of dairy promotion in Juniata County. At the pageant, Heather Gray was crowned the 2001-2002 Juniata County Dairy Princess.

Heather is the 17-year-old daughter of Lee and Kim Gray of Port Royal. She is a senior at Juniata High School where she is a member of the National Honor Society. She is active in 4-H and works part time at Annlick Farm Supply.

Heather informed the audience about lactose intolerance in her prepared speech. Her skit was on "How Milk Travels" from the cow into various dairy products and on to the consumer.

Sara Hoover, the 17-year-old daughter of Thomas Hoover and Brenda Hoover, Port Royal, was crowned the Juniata County Alternate Dairy Princess. Sara's speech focused on the "History of Milk" and her skit was with "Betsy, the Cow" which showed children where Betsy's milk goes when it leaves the tank.

Dairy misses, maids and ambassadors were introduced. They are as follows: Misses include Brittany Hoover, 5, daughter of Thomas Hoover and Brenda Hoover, Port Royal; Shelby Long, 6, daughter of Stephen and Cynthia Long, Mifflin; Bianca Zimmerman, 6, daughter of Dr. Darwin Zimmerman, Mifflin; Hannah Ritzman, 8, daughter of James and Tambra Ritzman, Thompsontown; and Kallye Faulkner, 10, daughter of James and Pat Faulkner, Port Royal.

Maids are Ashley Harshbarger, 12, daughter of Sheldon Harshbarger and Ann Harshbarger, Mifflintown; Jada Faulkner, 15, daughter of James and Pat Faulkner, Port Royal; and Rachel Gray, 15, daughter of Lee and Kim Gray, Port Royal. Ambassadors are Tyler Long, 4, son of Stephen and Cynthia Long, Mifflin; Mark Love, 7, son of Dennis and Heidi Love, East Waterford; Brad Diffenderfer, 10, son of Brian and Karen Diffenderfer, Mifflintown; Jeremy Hoover, 11, son of Thomas Hoover and Brenda Hoover, Port Royal; Craig Ballie, 12, son of Craig and Nancy Baillie, Thompsontown; Ryan Diffenderfer, 12, son of Brian and Karen Diffenderfer, Mifflintown, Luke Hoover, 13, son of Thomas Hoover and Brenda Hoover, Port Royal; and Turner Swartz, 13, son of Andrew and Robin Swartz, Port Royal.

During the special 25th anniversary pageant, former dairy princesses were recognized. Those in attendance were Lou Ann Hoffman (Davidson) 1978, Denise Love (Knepp) 1980, Karen Shertzer (Diffenderfer) 1986, Marjorie Shearer (Swartz) 1987, Shelly Harshbarger, 1988, Melissa Adamire (Delancey) 1991, Anita Faulkner (Palm) 1992, Rebecca Woodward (Wilson) 1993, Melissa Hostler (McKee) 1994, Judy Geissinger 1997, Jessica Bailor 1998, and Bobbi Jo Dressler 2000. Other dairy princesses to wear the crown in Juniata County were Mary Ruth Delbaugh, Cathy Simonton (Civello), Jackie Stoner (Wilt), Sally Hoover (Lizardi), Ruth Ryan (Showalter), Angie Colyer, and Melissa Imes (Rardin).

Special entertainment was given by Lou Ann Davidson who sang "When I Get Carried Away" and "Let's All Go Down to the River." Other music was given by Joyful Harmony who sang "Calm This Storm for Me" and "Jesus Hold My Hand."

Special recognition was given to honored guests who included Pennsylvania State Dairy Princess, Melinda Sue Wolfe, retired executive director, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Servives, Inc., Jan Harding, and the current executive director Junia Isiminger.

An ice cream dessert bar followed the program.

Booking arrangements for dairy promotions should be made by contacting Cindy Long at 436-9252.

As a special 25th anniversary fund raiser, the Juniata County Dairy Promotion is asking for dairy recipes for a new cookbook. Recipes should be from Juniata County residents and sent to Karen Shearer, R.R. 1, Box 481, Port Royal, PA 17082, by June 15.

Cookbooks can be ordered by contacting Karen, and if ordered by June 1, will receive $1 off the listed price of $12, and will be available at the Juniata County Fair in September.

Bone Up On Osteoporosis

Did you know that almost 40 percent of women in their 60s have osteoporosis and more than 75 percent of women over 80 have it?

If you didn't know that, you're not alone. According to the National Osteoporosis Foundation, osteoporosis and low bone mass affects an estimate 28 million Americans.

However, most women don't even know they have the disease, let alone seek treatment. Many women believe that if they simply watch their diet and exercise regularly, they won't be affected. However, diet and exercise may not be enough to prevent osteoporosis from striking.

Osteoporosis is a silent disease that gradually weakens bones, making them increasingly fragile and more likely to break from minor injury. In fact, in its early stages, osteoporosis can strike without any warning signs. Many women don't realize that height loss, development of stopped posture or some broken bones are consequences of the disease.

The most accurate method of determining a woman's risk for osteoporosis is a bone mineral density test, which is quick, easy and painless. Medicare now reimburses bone mineral density testing for eligible beneficiaries 65 and older, making the tests more accessible than ever before. Yet, despite the availability of the test and Medicare coverage, only a relatively small number of women with osteoporosis have been diagnosed and treated.

Who is at risk?

Women who have gone through menopause (whether as part of the natural process of aging or due to early removal of ovaries) may be at risk. Other factors that contribute to risk include:

Heredity

- A family history of osteoporosis.
- A thin or petite build.
- Caucasian or Asian descent (although these groups are at greater risk, osteoporosis can affect women of all ethnic backgrounds).

Decreased estrogen levels

- During or after menopause.

Medications

- Steroids (e.g., for asthma or arthritis).
- Excess thyroid hormone.

Lifestyle

- Smoking.
- Too much caffeine.
- Too much alcohol.
- Lack of physical activity.

Osteoporosis is a silent disease that gradually weakens bones, making them increasingly fragile and more likely to break.

Ida's Notebook

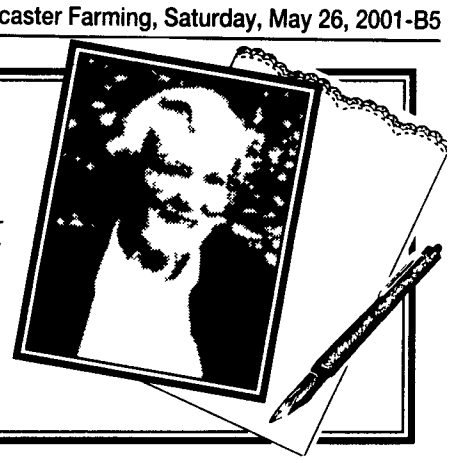
Ida Risser



I just read my diary of May 50 years ago and was struck by many things that are different from my life today. We had a 6-month-old baby boy and a 2½-year-old girl too. They kept me busy in addition to a big garden. There were no automatic washer or clothes dryer in our home and so all of the clothes were hung outside on a line.

I'm amazed at the cleaning that I did regularly. The floor was scrubbed and the linoleum waxed, the kitchen woodwork was washed and the whole upper floor cleaned every week. In addition to that, I even washed the porches.

We held a square dance party at our home every year and made eight-quarts of ice cream in a hand-cranked freezer. The barn had to be cleaned and hay bales arranged for sitting. At this time, my husband did some square dance calling.

If I make bread now, I use the bread machine that our daughter gave us. But then, I actually made it by hand. We had a stove in the kitchen that had to have the pipe cleaned regularly. My parents sold eggs for us from the few dozen hens that we kept over the tobacco stripping room.

We got $137 for the tobacco that we sold that year. And, I sold a year's supply of old newspapers for 10 cents. My husband hauled his father's tobacco to Lancaster and after he unloaded it, he was told it was too wet and he had to reload it. He too worked very hard and he still does.

Our 2-year-old girl helped me to freeze poke by stripping off the leaves. This plant is similar to asparagus which we now have an ample supply of in our garden. She helped plant and hoe in the garden and even enjoyed simply walking through the garden and looking at the growing plants. Things certainly have changed since 1951.

What Is Growing In My Grass?

KEM MIRSKY
Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Rainy weather and cool temperatures can make more than just the grass grow in your lawn. These conditions also often result in the appearance of lawn mushrooms in a range of sizes and colors.

These mushrooms, which are the spore-producing structures of various kinds of fungi, are mostly harmless to plant life. In many cases, the fungus itself, which is primarily below ground, is actually beneficial because of its role in breaking down organic matter and releasing nutrients necessary for plant growth. Many of these mushrooms appear because of the presence in the soil of old tree roots, stumps, or buried wood from home construction.

If it is necessary to get rid of the mushrooms for either aesthetic or safety reasons, simply pick and discard them as soon as they appear. Digging up and removing any decaying wood buried in the soil may also help. Fungicides are not effective, as most of the mycelium, the part of the fungus that produces the mushrooms, is too far below ground level to be accessible to chemical controls.

Lancaster County Hosts Farm Women Rally

State officers included, from left, Ann Diller, Lancaster, state treasurer; Becky Swallow, Somerset County, state first vice president; Catherine Schott, Lebanon County, state president; Mary Fizz, Berks County, second vice president; and Sharon Engle, Franklin County, state secretary.

State directors, from left, were Emma Spencer, Huntingdon County; Martha Reed, Dauphin County; Treva Whorl, York County; and Joanne Zane, Cambria County.

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The "B's" of spring had members of the Society of Farm Women of Pennsylvania thinking of butterflies, birds, buds, and blossoms at their 36th spring rally on Wednesday at Yoder's restaurant.

The theme, the "B's" of spring, entered into many aspects of the program, from the designs on the hand-made favors to the musical selections to the keynote speaker's address.

Approximately 580 women from 15 counties of the commonwealth gathered for the spring rally, a meeting held each spring in rotating locations.

Barbara Nissley, Lancaster County president, welcomed the group before the group singing, a hallmark of farm women meetings. Robert Kettering, pastor of the Lititz Church of the Brethren, together with S. Joan Hershey presented the devotions and program.

Hershey opened the presentation with the oft-repeated phrase "hats off to you," as she congratulated the women on being women of priority and excellence. "Excellence is not just an exterior standard but an internal motivation to do all things well," she said. "You are also women of vision, you have the ability to see with the heart."

Kettering both sang and played the piano during his program, which he titled "The Sounds of Music." The song selections were interspersed with poems and prose with "B's" in the lyrics.

During the devotional time Kettering used the hymn "My Life Flows On," and spoke of the way familiar songs bring comfort and relief. Pointing out that music speaks in a special way to our souls, he interspersed the lyrics of the hymn with devotional thoughts.

Keynote speaker was Lancaster attorney Madelyn Nix, who serves on numerous boards in the community which include the Lancaster Housing Opportunity Partnership, Lancaster Rotary, and Goodwill Industries.

Nix shared her thoughts, observations, and experiences with the "theme of encouragement, hope, support, and love," said Nix. The alphabet formed the framework for Nix's speech as she presented her ideas.

"A" for example, was for "age, not a deterrent to accomplishing anything," she said. "You have only just begun."

"B" stood for "Beginnings. Whatever happened to you yesterday, there isn't a thing in the world you can do about it. Tomorrow is not promised to you. Live in the moment."

"Commitment" was the word for "C," as Nix remembered how her mother instilled work ethic values in her as she grew up. She continued on with the entire alphabet, sharing life experiences throughout.

Each society brought handmade crafts for the door prizes. The 600 favors were made by Barbara Nissley and several "ladies in their eighties" who aided her.

Special music, accompanied trumpet playing, was provided by John Hess, son of a former Farm Women Society county president. He was joined by a 7-year-old member of his choir, who sang several selections.

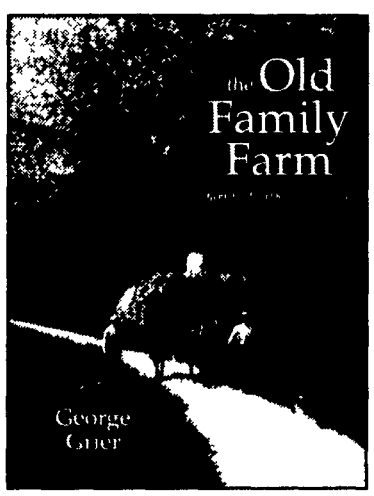
This year's Farm Women tour, May 6-13, 2002, will be to the Tulip Festival in Holland, Michigan. A tour to a national magazine headquarters, the Longaberger Basket Company, a wooden shoe factory, the national railroad museum, and windmill island are a few items on the itinerary.

History Preserved In 67 Stories In 'The Old Family Farm'

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

If you are interested in reading about farm life 100 years ago, the 67 stories and 135 pictures in George Grier's "The Old Family Farm — A Look at Farm Life 100 Years Ago" should satisfy your curiosity.

Although the narration is fictional it is a history-based book, drawn from the interviews of 60-80 people ages 80-100 years old.



The pictures, many of which are 100 years old, came from library books, museums, historical societies in Pennsylvania and Maryland, and farm families who handed down the pictures from generation to generation.

The storyline follows the life, adventures, and discoveries of "Young George," a boy growing up on his grandfather's farm in 1894.

A "preamble" to each story precedes the sketches that describe Young George's adventures and learning experiences as he learns about horses, equipment, family life, town life, and traditions.

Chapters include "A Visit From Huckster Sam," "Saturday Night Baths," "The Baby Chick," and "The Ice House," among other educational accounts. The story follows Young George's life from him toddling behind his father to the barn to his wedding and move into the little white house where he was born.

The pictures, many of which are 100 years old, are from museums, historical societies in Pennsylvania and Maryland, and farm families.

In "A Mother's Day," Grier writes about women's contributions to farm life. "Mama never got off the farm except maybe once a year to town or to a funeral or to a grange picnic," according to the narrator.

Since springtime meant nests of "setting hens," it was Young George's chore to search for the hidden nests and report his findings. Later in life he would learn about corduroy roads, telephones, and tractors.

Personal Experience

"I grew up in in most of the time period described in the book, so most of the things I've been through," said Grier, who grew up on a family farm in Harford County, Maryland and still lives on a farm. "It's partly biographical.

"I wanted to do it because the people I interviewed were older," he said. I felt it was time to get their stories and pictures before that generation is gone. The purpose was to get it in writing."

"Farms are disappearing and with that will go some of the old life that people used to know," he said.

Grier personally knew most of the interviewees. Each taped interview lasted two to three hours. The book took two years to write and six months to find the appropriate pictures. So far, 2,000 copies of the book have been printed.

Grier "thought about it for along while," before taking on the project, which is his fourth book.

He has also completed publications which recount the history of the Carroll County Farm Museum, a Grier family genealogy, and a biography that includes his World War II experience in Europe which he wrote for the grandchildren.

Drawing on experience from writing magazine articles and news releases while he served in county government, "writing just came naturally," he said.

Retired farmer George Grier, who grew up on a family farm and lives on a farm today,The book is unique, said Grier, because it features short stories, old pictures and an open, interesting layout.

The book is unique, said Grier, because it features short stories with pictures. The publication also has an open, interesting layout with the extensive research and pictures serving as supports.

In addition to face-to-face interviews, Grier pored over old farming books in numerous libraries, where he also acquired a few pictures.

"The book will be of interest to people whose parents were farmers, people who are farming now and those desiring to preserve rural living," said Grier.

Book Distribution

Several Pennsylvania and Maryland 4-H clubs are selling the book, which came out March 1, as a fundraiser. Grier is also working to put the book in libraries, historical societies, extension service, museums, bookstores, and internet sources.

Additionally he hopes to have the books introduced into school systems as part of the history curriculum.

If the publication is not available in your area, write to Family Farm Books, 2307 Uniontown Road, Westminster, MD 21158. The cost is $14.95 plus $1.30 for shipping.

Delmarva Chicken Festival Adds New Attractions

GEORGETOWN, Del. — After 53 years, the Delmarva Chicken Festival continues to add new attractions. The 2001 festival will take place on June 15 and 16 at Cypress Park in Pocomoke City, Md.

Along with the standard attractions that have made the festival a fun, family outing for more than five decades, this year's event will include first-time activities including a tug of war, chicken "splash," and scenic cruises on the Pocomoke River.

The tug of war is open to teams of either men or women. A team may have up to eight tuggers and each tug will last a maximum of two minutes. Tug of war finals will take place on the festival grounds at 7 p.m. on Saturday, June 16.

Also on Saturday, a "chicken splash" will be held on the Pocomoke River. More than 900 plastic "chicks," each sponsored by an individual, will be dropped into the river and will "swim" between the two Pocomoke River bridges. The "chick" that first crosses the finish line will be declared the winner and its sponsor will receive the $400 prize.

For those looking for a relaxing way to spend an hour, there will be scenic cruises aboard the Miss Rai, a replica of an old-fashioned riverboat. Cruises will leave from the dock in Cypress Park between 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. on June 15 and 16. Tickets can be purchased on site at $5 each for ages 12 and up and for $2.50 each for children under 12 years.

Among entertainment acts making a first appearance at the Delmarva Chicken Festival are YTT, an oldies band that will perform at a festival "preview" on Thursday evening, June 14; Hotcakes, a top 40 band from Virginia Beach, Va. that will play on Friday evening, June 15; and Midnight Country Express, a country band that will close the festival on Saturday, June 16. Sherman Shorebird, the mascot of the Delmarva Shorebirds, will make his first festival visit on Saturday, June 16, at noon.

New attractions will join long-time favorites such as an arts and crafts show, home and trade show, Delmarva's giant fry pan, and carnival rides and games.

The Delmarva Chicken Festival is open to the public and admission is free. For additional information, contact Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. at (800) 878-2449 or (302) 856-9037 or the Pocomoke City Chamber of Commerce at (410) 957-1919.

Auction To Benefit Birth Center

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Birth Care and Family Health Services will hold its ninth annual benefit auction on Saturday, June 2, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Hoffman Building, Solanco Fairground, Route 472, South Quarryville.

Featured at the sale will be handmade Amish and contemporary quilts and wallhangings, folkcrafts, new handcrafted furniture, lawn furniture and windmills, farm supplies and equipment, building supplies, vinyl and carpet remnants, tools, housewares, shoes, and jewelry. Trees, shrubbery, landscaping and bedding plants and hanging baskets from many area greenhouses and nurseries will be sold. Original artworks from some of Lancaster County's best known artists have been donated. Collectible Winross and Ertl trucks will be sold at noon. Certificates for goods and services, restaurants, museums, and recreational facilities will be auctioned throughout the day.

Some special items include a Holland gas grill that is guaranteed not to flare up, Candyland Playhouse, Shaker style three-door cherry china hutch, new Mission Style oak furniture, oak drop leaf coffee table, hickory bentwood rocker, wooden swing set, trampoline, wooden windmill, octagonal picnic table, calf hutch, farm wagon, Valley Road child's speeder wagon, child's platform rocker and many other useful and unique items. An original Susie Riehl watercolor and spectacular painted woodcarving by Dan Esh will be offered for sale.

Children's activities are scheduled throughout the day. Amish buggy rides, "Calamity Kate" the clown, and the Martin Appliance train delight the little ones. Great food such as chicken barbecue, homemade French fries, garden fresh strawberry pie and scrumptious baked goods will be sold.

Preview the sale from 8-8:30 a.m. and enjoy free homemade donuts and coffee.

Serving the community for 22 years, Birth Care is Pennsylvania's first birth and women's health care center. With offices in Quarryville and New Holland, Birth Care provides affordable midwifery birthing services, well-woman and well-child care. Proceeds of the benefit sale support the center's services to needy families and crisis pregnancies.

For information or donations, contact Maren or Rita at (717) 786-4010 or 786-5506. Donations are fully tax deductible. Visa, Mastercard, Discover and pre-approved checks accepted. Auction services coordinated by Enos Petersheim (AU-3407-L) with assistance from many other local auctioneers.

ANSWER — Jean Redmond, Mohnton, wanted a recipe for baked French toast. Thanks to Grace Glock, Fallston, Md., for sending a recipe.

French Toast Breakfast Casserole

1 loaf Italian bread
8 eggs
3 cups milk
3 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 tablespoons butter

Cut bread into one-inch slices. Place bread in a single layer in greased 9x13x2-inch baking pan. Combine remaining ingredients except butter. Beat on medium speed of mixer until frothy. Pour over bread. Cover and refrigerate overnight or at least eight hours. Uncover; dot with butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes or until puffy and light brown. Serve with jam, syrup or confectioners' sugar. Serves 6.

ANSWER — A Berks County reader requested a recipe for Boboli Garlic Bread. Thanks to D. Bonnell for e-mailing a recipe.

Boboli Pizza Crust

1 package dry yeast
¼ cup water
2¼ cups warm water
6 tablespoons olive oil, plus some to grease pans
6 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
Various herbs and coarse salt

In a large bowl, dissolve yeast in warm water. Let set for a couple of minutes while you gather remaining ingredients. To yeast water mixture, add all ingredients except herbs and spices and mix until a rough dough. Turn dough onto counter and knead 10 minutes, or knead with a dough hook on low speed for 10 minutes. Put into a greased bowl, turning dough to grease top, cover with damp towel and let rise until doubled in volume. Depending on the temperature of the room, dough should double within 30-40 minutes.

Divide dough into three parts and place in three olive-oiled pans.

Using hands, push dough into a circle about the size of the pans or a little smaller. Dimple dough with fingers. Put a combination of herbs and spices that you like on top. A good mixture is coarse sea or Kosher salt, freshly ground pepper, chopped rosemary and thyme. If herbs are dried, soak in water for 10 minutes and pat dry on paper towels before sprinkling them, then lightly press into dough.

Another nice mixture is salt and pepper, basil, oregano, and thyme. Another option is using a prepared Italian herb mix; not as pungent as fresh herbs but still very tasty. Let rise 50-60 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes.

ANSWER — Here is a recipe that was inadvertently missed in the collection of recipes for asparagus. Thanks to Melba Sheffer, Glen Rock, for sending her family's favorite recipe for fresh asparagus. She makes it several times a week during the growing season.

Hot Bacon Asparagus Salad

7 strips bacon
2 cups fresh asparagus, cut into 1-inch pieces
⅓ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2 hard-cooked eggs
4 cups torn salad greens (spinach and lettuce)

Dice bacon, fry, and drain. Put asparagus into pan with a little bacon drippings and saute until just tender. Add vinegar, sugar, and dry mustard. Bring to a boil, pour over salad greens in bowl, toss, add chopped eggs, and bacon; toss again.

Last Week To Enter Dairy Recipe Drawing

This is your last week to send in your favorite recipe using dairy products for Lancaster Farming's annual dairy recipe drawing for June Dairy Month.

To enter the drawing for one of the $500 worth of prizes, select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. These ingredients count as a dairy product: milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and all hard and soft cheeses.

Please check your ingredients carefully. Margarine and non-dairy substitutes such as frozen whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

Clearly print or type your recipe entry. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

With your entry, include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, a photograph of you and of your family is preferred. We and our readers love to "see" the people who send in the recipes.

Photographs will be returned if you write your name and address on the back of the picture.

Only one entry per family allowed. This contest is for adults who are at least 18 years old. Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information with your complete address postmarked by June 1.

Recipe entries will be printed throughout the month of June. A list of the winners will be printed in the June 30 issue.

Send entries to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Dairy Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522.

Control Ornamental Plant Diseases

WOOSTER, Ohio — Homeowners and garden professionals should be taking steps now to control several ornamental plant diseases that can be problematic during wet spring weather, recommends an Ohio State University Extension agent.

Jim Chatfield, a Northeast District horticulture specialist, said apple scab of crabapple, black spot of rose, and Volutella leaf blight of pachysandra (a ground cover plant) are major fungal diseases that typically don't kill the plants, but are damaging enough to be an eyesore.

Apple scab causes yellowing and discoloration of crabapple foliage, wilt, leaf drop, and scabby lesions on the fruit. Chatfield said apple scab can be controlled through fungicide applications, but the timing is critical. "The ideal time to apply fungicides would be when the petals of flowering crabapples first begin to fall." In Wooster, he said, crab apples are beginning to flower now and will probably peak this week. "If you wait until you see the fungus on the leaves, then it's too late, and you're not going to be able to get rid of it."

Though fungicides are available to treat crabapples against the disease, Chatfield said the best method of control is to plant disease-resistant varieties. "The disease is easily controlled and easily dealt with in genetic resistance," he said. "The key is to pick a crabapple with the desired characteristics that has good resistance to apple scab."

Research conducted last year at Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center's Secrest Arboretum in Wooster found that 33 of the 63 crabapple cultivars studied showed little or no susceptibility to apple scab. Chatfield said last year was a heavy year for apple scab due to the extremely wet spring. Cultivars found resistant to the disease include 'Adirondack', 'Camelot', 'Dolgo', 'Excalibur', Foxfire', 'Golden Raindrops', 'Hamlet', 'King Arthur', 'Purple Prince', 'Silver Moon', and 'Strawberry Parfait'.

Black spot of rose produces round-to-irregular black splotches and yellowing on the leaves. Leaf defoliation is common and repeated defoliation weakens the plant, leading to poor blooming and greater sensitivity to other stresses.

Chatfield said that some of the favorite varieties for rose lovers are prone to black spot, hence, fungicide applications may be a consideration. "The timing again is critical, though," he said. 'You need to start spraying as soon as the leaves emerge and continue to spray throughout the summer. As long as it stays wet, the disease will be hard to control."

Good sanitation practices are also the key to keeping rose plants free of the disease, or at least, under control. Chatfield recommends removing diseased leaves and canes to help limit the black spot fungus. He also advises against using sprinkle irrigation to water the plants, as the wet condition leads to the spread of the disease. "Try to just water the base or use trickle irrigation instead," he said. "Also, if you do use sprinklers, turn them on in the evening so that the leaves can dry during the heat of the day."

Volutella leaf blight of pachysandra causes leaves to develop brown blotches and eventual dieback of the plant. Chatfield said the disease is hard to control since pachysandra flourishes best in dense, shady areas where it constantly stays moist.

"Good sanitation practices are important. Remove diseased leaves and stems," he said. "If the disease gets too bad, you can always mow the pachysandra bed to a height of about three inches. It won't rid the plant of the disease, but it will help control it."

The best thing people can do to control for any plant disease is to devise ways to stop its development at a source that can lead to infection. "There are three things that are needed for an infectious plant disease to occur: a virulent pathogen, a susceptible host and an environment conducive to disease.

For more information on apple scab, black spot, and Volutella leaf blight and stem canker of pachysandra, log on to www.ag.ohio-state.edu/~ohioline/, www.bygl.osu.edu/, or visit your local county extension office.

Workshop For Childcare Providers Offered

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension will present a workshop entitled, "Exciting Backyard Science Activities." The training will be held on June 7, from 7 p.m. to 9:15 p.m. at the Children's Library in Scranton.

The workshop will include children's activities for insect-shy child care providers, planting kid-sized gardens, and easy to make bird feeders.

Child care professionals will receive credits from the Department of Public Welfare, handout materials, and interesting door prizes. The fee is $4 per person and is payable at time of preregistration. To register, call Penn State Cooperative Extension at (570) 963-6842 between 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Other workshop titles will be offered each month.

Stream Maps

of Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Michigan and New England (CT, MA, VT, NH, RI)

Why every fisherman needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the fishermen catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into... there's a sure way to up your odds... simply try new fishing waters. Fish where few fishermen ever fish.

Professor Higbee's Stream Maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind... showing virtually all of the streams, rivers and lakes in each state.

Professor Higbee's® STREAMS

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is also known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 x 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well -- until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

RAVE REVIEWS

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps."
John Pitarres
OBSERVER-DISPATCH-Utica

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake ...then "Professor Higbee's Stream Maps" are without question the finest
Howard Brant
THE NEWARK STAR-LEDGER

"It is in showing where to find out-of-the-way trout streams that makes the map such a treasure to the fisherman.

Penn State Press Publishes History Of Little League

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — For more than 60 years, youngsters have trotted onto Little League Baseball playing fields, with dreams of being the next Willie Mays, Mark McGwire, or Lisa Fernandez.

"Play Ball! The Story of Little League Baseball," recently published by Penn State Press, is the first complete account of the sport played every spring by more than 360,000 children worldwide.

The book charts Little League Baseball's history from its earliest days in Williamsport, to the playing fields of Venezuela, Japan, and Poland, and shows how, in many respects, Little League's history parallels America's history. It examines issues such as racial and gender equity, and devotes a chapter to girls' struggle to participate in the organization.

During their research, authors Lance and Robin Van Auken were granted complete access to the Little League Baseball archives, and access to the personal archives of Little League founder Carl Stotz.

Play Ball! contains appendixes that include winners of all Little League Baseball and Softball World Series through 2000, a year-by-year history of Little League, countries in Little League, and lists and pictures of some of the famous people who played the game as children.

It's Not Whether You Win Or Lose: Quality Sports Programs For Kids

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Many children who participate in youth sports — and their parents — have become obsessed with winning at almost any cost.

This attitude can interfere with what sports programs for kids should be all about, warns an educator in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Go to any sporting event involving six- to 12-year-olds and you're guaranteed to see an out-of-control parent or coach," said Daniel Perkins, associate professor of family and youth resiliency and policy. "But at this age, the focus should be on teaching skills and having fun, rather than cut-throat competition."

Kids at those ages are trying to get a sense of mastery, Perkins explains. They're learning specific sports skills. They're also learning important life skills, such as backing somebody up, accepting responsibility, and leadership.

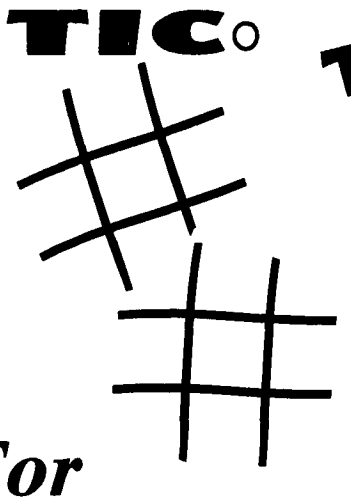
"A win-at-all costs atmosphere also results in less commitment to values such as honesty and fair play," he adds. Sixty percent of the boys and girls involved in sports programs drop out by age 12, Perkins explains. When 12-year-olds were surveyed about the reasons they dropped out, they listed in order of frequency: loss of interest, takes up too much time, poor coaching, and too much pressure.

Perkins suggests some guidelines to keep in mind when shopping for — or creating — a quality sports program for kids.

- Fair and equitable policies that kids help create. These policies should be age-appropriate and applied consistently. No players should get away with anything simply because they have the best ability.
- Orientation for staff, coaches, parents and youth. Everyone should know up front what's expected of them, including expectations about conduct, fairness, and honesty.
- Emotional control. Adults should be expected to set positive examples. Help kids to learn from their experiences. Adults should spend time after a game talking about what the players did well and what could use improvement. "Coaches should make use of 'teachable moments,' where something significant has just happened — such as a nasty foul or an accidental collision — to stop the game and ask the players to think about how they could have behaved differently."
- Conduct follow-up activities. A post-season meeting can be scheduled to celebrate successes and plan for future changes and improvement.
- Maximize the social side of sports by promoting interactions among team members and between teams.
- Above all, Perkins said, sports programs should be fun. "Watch kids play on their own," he said. "If one team's 'killing' the other, they yell 'Switch!' to divide up the talent. If someone makes a silly mistake, they yell 'Do-over!' "Kids play sports for the action and excitement," he said. "Games shouldn't just be organized to determine a winner, but to promote a close and exciting game — even if it means modifying the rules."
- Finally, everyone should participate, regardless of skill level. "Less than one percent of kids go on to play professionally," Perkins said. "Why focus on that small number and miss a great opportunity for the other 99 percent?"

Perkins has developed a series of free booklets, "Making Youth Sports a Positive Experience," for coaches and parents: "Spectators," "Role Models" and "Coaches." Single and multiple copies are available free of charge from county Penn State Cooperative Extension offices.

For more information about these publications and other educational programs about youth development offered by the Bradford County Cooperative Extension office, contact Cathy Guffey, extension family living agent, at 701 South Fourth Street, Towanda or (570) 265-2896 or bradfordext@psu.edu.



Ten Hot Tips For Motivating Children To Read

1. Encourage children to read aloud. Kids of all ages enjoy reading aloud to their parents and peers. It lets them show off their ability and allows the parents to spend quality time with their children. It's a win-win situation.

2. Take summer field trips to the bookstore or to the library. Take time out to browse through a store and allow them to pick out their favorite book. Point out books that might be of interest to them.

3. Keep books in the car or tucked in backpacks. Children on the go can read books while traveling this summer with their parents. In a car, on a bus, sailing on a boat, or flying in a plane, a book makes a perfect companion...wherever.

4. Encourage the reading of a series. When kids fall in love with a series, their next book is easy to find. They will most likely love them all. By the time they are through the series, they are reading better and have begun to form the habit of reading. Every summer should be a challenge to get through a new series.

5. Connect reading with summer activities. Riding bikes, skateboarding, swimming, sleepovers and secret fort building are all a part of summer fun. Find books that match your child's interests and he or she will connect reading to these favorite activities.

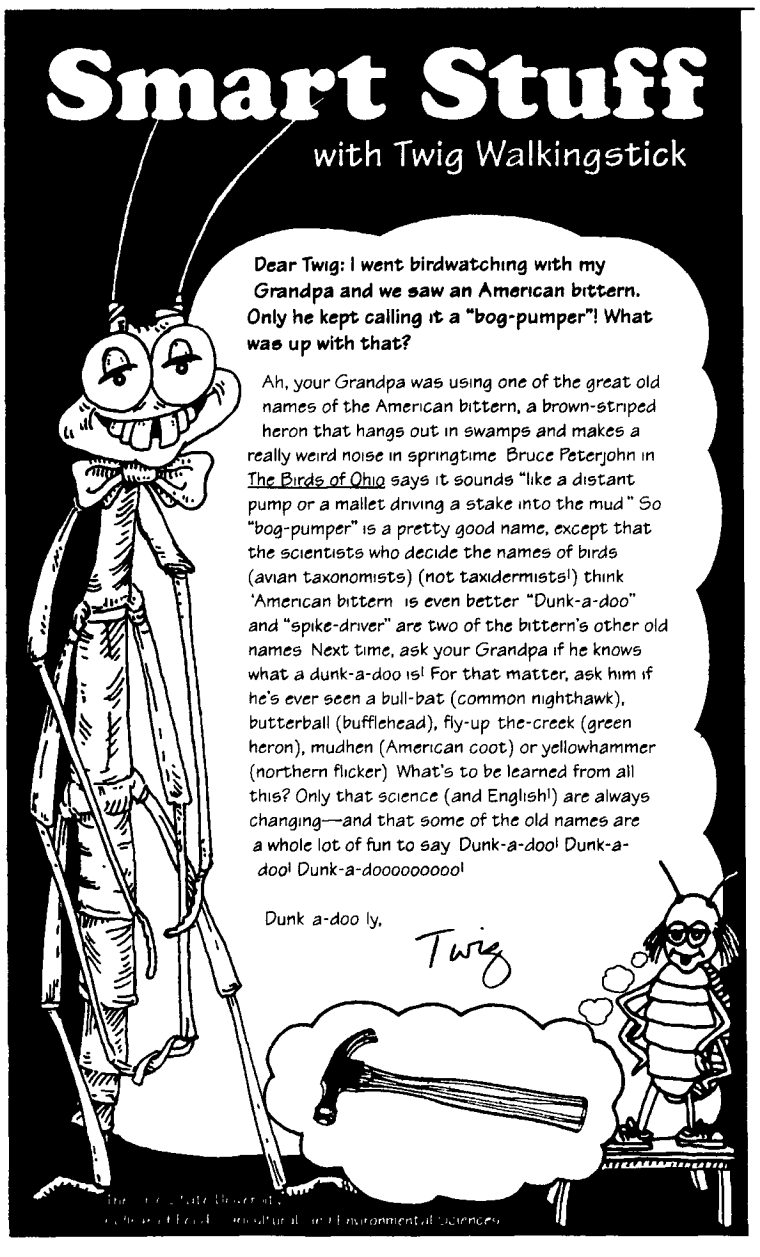
6. Location, location, location. Encourage children to read books where they are comfortable. A good book knows no boundaries, whether it's on the porch, by the lake or up in a treehouse. Changing the location can add loads of fun to summer reading.

7. Books make great gifts. The next time your child is invited to a birthday party, give a gift certificate to the local bookstore. There the birthday boy or girl can find the best gift of all, the ability to use his or her imagination.

8. No lights out. Don't give your children a lights-out time at night. Let them read as long as they want to (especially in the summer). Your children will feel grown up, and who knows: reading before bed could turn into a lifelong habit.

9. Relax a little. Try not to over commit your children to too many activities. Between swim lessons and summer camps, they often are too tired to sit down and relax with a book. Let them know that lying on the bed reading a book is not a waste of time.

10. Show your children you value reading. Parents should spend time reading...the daily paper, a paperback or open a geography book while the family is watching TV to learn about and discuss a far-off place.



Smart Stuff
with Twig Walkingstick
Dear Twig: I went birdwatching with my Grandpa and we saw an American bittern. Only he kept calling it a "bog-pumper"! What was up with that?
Ah, your Grandpa was using one of the great old names of the American bittern, a brown-striped heron that hangs out in swamps and makes a really weird noise in springtime. Bruce Peterjohn in The Birds of Ohio says it sounds "like a distant pump or a mallet driving a stake into the mud." So "bog-pumper" is a pretty good name, except that the scientists who decide the names of birds (avian taxonomists) (not taxidermists!) think 'American bittern' is even better. "Dunk-a-doo" and "spike-driver" are two of the bittern's other old names. Next time, ask your Grandpa if he knows what a dunk-a-doo is! For that matter, ask him if he's ever seen a bull-bat (common nighthawk), butterball (bufflehead), fly-up the-creek (green heron), mudhen (American coot) or yellowhammer (northern flicker). What's to be learned from all this? Only that science (and English!) are always changing—and that some of the old names are a whole lot of fun to say. Dunk-a-doo! Dunk-a-doo! Dunk-a-doooooooooo!
Dunk a-doo ly,

Dairy Store Employee To Serve As Blair Princess

TIPTON (Blair Co.) — Sixteen-year-old Emily Kirsch, daughter of Dr. William and June Kirsch of Roaring Spring was crowned the Blair County Dairy Princess on May 19 at the Delgrosso's Family Amusement Park in Tipton.

Emily is a sophomore at Bishop Guilfolye High School, Altoona. She will be assisted in her promotion efforts this year by two alternate dairy princesses, Jessica Gorman, a junior at Central High School, Martinsburg and daughter of Alan and Karen Gorman of Martinsburg, and Karyn Stone, a sophomore at Williamsburg and daughter of Ken and Jill Stone of Williamsburg.

As part of the competition, the contestants had a 15-minute personal interview with the three judges. During this time, the judges were able to get to know the contestants and ask them questions about their background, experiences, and desires to be a dairy princess. On stage during the pageant, each contestant presented a creative speech or a skit. The final portion of the contest was an impromptu question.

Emily Kirsch presented a speech entitled, "The Wonderful World of Dairy," in which she highlighted some of the modern advancements many dairy farms employ to be competitive businesses. She emphasized the community aspect of the dairy industry and how in farming communities such as the Morrisons Cove, a wide variety of business and individuals rely in part or whole on the dairy industry.

Emily qualified to compete for the title of Blair County Dairy Princess through her employment at Ritchey's Dairy, Martinsburg. Ritchey's Dairy is the largest processor of milk in Blair County.

While not a "traditional" dairy princess contestant, Emily is very enthusiastic about promoting milk and dairy products.

Jessica Gorman presented a speech entitled, "Milk, Life's Sports Drink," in which she challenged the conventional thinking that sports drinks are the best beverage to keep you on your game. She pointed out the nutritive values of milk, protein for strong muscles, calcium of strong bone and vitamins and minerals for good health. She challenged consumers to look at milk as a sports drink that can build your body for the game and for life. Jessica qualified to compete for the title of Blair County Dairy Princess because both she and her father are employees at Pleasant View Farms, Martinsburg. Jess also works part-time at Stock's Dairy Delight, Martinsburg.

Karyn Stone presented a speech entitled, "Calcium, What do you really need to know?" Karyn outlined the most important nutritional component of milk and dairy products, calcium. Karyn is a farmer's daughter and works part-time on the family dairy farm, Ken Stone Farms.

For the impromptu question, Master of Ceremonies Robert Hetrick invited each contestant to select a question. Emily's question was "What was one thing you learned in childhood that will most help you as dairy princess?"

Emily responded that learning "to always do your best" would help her most as a dairy princess.

Jessica's question was "What age group do you feel it is most important to promote to and by what means do you feel they can most effectively be reached?"

Jessica responded that she believed it was very important to promote to teen-agers and she felt that by using role models such as sports stars, more teens would be persuaded to drink milk.

Karyn's question was "What are two strengths you bring to your year as dairy princess?" Karyn responded that she wanted to promote milk and dairy products to both the young and old alike, because they are beneficial for all ages.

Judges for the evening were June Kocher, dairy farm wife and 4-H leader from Pennsylvania Furnace, Centre County; Carla Gates, dairy farm wife and county dairy promotion committee member from Warriors Mark, Centre County; and Charles Ruslavage, husband of Jan Harding retired executive director of the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. and retired Clarion University professor of Clarion.

Throughout the evening, the 200 plus attenders to the pageant were introduced to the new dairy maids, dairy misses and future princess with their escorts the Future Farmers. Blair County is fortunate to have a total of 26 young people involved in some aspect of dairy promotion for this year.

Dairy maids are young ladies between the ages of 12-15. Serving as dairy maids are Emily Baker, 13, daughter of James and Anita Baker of Martinsburg; Robyn Bechtel, 12, daughter of Gary and Claudia Bechtel of Martinsburg; Tracy Bigelow, 15, daughter of Richard and Cindy Bigelow of Williamsburg; Kelly Over, 13, daughter of Glenn and Cathy Over of Williamsburg; and Jenna Smith, 12, daughter of Max and Jeannie Smith of Martinsburg. The dairy maids will assist the princess and alternates at various promotions throughout the year and will attend a one-day training seminar in July sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc.

Five young ladies between the ages of 9-11 will serve as dairy misses and assist primarily in summer promotions: Jeri Baker, 10, daughter of James and Anita Baker of Martinsburg; Katy Bigelow, 11, daughter of Randy and Twila Bigelow of Williamsburg; Kristy Bigelow, 10, daughter of Randy and Twila Bigelow of Williamsburg; Shasta Miller, 11, daughter of Steve Clapper and Amy Miller of Williamsburg; Tara Sollenberger, 11, daughter of Earlyn and Lynette Sollenberger of Curryville.

Avoid Scams, Frauds, And Telemarketing Calls

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Irritated by all those telemarketing calls that interrupt dinners, chores, and relaxation?

Screaming profanities and slamming down the phone receiver will not stop the calls, said Deputy Attorney General Mike Butler of the Bureau of Consumer Protection.

Instead, say the magic words: "Place me on your 'do not call list.'"

Pennsylvania law prohibits telemarketers from calling for one year after the stated request.

"Consumers can sue the company if they continue calling after that," Butler said.

Report persistent phone calls to the attorney general's office (800) 441-2555.

The "do-not-call" request must be made to each company that calls.

"It's a slow but efficient way to stop telemarketing," Butler said.

You can also request having your name removed from all telemarketing lists by writing to Telephone Preference Service, Direct Marketing Association, P.O. Box 9014, Farmingdale, NY 11735-9014.

With the upswing in consumer marketing fraud, scams, and identity theft, Butler offered advice and tactics for consumer protection. Butler was one of several speakers who addressed timely issues during the Berks County Extension Spring Awareness Day conducted at the Berks County Ag Center, Leesport.

Senior citizens are most often targeted for scams and frauds. The elderly are often more trusting of others, are lonely, and open to conversation.

The con artist often disarms the victim with an affable "nice guy" approach. One of the easiest ways for a con artist to operate is by telephone. High-pressure tactics convince victims to buy merchandise they don't need, often with the lure of winning a prize.

Do not give personal information over the phone. Never give your credit card number, telephone calling card, or checking account numbers.

"Above all, don't be afraid to say 'No' to telemarketers," Butler said.

Your mailbox is another means con artists use to trick unsuspecting consumers. Letters, sweepstake notices, and sales promotions are used to lure you into high-pressure techniques over the phone.

Bogus fund-raisers sometimes use names of organizations that sound like well-known charities.

• For information on mail fraud, call the U.S. chief postal inspector at (202) 268-2284.

• To verify a charity's legitimacy, call the Pennsylvania Office of the Secretary of State, Bureau of Charitable Organizations at (800) 732-0999.

• For information on vacation scams, call the American Society of Travel Agents, Consumer Affairs Department, (703) 739-8739.

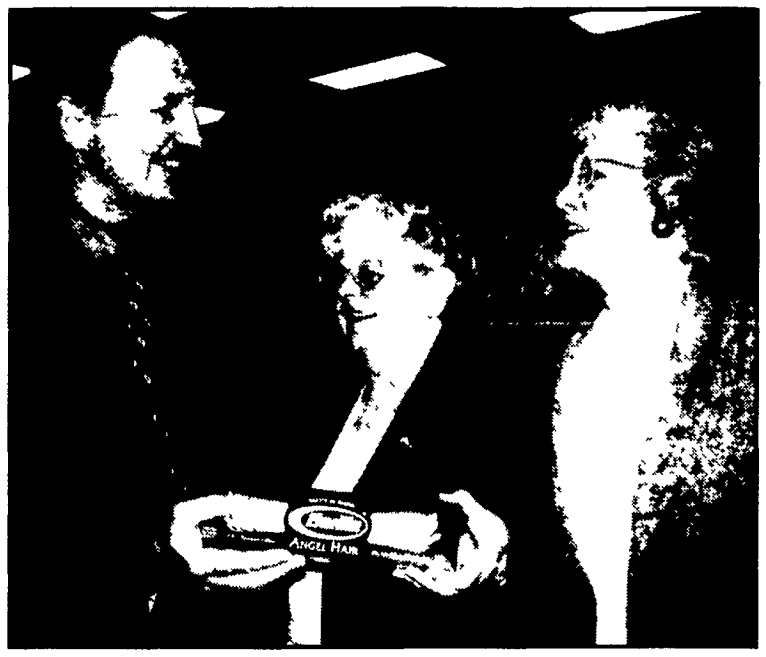
• Unscrupulous home improvement contractors often prey on seniors. Beware of a contractor who comes to your door unsolicited. For filing complaints or for checking on the complaint history of businesses or individuals, call the Consumer Protection Division at (800) 441-2555.

• Be suspicious of companies that promise easy money by working at home. Never pay for information about a work-at-home offer. For questions about work-at-home schemes, call the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Hotline at (800) 441-2555.

• Investment opportunities rob many people of money. Before investing, contact the following agencies to check on the legitimacy of the company: The Securities and Exchange Commission at (800) 732-0330 or the National Association of Securities Dealers at (800) 289-9999.

• Internet offers are the newest methods con artists use to seduce victims. Never use 900 numbers for which you may be charged outrageous fees. For information on on-line scams, contact the National Fraud Information Center, Consumer Assistance Service at (800) 876-7060.

• Scams on hearing aids and Medicare fraud preys on the elderly's aches and pains. To protect yourself, never give your Medicare number or other personal information to a salesperson. For assistance with Medicare, Medigap, Medicare, HMO's, and other health insurance matters, call the Pennsylvania Department of Aging at (717) 783-1550.



"Stress is like linguine," Dr. James Huber said. Volunteers from the audience participated in his interactive explanation of how to reduce stress. Here Doris Fetterman and Dottie Yeakel, both of Temple, say their daily walk together provides opportunity to verbalize problems and gain perspective from each other.

Creating 'Pastabilities'

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Therapists abound with explanations about sources and solutions for stress in today's pressure-packed society. But Dr. James Huber offers one of the most unusual descriptions of stress and how to handle it.

In his presentation at the Spring Awareness Day conducted by Berks County Extension in Leesport last week, Huber included the audience in demonstrating his humorous new recipe for men and women to handle stress and change.

"Stress," Huber said, "is like linguine. It requires hot water to help us realize our potential."

He handed out boxes of linguine with the promise, "If you feel cooked, life will soon add the sauce."

Huber said positive effects often follow stressful situations.

• To reduce stress, risk being "impearfect." It takes courage to accept our humanness, Huber said. He spoke of the unnecessary struggle people often undergo by trying to appear perfect, and the missed opportunities because they fear they can't do it perfectly.

• "Create positive 'pastabilities,'" Huber said. "When stuck in impossible situations, brainstorm options. Be innovative. See stepping stones, not stumbling blocks."

Even Einstein believed that solutions did not depend on brain power, Huber said of a quote from Einstein: "Imagination is more important than knowledge."

• "Link with human beans," Huber said of the need to develop friendships with others to build bridges, not boundaries.

"If you can't change the circumstances, change your perspective," Huber said.

Huber said that research shows that stress management typically begins with the following proven practices. He encouraged the audience to check their skills, and develop at least one unchecked skill within the next month:

• Create positive attitudes toward stress and change.

• Stretch often and exercise regularly.

• Seek optimistic people for support system.

• Maintain a healthy sense of humor.

• Combine deep, quiet breathing with relaxing visualizations.

• Participate in team building and transition activities.

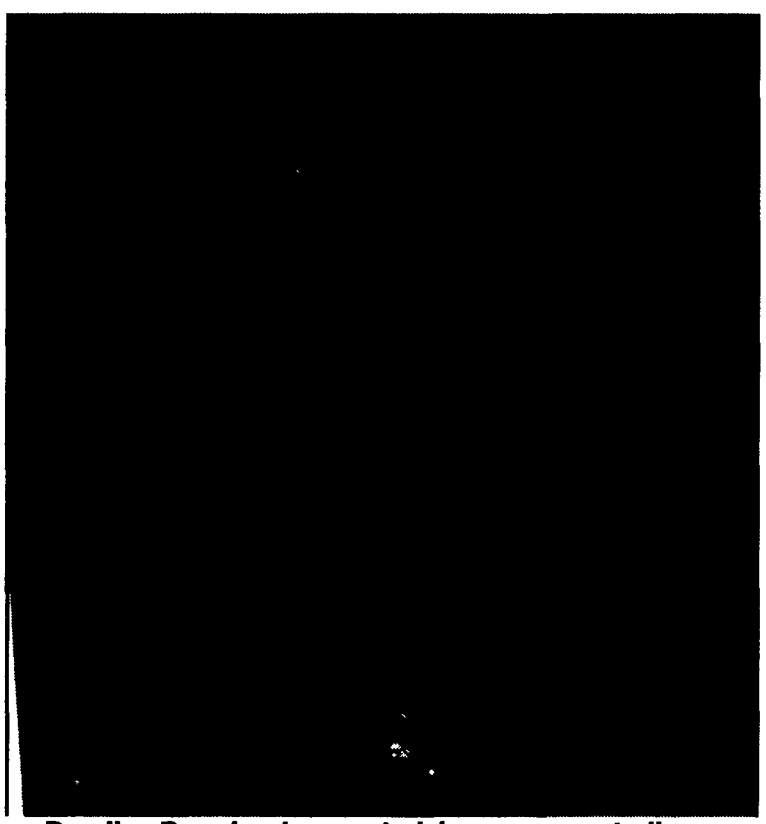
• Slow down and beam up your present awareness.

• Eat well with balance, moderation, and variety.

• Develop outside interests and creative play.

• Try "talent scouting" at home and work.

Huber is a marriage and family therapist with a private clinical practice that promotes solution-focused therapy. For more information, call Huber Interactives at (610) 371-8868.



Dr. Jim Pawelczyk reported how space studies contribute to scientific developments in treating health problems. For example, astronauts lose 50 percent of bone minerals when in space, which is similar to a 100-year-old. Studies to prevent the loss has shown that calcium shots and pills can cause kidney stones. Cancer caused from radiation is another risk for astronauts. Pawelczyk is researching how disuse of muscles relates to blood pressure regulation and inadequate blood flow to the brain. Pawelczyk flew aboard STS-90 on the space shuttle Columbia in April and May of 1998. He logged 16 days and 6.4 million miles in space, circling the earth 256 times and conducting Neuroscience experiments that addressed changes in the development of the nervous system, balance, blood pressure regulations, sleep, and control movement during space flight.

Successful Craft Auction at Guernsey Banquet

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — A total of $2,127 was raised for the youth of the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders Association.

It's a fun event with items composed of handmade crafts, homemade baked goods, antiques, and purchased items many with a Guernsey theme being contributed by Guernsey breeders.

Mike Weimer acted as auctioneer and added his own note of personal comedy to the evening event.

ADA/DC Middle Atlantic Promotes Grilled Cheese At Fest

PHILADELPHIA — Ahh, the power of grilled cheese. The American Dairy Association/ Dairy Council Middle Atlantic honored America's favorite warm and toasty sandwich during the annual The Book and the Cook Festival and Fair in Philadelphia in late March.

During the week of the festival, five of Philadelphia's prominent chefs demonstrated their own twist on the grilled cheese sandwich to the lunchtime crowds at The Shops at Liberty Place. Each sandwich featured domestic cheeses paired with nontraditional ingredients such as lobster, prosciutto and even caviar. During the demonstrations, shoppers answered cheese trivia, savored the chef's creations and learned how to enter the Mr. Food® Hometown Grilled Cheese Recipe Contest.

The celebration of cheese continued through the Book and the Cook Fair weekend. ADA/DC Middle Atlantic sponsored grilled cheese demonstrations and handed out domestic cheese samples at its booth at the Pennsylvania Convention Center. Fairgoers also received tips on creating a local recipe for the Mr. Food® grilled cheese contest.

Red And Green Fontina-Cheddar Melt
Craig A. Byrd, Chef
Marathon On The Square

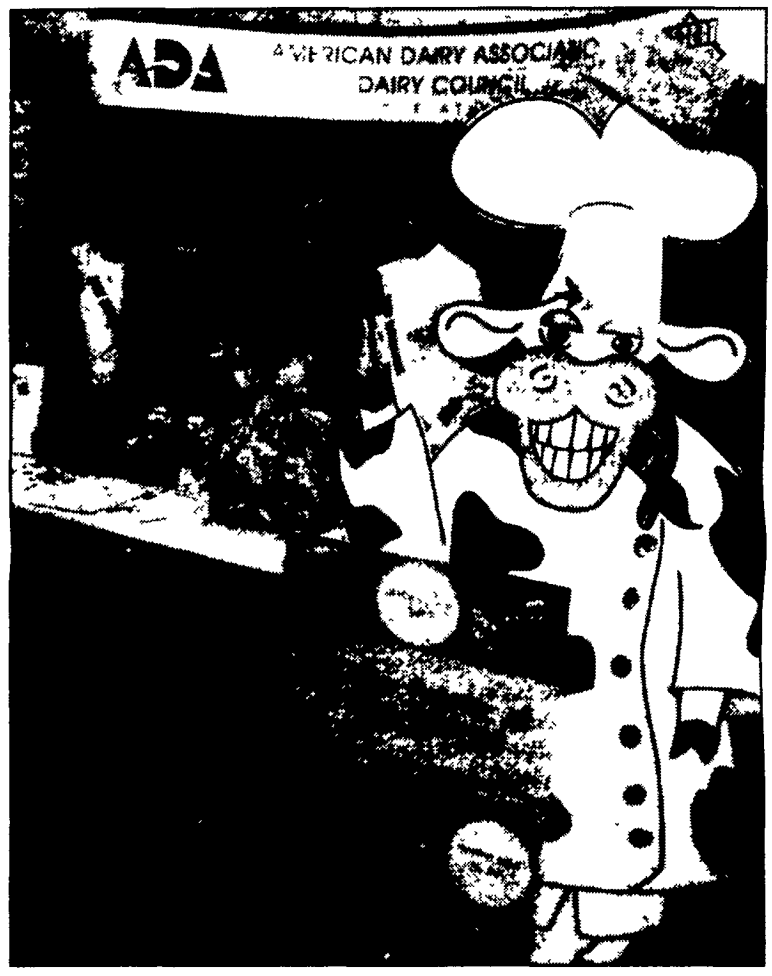
2 slices country white bread
2 ounces mild cheddar
2-ounces domestic Fontina
1-ounce roasted red pepper, diced
1-ounce julienned spinach, steamed
1-ounce butter

Heat butter in griddle or skillet over medium heat. Assemble cheeses, red pepper and spinach between bread slices. Place in skillet and grill until golden brown on both sides and filling is melted. Serves 1.

Stuffed Brie, Gouda And Cheddar Bread
Tracey Hopkins, Executive Chef
Museum Restaurant
Philadelphia Museum of Art

1 loaf brioche pullman bread
1 cup port-flavored cheddar, shredded
8-ounces domestic brie, diced ¼-inch
1 cup domestic gouda, shredded
1 portabello mushroom, diced
8-ounces prosciutto, thin
1 tablespoon truffle oil
4-ounces butter, softened

Saute diced mushroom in olive oil and cool. Remove all crust of brioche bread and hollow out the center (reserve for later). Combine all cheeses, mushroom, prosciutto and truffle oil in a bowl. Stuff mixture in cavity of bread. Fill in both ends with bread removed from the center. Brush all four sides with butter. In a saute pan over medium heat, brown all sides of loaf. Place in oven at 350 degrees until cheese is melted (about 3-5 minutes). Cut into sixths, on an angle, and serve warm over tomato and basil salad. Makes 6 servings.



Berks County Dairy Ambassadors Kellie Phillips, Pamela Werley, and Adrianne Phillips promote domestic cheese at the Book and the Cook Fair in Philadelphia.

Victorian Tea At the Capitol

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Capitol Preservation Committee will sponsor a Victorian Tea, honoring Capitol artist Violet Oakley (1874-1961), on Sunday, June 10, at 1:30 p.m. in the Capitol Building Rotunda.

The event coincides with the 127th anniversary of Oakley's birth and features an unveiling of exhibitions, tea and refreshments, guided tours of the Capitol highlighting 43 of Oakley's murals, and speaker Dr. Patricia Likos-Ricci, former curator of the Violet Oakley Memorial Foundation.

Tickets cost $25 per person and must be purchased in advance. Make checks payable to CPC Restoration Trust Fund and mail to Capitol Preservation Committee, Attention: Victorian Team, Room 630, Main Capitol Building, Harrisburg, PA 17120 or call (717) 783-6484.

Violet Oakley, a renowned artist whose work includes murals, illustrations, and stained glass, was also a promoter of world peace. She is being celebrated in books newspapers, magazines and exhibitions in museums across the nation.

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — Cindy Eshleman, Jonestown, wants to buy a Halcraft small wooded alphabet bead set or at least the letters "L" and "R."

QUESTION — A reader wants to know of a homemade mixture to control or eliminate carpenter ants.

ANSWER — Tom Lehman wanted to know how to prevent large black carpenter bees from making holes in wooden porch rails and a wooden porch shed. Thanks to Sandy Tabor who e-mailed that according to information she found, the male carpenter bees hover on guard while the female drills perfect holes into wood to deposit her eggs (the real danger). Plugging the holes will not help. The best approach is to wait until dark when all the bees are in the hole and pump Sevin dust deep into the holes using a garden duster or turkey baster. Get all the holes you can find. The bee holes are ususally above or around little piles of sawdust. Wait several days so that the female bee can track the dust deep into the tunnel. Then seal the tunnel hole with caulking compound.

ANSWER — Lou Roop has a 28-year toy collection and wanted to know the best way to sell it. Thanks to Philip Smith who recommends an auctioneer who specializes in antique toys and trains. Although Smith names an auctioneer, our paper does not like to recommend one auctioneer more than another. Check out advertising in this section to find names of several auctioneers who have experience in selling antique toys.

ANSWER — Eugene Jauss, 701 New Galena Rd., Chalfont, PA 18914, wanted to locate old, six-compartment stainless steel dinner plates, the kind used in the military. Thanks to W.S. Furie, Frederick, Md., who writes that aluminum trays of this type are available from Cheaper Than Dirt Sporting Goods, 2520 NE Loop 820, Fort Worth, Texas 76106-1809. Call 1-800-421-8047.

ANSWER — Kay Showers, Allenwood, needs a repairman for a 1932 Singer treadle sewing machine. Her local repairman has the bottom and top tensions awry. Thanks to Aaron R. Martin who recommends The Sewing Machine Shop, 40 Running Pump Rd., Newville, PA 17241.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know where to purchase a real slate blackboard, the heavy-duty kind. Thanks to Stuart Keeny, York, who has one to sell. Call (717) 225-4355 except Sundays.

Sequoia 4-H Horse Club Reorganizes

BAINBRIDGE (Lancaster Co.) — The Sequoia Riders 4-H Horse Club has reorganized for the new year. New officers are: Brandi Wertz, president; Rachel Greider, vice president; Mary Pickett, secretary; Katie Nilsen, treasurer; Samantha Nissley, reporter; Christi Wertz and Jory Kauffman, games coordinators.

The Sequoia Riders 4-H Horse Club welcomes new members, ages 8-18 years of age. A member does not need to own a horse, just a desire to have fun and learn all about horses. Meetings are held the second Monday of each month.

April's meeting was held at the home of Karen Kettering, club leader, near Manheim. A demonstration was given on Grooming and Showmanship by Dawn Bell and her American Paint horse, "Hazy."

The club is planning more events including a horse show to be held this summer. Details are now being finalized.

For more information, call club leaders, Karen Kettering, 665-2534; Nancy Sweigart, 367-4345 or Deb and Dusty Wertz, 871-9035.

Luzerne County Awards Outstanding 4-H'er

Jennifer Rinehimer recently received the Luzerne County Outstanding 4-H'er of the Year Award given by Penn State Cooperative Extension of Luzerne County.

Each year Luzerne County 4-H program awards one 4-H'er with the title of Outstanding 4-H'er of the year. Nominees must be between the ages of 13 and 19 and currently enrolled in 4-H. They must have shown leadership in at least three county, regional and/or state. 4-H activities within the prior or current 4-H year. Within their own club, they must have shown leadership, participated in activities, and proven self-worthy of being nominated for the highest county 4-H award.

Jennifer is a member of Tall in the Saddle 4-H club. She has shown leadership by serving as her club's president and fulfilling the responsibilities of a teen leader. She has also participated in county and state activities related to her club projects.

Jennifer received a cash award, plaque, and her name on the county wide 4-H Outstanding Award Plaque which is housed at the Extension Office.

Penn State Cooperative Extension educates youth on a wide variety of topics from ages eight through 19 in traditional 4-H programs and students enrolled in school enrichment programs. For more information on youth programming in Luzerne County, contact: Penn State Cooperative Extension, 16 Luzerne Ave., West Pittston, PA, 602-0600 or 825-1701.

Monroe County Club

STROUDSBURG (Monroe Co.) — The Monroe County 4-H Livestock Club will hold its next meeting on May 23, from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office — Conference Room, Route 611, Stroudsburg. The livestock club is open to all Monroe County youth between the ages of eight and 18.

The purpose of the club is to teach youth about marketing and breeding livestock animals. Topics include animal health, animal care, animal behavior, handling and showing of livestock and the nutritional needs of the project animal. Livestock project animals include poultry, beef, swine, lamb, and goats.

Please contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office at (570) 421-6430 for more information or to register for the meeting.

4-H Horse And Pony Driving Clinic At Nazareth

NAZARETH (Northampton Co.) — The 4-H horse program will be sponsoring its annual driving clinic on Thursday, June 21. The clinic will be held at the Northampton County 4-H Center in Nazareth. Preregistration for this clinic is required; there is a small fee.

The clinic is offered to learn how to prepare, harness and drive horses and ponies; to learn proper turnout and safety techniques; and to aid in the understanding of the 4-H driving rules and procedures.

The clinics will be conducted by Mrs. Lore Homer, American Driving Society and American Horse Shows Association registered judge. Mrs. Homer has been successful in all phases of pleasure and combined driving. She has shown the Morgan open competition champion 14 years, and also has wins at Devon and Gladstone. She owns, trains and drives Downhill Storm Cloud who was selected by Horse World's People's Choice as the Morgan Carriage Horse of the Century.

Clinic fees are $5 for 4-H members and $10 for non-members with horses or ponies and carts. Spectators are welcome for $2. Each clinic is limited to 20 horses and carts. Clinics begin at 5 p.m. and conclude at approximately dark; late arrivals will be accepted until 6:30 p.m. Verification of current rabies vaccination and current negative EIA status is required. Preregistration is required before June 11. Clinics may be canceled due to insufficient entries.

For further information or registration, please call Janice Martin at (610) 837-7294.

3 Complete 4-H/FFA Tractor Safety Program

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Three Adams County teens successfully completed the tractor and farm machinery safety course. The program was conducted by the Adams County Penn State Cooperative Extension 4-H program, in cooperation with High School Vo-Ag Departments throughout Adams County.

Completion of the course included the following: attending eight consecutive training sessions covering 11 units; scoring a 70 percent or better on unit quizzes; scoring a 70 percent or better on a written exam; and safely demonstrating the ability to drive a tractor.

Also cooperating in presentation of the course were 4-H leaders, Dan Wilkinson and Ed Wilkinson and the County Vocational Agriculture Teachers.

According to Darlene Resh, extension 4-H agent, the high-scoring individuals will be invited to a state tractor driving contest July 24-26, at Penn State. Those completing the course were: Steven Grove, Dover; David Benner, Fairfield; and Matt Kehr, Littlestown.

Child labor laws require 14- and 15-year-olds hired by farmers to complete the safety course. The next safety session will be offered in February, 2002. For more information about the 4-H program, contact the Adams County Cooperative Extension Office at 334-6271 or 1-888-472-0261.

Cedar Crest FFA Members Participate In Area Speaking Career Development Events

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Recently, the Lebanon County Speaking Career Development Events were held at the Mill Creek Lutheran Church. FFA members from Cedar Crest participated in Parliamentary Procedure, Conservation Speaking, Senior Prepared Speaking, Extemporaneous Speaking and the Creed Speaking contest.

Speaking contests require the participants to write a speech on an agricultural related topic. It must be of appropriate length: six to eight minutes for Senior Prepared Speaking and Conservation Speaking, four to six minutes for Extemporaneous and a maximum of three minutes to recite the Creed. The Senior Prepared and Conservation Speaking contestants must answer up to five minutes of questions from the judges. The Parliamentary Procedure teams must put on a 20-minute mock meeting correctly demonstrating many Parliamentary abilities.

The Parliamentary Procedure team members at the county contest included: Jeremy Balsbaugh, Travis Krall, Matt Balmer, Samantha Shepler, Carl Eisenhauer, Deb Schaeffer, Kyle Seifert, and Tara Miller. The team placed second.

Cedar Crest results in the other county contests were Sarah Krall, second; Joel Krall, fourth, in the Senior Prepared Speaking contest. Beth Kreider, first; Heather Hawkins, third; and Amber Frank, fourth, in the Conservation Speaking contest. Chet Brubaker placed third, and Jeremy Balsbaugh placed fifth in the Extemporaneous Speaking contest and Travis Krall placed ninth in the Creed contest. Several Cedar Crest members will advance and compete in the Regional Competition.

Selinsgrove FFA Speakers Advance To States

Two Selinsgrove area high school FFA members placed in north central regional competition held at the Pennsylvania College of Technology April 25.

Corinda Varner, a freshman, placed first in creed speaking competition. Devon Van Horn, a senior, placed second in conservation public speaking with a speech on tropical rain forests. Both will advance to state competition to be held at Pennsylvania State University, June 12-14.

Varner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terrence Varner, RD #3, Middleburg. Van Horn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kerry Van Horn of RD #3, Selinsgrove.

The parliamentary procedure team placed third. Team members included April Beaver, Erin Curtis, Evan Curtis, Jesse Graybill, Eric Hollenbach, Heather Moyer, Matthew Moyer, and Tricia Moyer. Approximately one hundred FFA members from 16 counties competed.

2000 Pennsylvania Soybean Performance Report

Soybean tests are conducted annually to provide interested persons with information regarding the performance of soybeans grown in Pennsylvania This report summarizes performance results for 2000

The shorter season varieties (Group I, II, and early III) were tested at the Russell E Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rock Springs in Centre County The longer maturing varieties (Groups III and IV) were tested at the Southeast Agricultural Research and Extension Center situated in Lancaster County A trial planted after small grains harvest was also conducted in Lancaster County

Herbicide tolerant varieties (glyphosate RR and sulfonylurea STS) were tested in separate trials

Procedures The private seed company entries in this test were those chosen by the companies for testing The public varieties were chosen based upon previous tests results

The plots in Centre County had 5 rows, each 12 feet long Rows were spaced 7 inches apart Each plot was trimmed to 9 feet, and all 5 rows were harvested The Centre County trials were planted on May 31

In Lancaster County, the full-season and double-crop trial plots had four rows with 15-inch-row spacing, and each was 20 feet long Plots were trimmed to 18 feet and two center rows were harvested The Lancaster County full-season trials were planted on June 2 All double crop trials were seeded on July 5

The double-crop trials were irrigated the end of July with 1 acre inch of water

Seeding rates of the Centre and Lancaster county full season trials were adjusted to obtain approximately 150,000 plants per acre Each cultivar was replicated four times in all trials In the double-crop trial, the seeding rate was adjusted to obtain approximately 200,000 plants per acre

The following observations were made for some or all of the tests (Tables 1-6)

Yield was calculated after all the seed weights were adjusted to 13 percent moisture

Maturity is the date when approximately 95 percent of pods were ripe

Lodging was rated in all tests as follows

1 = almost all plants erect
2 = all plants leaning slightly or a few plants down
3 = all plants leaning moderately, or 25-50 percent of the plants down
4 = all plants leaning considerably, or 50-80 percent of the plants down
5 = almost all plants down

Seed quality was rated according to the following scale

3 = fair
4 = poor
5 = very poor

Seed size gives the approximate number of seeds in one pound

Interpretation of results

Variety performance differences are caused partially by genetic differences and partially by soil variation and other environmental variations which cannot be adequately controlled Thus, small differences in performance may have no significance Multiple-year averages are a more valid indication of the performance of a specific variety than are data for a single year Statistical procedures have been used for the most important characteristics to allow meaningful comparisons of variety averages at a particular location A standard least significant difference (LSD) value is provided for comparing varieties Any difference between two variety averages that exceeds the LSD value is considered significant and not simply a result of uncontrolled environmental variation

The value of coefficient of variation (CV) is a measure of relative variation useful in evaluating the precision achieved in an experiment In grain and forage trials, for example, the CV value for yield is often between 5 and 15 percent Confidence in the reliability of the experimental results declines as the CV value increases Uncontrollable or unmeasurable variations in soil fertility, soil drainage, and other environmental factors contribute to increased CV values

Growing conditions

Conditions during the 2000 growing season were characterized by below normal temperatures Only June in Lancaster County had temperatures above normal The rest of the growing months in Lancaster and all of the months in Centre County had below normal temperatures Despite the cool growing season, soybean were mature enough in all trials before a killing frost occurred Rainfall was below normal May and July in Centre County and July and August at the Lancaster site

Make it Milk SM

Chicken — The Family Choice

QUICK CHICKEN AND POTATO SKILLET

2 cups diced cooked chicken
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 medium onion, diced
1 medium green pepper, diced
2 cups diced cooked potatoes
½ cup picante sauce or salsa
1 teaspoon cumin
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup reduced-fat Cheddar cheese

In large frypan, place butter or margarine and heat to medium-high temperature. Add onion and pepper and cook until onion is tender, but not brown. Add chicken, potatoes, picante sauce, cumin, and salt; mix well. Cook over low heat 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Top with cheese; cover pan to melt cheese. Serve with additional picante sauce, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

CALIFORNIA CHICKEN WRAPS

1 pound ground chicken
salt and pepper to taste
8 flour tortillas (6-inch)
1 cup ranch-flavored dip (ranch dip mix and cream cheese)
2 cups shredded lettuce
2 cups diced tomatoes
1½ cups grated cheese

In large frypan, place chicken, salt and pepper and cook, stirring, over medium-high heat about 6 minutes or until chicken is brown and no pink remains. Drain excess fat. Place remaining ingredients in small bowls and line up in order listed. Spread each tortilla with ranch dip; top each with an equal portion of chicken, lettuce, tomatoes, and cheese. Do not fill tortilla too full or it will not wrap well. Fold up ends of tortilla; fold in sides and roll like a cigar. Wrap each tortilla tightly in plastic wrap; chill in refrigerator. Makes 4 servings of two wraps each.

CHICKEN QUESADILLAS

1 pound ground chicken
Salt and pepper to taste
Vegetable cooking spray
12 flour tortillas (6- or 8-inch)
1½ cups shredded carrots
1 cup sliced green onion
1 cup mild salsa
1½ cups grated Cheddar or Monterey Jack cheese
Sour cream

In large frypan, place chicken, salt, and pepper and cook over medium-high heat about 6 minutes or until chicken is brown and no pink remains. Drain excess fat. Line two large baking sheets with foil; spray foil with vegetable cooking spray. Place 3 tortillas on each baking sheet. Top tortillas with equal amounts of chicken, carrots, and onion. Don't overfill tortillas. Drizzle small amount of salsa over all. Top each with cheese. Place a second tortilla over cheese; spray lightly with vegetable cooking spray. Bake in 375°F. oven 10 minutes or until cheese melts. Serve with remaining salsa. Top with sour cream if desired. Makes 6 servings.

CREAMY BAKED CHICKEN WITH VEGETABLES

1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed reduced-fat and sodium cream of mushroom soup
¼ teaspoon onion salt, divided
1 teaspoon thyme leaves
1 can (24 ounces) whole sweet potatoes in syrup, drained
1 package (10 ounces) peas and pearl onions, thawed

In large baking dish, place undiluted soup, spreading over bottom of dish. Add chicken breasts, turning to coat. Sprinkle ⅛ teaspoon onion salt over chicken; distribute thyme over chicken and soup. Cover and bake in 350°F. oven 45 minutes. Add sweet potatoes and peas and onions, spooning sauce over vegetables. Sprinkle remaining onion salt over vegetables. Cover and bake 15 minutes more or until chicken and vegetables are fork tender. Makes 4 servings.

Chicken Terminology

Broiler Chicken: A chicken raised for meat and meat products. Typically is 40 to 45 days of age and weighs 3 to 4¼ pounds.

Dressed: The cleaned, defeathered and eviscerated chicken that is ready for sale. Also termed ready-to-cook.

Whole Bird: Ready-to-cook chicken that is not cup up. Generally includes giblets and neck.

Cut-up: Ready-to-cook chicken that has been cut into eight or nine pieces. Parts include:

- Drumsticks — Dark meat — two make a serving.
- Thighs — Dark meat — two make a serving — available with or without bone and/or skin.
- Breasts — Light meat — most often sold as split breasts (breast halves) with or without bone and/or skin — one breast half makes a serving.
- Wings — Light meat — three wings make a serving.
- Giblets — Gizzard, liver, heart — allow ¼ pound per serving.

Halves: Whole chicken split into two parts, generally sold for broiling or grilling.

Quarters: Whole chicken cut into four parts, two breast quarters with wings attached and two leg quarters (drumstick with thigh attached).

Further Processed Products: Chicken products prepared by cooking, marinating, grinding, deboning, dehydrating, or otherwise processing beyond the cut-up form to change form, appearance, texture, or add convenience.

Test Your Egg-Q

Bone up on your egg knowledge with answers to these often-asked questions:

- Does the color of eggshell, yolk or white make a difference?

Eggshell and yolk color may vary, but color has nothing to do with egg quality, flavor, nutritive value or cooking characteristics.

Shell color comes from pigments in the outer layer of the shell and may range in various breeds from white to deep brown. The breed of the hen determines the color of the shell. The difference in shell color is barely skin deep. The pigmented layer is so thin, it can easily be removed by rubbing with sandpaper.

Yolk color depends on the diet of the hen. If she gets plenty of yellow-orange plant pigments known as xanthophylls, they will be deposited in the yolk. Natural yellow-orange substances, such as marigold petals, may be added to light-colored feeds to enhance yolk color. Artificial color additives are not permitted. Yolk pigments are relatively stable and are not lost or changed in cooking.

Egg albumen, or white, in raw eggs is opalescent and does not actually appear white until it is beaten or cooked. A yellow or greenish cast in raw albumen may indicate the presence of riboflavin. Cloudiness of the raw albumen is due to carbon dioxide which has not had time to escape through the shell and indicates a very fresh egg. The albumen of older eggs is more transparent than that of fresher eggs.

- What are the lumpy things near the yolk?

These thick, ropey pieces of twisted egg white are called chalazae. Their purpose is to anchor the yolk in the center of the egg and they're entirely edible. In fact, the more prominent the chalazae, the fresher the egg. These natural parts of the egg albumen do not interfere with cooking or beating of the white. Although they don't need to be removed, some cooks like to strain them from stirred custard.

- How can I store leftover whites or yolks?

Refrigerate leftover whites in a tightly covered container for up to four days or freeze them for longer storage. Pour whites into freezer containers, seal the containers tightly and label them with the number of whites and the date. For faster thawing and easier measuring, first freeze each white in an ice cube tray and then transfer the cubes to a freezer container.

Refrigerate unbroken raw yolks covered with water in a tightly covered container and use them within a day or two. For freezing, egg yolks require special treatment because egg yolk thickens or gels when it's frozen. Frozen as is, egg yolk will eventually become so gelatinous it will be almost impossible to use.

To help retard this gelatin, beat in either ⅛ teaspoon salt or 1½ teaspoons sugar or corn syrup for each ¼ cup egg yolks (four large yolks). Label the container with the number of yolks, the date, and whether you've added salt (for main dishes) or sweetener (for baking or desserts).

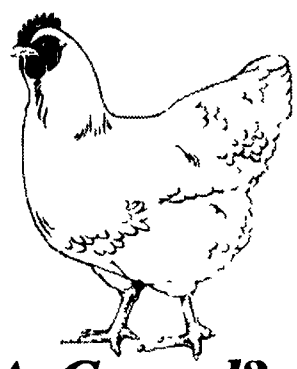
Thaw frozen eggs overnight in the refrigerator or under running cold water. Use yolks as soon as they're thawed. Once thawed, whites will beat to better volume if allowed to sit at room temperature for about 20 to 30 minutes. Use frozen whites or yolks only in dishes that are thoroughly cooked.

- Use two tablespoons thawed egg white for one large fresh white.
- Use one tablespoon thawed egg yolk for one large fresh yolk.

Irradiation Of Chicken

Irradiation, or cold pasteurization as it is also known, is recognized by food and human health experts as a safe and effective method to help control pathogens on raw meat and poultry. Irradiation was approved for poultry products by the Food and Drug Administration in 1990 and by the Department of Agriculture in 1992.

Irradiation is intended to destroy pathogens that could cause foodborne illness. Although irradiation is effective, normal cooking accomplishes the same end result. Also irradiation at approved levels does not make raw foods sterile, so it still must be handled according to food safety requirements.



Cooking For A Crowd? Don't Make Them Sick

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Nancy Wiker, extension agent with Penn State Cooperative Extension will be presenting a workshop on the basics of safe food handling practices at the Lititz Public Library on Tuesday, June 19 from 6 to 8 p.m. It is designed especially for volunteers who prepare, serve, or otherwise handle food at any event.

The workshop is a refresher on the basics of safe food handling. It could make the difference between a great fund raiser or social activity and a food poisoning outbreak that could damage your groups's reputation and finances.

Foodborne illness strikes Americans more than 76 million times each year. More than three quarters of the outbreaks are blamed on food eaten outside the home. While such illnesses can be as mild as stomachache, it can be more serious and sometimes fatal. Children and the elderly are among those who are most at risk.

Hormones not used in poultry production

I'm starting to get leery of feeding my children chicken because I heard they use a lot of hormones in poultry production these days. Is that true?

Actually, it's not true In fact, it's completely false Here's a direct quote from the Food and Drug Administration's website "Hormones are only approved for use in beef cattle and lamb production They are not approved for use in poultry, hogs, veal calves or exotic, non-amenable species."

In short, it is against the law to use hormones in poultry production. No poultry producer in the United States uses them. They're not in the chicken you serve your family

But don't think you're going nuts A cursory look at some animal-rights and vegetarian websites shows that the claim is often made that (the non-existent) hormones used in poultry production can be the cause of all sorts of health concerns One even claims that hormones are the reason that chickens get so big so quickly these days. In fact, poultry scientists tell us that it's breeding, nutrition and general health care that helps build nice plump chickens within a matter of weeks

Sometimes concerns are raised about antibiotics used on chickens It's true, the animals are often given antibiotics to help prevent disease and increase the efficiency of the feed they eat However, a withdrawal period is required from the time antibiotics are administered before the bird can be slaughtered. This helps make sure that no residues are present in the bird's system by the time it gets to the consumer

Still, scientists are concerned that using too many antibiotics in chickens and in other animals will allow disease-causing bacteria to adapt and become resistant. Because of this, more emphasis is being placed on the responsible use of antibiotics, and more restrictions have been placed on their use. It should be noted that the same concerns have been raised about human overuse of antibiotics, too.

Culture, Beauty, History Woven Into Baskets Worldwide

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "Baskets are the oldest recognized craft in the world," Tina Barrows said.

Barrows, a basketry artist and curator, recently displayed her collection of baskets to the Spring Awareness Day, conducted at the Berks Extension Service, Leesport.

Until recently, baskets reflected the cultures of areas throughout the world. The ethnic patterns woven into baskets of the past are not as definable in current basketry. This change is because of worldwide trade, which greatly impacts basketry.

Now isolated countries find out what sells in the United States and fashion their baskets to meet consumer demand. Third world countries no longer need to rely on tourists coming to their area and selecting a souvenir; instead, they are selling via the Internet.

Baskets from the past reflect fascinating history. From the beginning of time, baskets were woven for specific usages, such as carrying heated rocks or cradling babies.

Although a recent Czechoslovakia archeological dig uncovered the oldest basket in the world and some baskets were preserved in King Tut's tomb, few baskets have survived in comparison to other objects. Barrows explained that discrepancy to the fact that baskets have been used heavily and have worn out.

Some baskets are molded over a form such as pottery. The form dictates the function for which the basket will be used. Forms are used to make nestling baskets to ensure that the baskets will fit snugly within each other.

Materials used to weave baskets have varied greatly over the centuries. People most often used materials that were native to the area such as seagrass in coastal areas and woods and barks inland.

Written history reveals that the early settlers smuggled willow cuttings (not from a tree but from tall grasses that were harvested yearly) into the bottoms of ships to ensure having it to weave baskets.

Barrows said that England did not want willow basketry taken over by the colonists and for that reason did not want them to take willow cuttings.

Although Native Americans were adept in basket weaving, their techniques were seldom adopted by early settlers, whose condescending attitude was that "natives" had nothing to teach them.

Time shows that Native Americans were ingenious in the materials and styles of baskets. Examples of their work varies greatly from region to region with the Southeast patterns being distinctly different from those from the Northeast. Barks, also made interesting materials for basketry.

More open to learning from Native Americans were the Shakers, a religious sect, who became masters of basketry. They duplicated many of the Native American techniques such as the spoke formation and double bottoms.

Shaker baskets were made almost exclusively of ash. Some were made with poplar. Shaker baskets were made and formed over a mold to create sturdy baskets used for many different purposes.

Although Barrows enjoys making baskets, she said that she would not have made a good Shaker craftsperson. "Whatever they were good at doing, they were assigned to do all day every day," Barrows said. Shaker baskets required very hard labor.

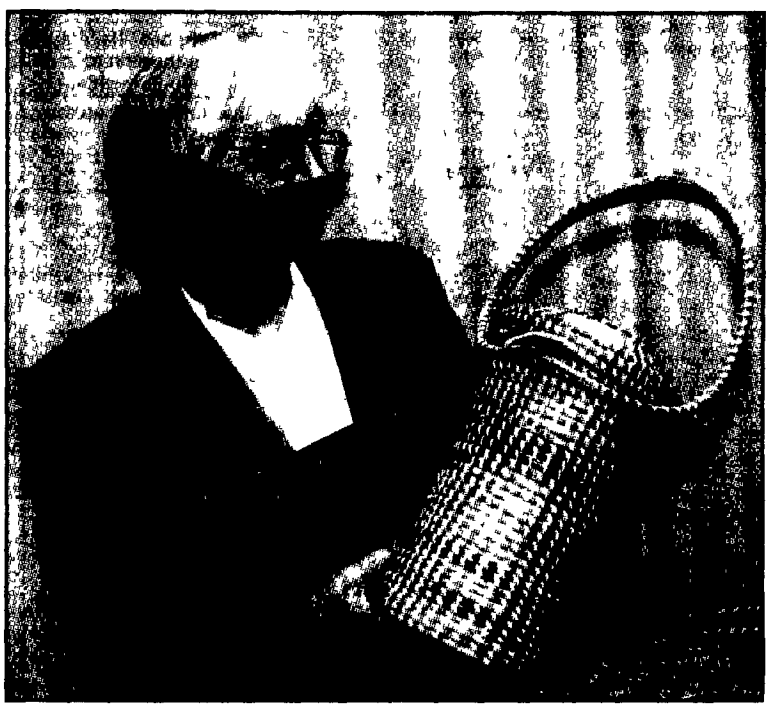
Nantucket baskets are also highly collectible. In 1850-1880 when Philipinos lived in Nantucket, many worked on lightships for whaling trade and were at sea for 6-8 months at a time. During their spare time, they used leftover wood, weaving in scrimshaw designs and pieces of real ivory, which resulted in decorative baskets.

These were made for family and friends, not as a production items. Tremendous work is involved and requires a long process of carving handles. Barrows said that Nantucket purses originated in the 1940s.

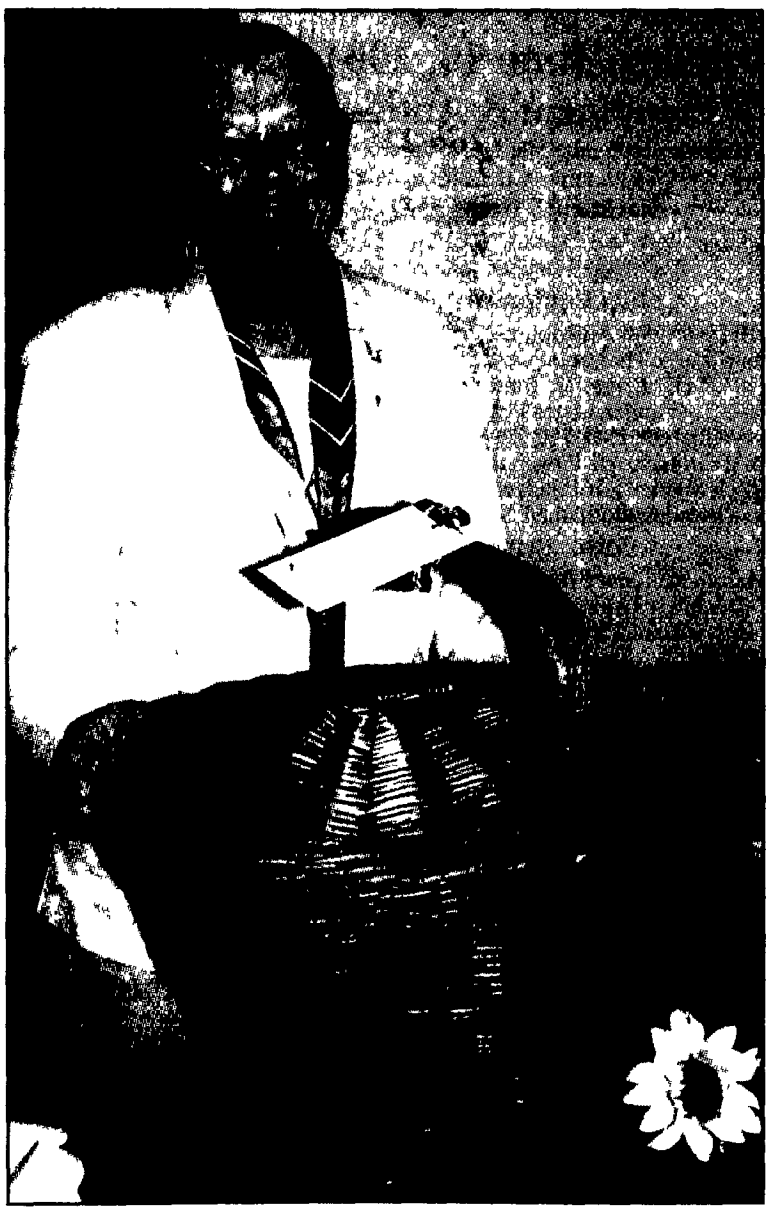
"For many baskets, more time is required to gather materials than the actual weaving," Barrow said.

Those made by Pennsylvania Germans were completely different than those made by other na-

(Turn to Page B24)



Tina Barrows said African-Americans used coastal seagrasses to weave this basket to hold knitting needles.



Betty Leidel shows off a basket that was passed down from her grandmother who died in 1948. Leidel was one of several participants who displayed baskets with a history at the Berks County Extension workshop.

The audience at the Berks County Extension Spring Awareness Day had the opportunity to examine a collection of baskets from around the world.

"Feel and smell the basket," Steward Mayes said of trying to determine the age of baskets. Nails can also be an identifying mark when trying to determine the age of baskets. This display by William Turner Associates from Monkton, Md. appeared at the York Antiques Show.

tionalities. Pennsylvania Germans most often used quill rye for indoor baskets and oak for strong market baskets and outdoor usage.

Rye was another popular material used by Pennsylvania Germans. Being frugal, the early settlers raised rye from which they were able to derive bread flour, animal feed, and baskets from the leftover rye straw.

African Americans also left an imprint on basket making. Quill work woven into the baskets evolved from the Gullahs who came from Africa in the 1600s and settled off the coast of South Carolina to work in rice plantations. Winnowing baskets in large sizes to separate the chaff from the rice straw.

It is only in recent years that baskets have been made and used primarily for decorative purposes. Many of these are also highly collectible. But the rare finds of the past are often cherished heirlooms that will continue to reveal the history of basketry.

Even in third world countries exacting techniques are not seen as much as before. Fine details take so much time, and are not economically feastible. In addition there is the inability to obtain some materials. Because of a boom in building on coastal region, grasses are more difficult to find.

Like most antiques, the older the basket and better the quality the more demand and the higher the value.

"My advice to collectors is to buy the best value you can find, but make sure that it is a basket you like so that you enjoy it," Barrows said.

Barrows is in demand as an instructor and workshop leader at colleges, museums, and guilds. Those interested in attending one of her classes or workshops, may contact her at (215) 795-2182.

How Desks Added Beauty To Function

Next time you see someone punching away at an ugly lap top computer, remember portable writing desks were once things of beauty. As lap top desks in the 19th century were treated as items of importance, decorated with brass, silver, tortoise shell and ivory.

Perhaps today's industrial designers will take a hint and add some decorative touches?

Lap tops belong to the decades when letter writing and penmanship were practiced almost as an art form. The lap top opened to the writing flap that was padded with velvet, felt or leather. There were compartments either on the top or beneath each part of the flap to store stationery and correspondence. Those designed for ladies were elegantly appointed while a simple wood lap top was used by men for both business travel and office. At auction, depending on the quality of decorative elements that can sell between $150 to $500.

The first desks made in ancient Egypt and China weren't desks as we know them, but writing boxes; small chests with sloping lids. Not only writing materials, but objects of value were kept inside. An ancient version of the lap top.

By the Middle ages, desks used in monasteries were mounted on stands and hinged so that the inner side formed a writing surface when opened. The slant front and fall front desks of today had their beginnings here.

With the growth of the upper and middle class in the later Gothic period, various types of furniture were needed. The desk box with incised decorations and native woods came into use. This form lasted into the 18th century.

The first important change in the appearance of the desk occurred in the late 17th century when the writing box was placed on top of a set of drawers. The desk became an important piece of furniture by the 18th century in England, America, and Europe. The result was the secretary bookcase. It was (and is) a tall structure, often with elaborate carving. In America, these desks made a patriotic statement with their carved eagle finials and patriotic motif inlays. Today, desks made during the American 18th century Federal period are considered masterpieces of architectural composition. Pieces that can be attributed to specific makers can sell in the high thousands. By the Empire period (1820-30), the slant front was out of fashion, replaced by the straight fall front desk.

Among the most elaborate examples of this period were the Biedermeier secretaries, made in Germany. They had several tall pediments, and sometimes as many as three architectural facades.

Small, "ladies" desks were made about 1680, first in England. The fashion of letter-writing and memoirs during the reign of Louis XV put desks in every room in France and Europe. These were small, table-style with enclosed top sections that closed with doors, lids, and tambours.

The table desk developed from the writing table. It had banks of drawers not only below, but above. The kneehole desk also became popular at this time.

One of the most unusual and decorative variations on the desk was made in Spain, beginning in the 16th century. The "Varguenо," in desk form rested on a cupboard style base, or on a trestle stand. The exterior was gilded or polychromed in bright colors. It had a fall front and contained numerous compartments and drawers of various sizes.

Clues: Victorian lap top desks in plain woods can be had in shops for $100. Less at estate and garage sales. Reproductions of other old styles are still being made. The Varguenо is made in the old way, making it hard to tell old from new. French and English "antiques" should be examined for old construction and tool marks. Don't be afraid to open drawers and "sniff." New wood smell new.

OWNER

Auctioneer's Notes: This is an outstanding collection! There are many, many low production tractors and Jim's restored tractors are immaculate, many of them shown at several of the Two Cylinder Club Expos around the country. If you like John Deere tractors, don't miss this auction! We look forward to seeing you there! Remember, your attendance is always appreciated at an Aumann Auction

RIDGE FIRE COMPANY, ALONG RT. 23, BETWEEN PHOENIXVILLE, PA & RT. 100

In the Blue Room - Selling the Estate of Edward P. Haines. A lifetime of railroad information, history & travel accumulated by a very sophisticated observer of the 20th Century American RR tapestry. Selling first his collection of HO equipment, then moving into the considerable ephemera.

In the Pavilion - Selling for the Estate of Dr. Rorke. We will sell a highly-disorganized 5-ton load of various & sundry trains and train "stuff". There will be no catalog for this auction: therefore, no absentee bidding! Most of it will not be the best, by any means. However, it will include all ages & gauges of trains. N Scale to LGB, Marx, Lionel & Flyer, books, magazines, kits, toys and railroadiana. Plus at least 50 pieces new HO & "O" scale brass locos, cars and trolleys. Just to make sure you come!

A idea of which would be Overland brass "O" scale PRR centipede, PRR RF-16 A&B, Erie motor car, B&O, 2-10-2, Baldwin AS-16, Rdg. T-1, USRA 2-8-2, Precision B&O 4-6-2, Sunset PRR 2-10-0 long & short versions. GEM 0-4-0 and 0-6-0 camelbacks.

In HO - B&O 4-6-2, CNJ 4-8-0 camelback, B&O 2-6-6-4 and 2-8-8-0, PRR 4-6-2 K-4, PRR 4-8-2, B&O 2-8-8-4, PRR B-6, B&O 2-8-2 mike, Rdg. 2-8-0 camel, PRR 4-6-4-4 Duplex, NYC 4-8-2, DL&W 4-8-4 Q-4 and many others.

K-Line, Prewar & Post War Lionel, New AHM O Gage track sets, "O" scale cars & kits, plus older, used & abused HO & "O" scale locos for repair or completion. Parts and rolling stock for salvage, 219 crane. Structure kits. Kalamazoo and LGB "G" gauge equipment. Couple tons magazines. Weaver Ultra Line freights, OB. Boxes of low end HO locos to repair. LGB 2018D. Track, AF "S" 290 loco w/freights, Tyco & Athearn, AHM pass. cars, Atlas & AHM "O" scale - new! Walthers circus kits, 4 others, Rivarossi "O" scale. Lionel HO GS-4, LGB boxed set, 1930's RR "pulp" magazines. "N" scale equipment. Bachmann N&W Class J Loco. Pride Lines "City of Portland". New in the box Atlas freights. New train miniatures, Ltd. Some really nice out-of-the-box HO brass. Electronics wire, power sources, controls, etc.

A 10% Buyer's Premium Will Be Applied.

Farmers, Horse Owners Should Watch For West Nile

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The West Nile virus has not been found in Ohio, and farmers and other horse owners can help keep it that way, said Bill Saville, an Ohio State University Extension veterinarian in veterinary preventive medicine.

The best way farmers and horse owners, particularly in northeast Ohio, can help prevent the disease's movement is by taking steps to control mosquito populations, Saville said.

The West Nile virus is spread by mosquitoes and can infect many species of mammals and birds, but people, horses, crows and blue jays are particularly susceptible. The Northern House Mosquito is the disease's principal transmitter. Mosquitoes typically get the virus by feeding on infected birds. They then spread it to humans, horses, and other animals through biting.

In 2000, infected mosquitoes were found in Erie County, which borders northeast Ohio.

The most serious result of infection can be fatal encephalitis inflammation of the brain in humans and horses, as well as death in certain domestic and wild birds, particularly crows and blue jays, Saville said.

People in Ohio's Lake Erie counties should watch for dead crows, blue jays, and other birds — a sign of possible West Nile infection, Saville said. Suspicious birds should be reported to local health departments if they have been dead less than two days.

Saville, the director of Ohio State University's Applied Field Epidemiology Program, has been observing the progress of the West Nile virus since its discovery in the U.S. in 1999. The West Nile virus had never previously occurred in the U.S.

In 1999, 62 human cases of West Nile encephalitis, including seven deaths, occurred in the New York City area. In 2000, there were 21 human cases of the disease, resulting in two deaths. West Nile encephalitis is fatal in 3 percent to 15 percent of human cases, with elderly the most at risk. Most human infections are mild and symptoms include fever, headache, and body aches, often along with skin rash and swollen lymph glands.

There were 25 cases of the disease in U.S. horses in 1999 and 60 cases in 2000. About 40 percent of the horse cases were fatal, Saville said.

Clinical signs of encephalitis in horses include loss of appetite and depression, plus any combination of fever, weakness or paralysis of the hind limbs, impaired vision, incoordination, head pressing, aimless wandering, convulsions, inability to swallow, circling, hyperexcitability, or coma.

"Horse owners should call a veterinarian immediately if neurological signs appear. Historically, symptoms of the disease begin to appear in horses in early to mid August," Saville said.

Veterinarians are encouraged to get whole blood and serum samples from horses showing signs of encephalitis and send them to the Ohio Department of Agriculture Animal Disease Diagnostic Laboratory. Horses demonstrating rapidly progressive neurological signs that are euthanized or die should also be sent to the ODA/ADDL for a complete necropsy and diagnostic workup. There is no evidence that infected horses can spread the disease to other horses, birds or people, he said.

"Horses with clinical signs of encephalitis may have another form of equine encephalitis, not West Nile encephalitis. Only laboratory tests can confirm the diagnosis of West Nile encephalitis," Saville said.

"Horses vaccinated against Eastern, Western and Venezuelan equine encephalitis are not protected against West Nile virus."

In fall 2000, a West Nile Virus Workgroup was created in Ohio to protect people and domestic animals from West Nile and similar diseases. The workgroup includes Ohio State University and other government agencies, local partners and colleagues.

There are various ways mosquitoes can breed on farms. Larvae can develop in watering troughs, small ponds, irrigation ditches, manure lagoons, ruts where farm equipment frequently travels and other areas with standing water. Even hoof prints can accumulate water and provide a breeding habitat, Saville said.

Here are some suggestions from the West Nile Workgroup that farmers, horse owners and others can do to control mosquito populations:

- Improve drainage in irrigated areas.
- Fill in ruts from farm equipment tires with stones.
- Thoroughly clean watering troughs regularly.
- Remove or frequently empty any containers that accumulate water, including discarded tires, tin cans, plastic containers and ceramic pots. Don't use whole tires to weigh down silage pit coverings.
- To control mosquito reproduction in animal waste lagoons, eliminate weedy growth along lagoon shorelines, mow bank vegetation frequently, clear floating debris from the lagoon surface regularly, and use appropriate insecticides when necessary. Nitrogen values for lagoon water of greater than 4.2 pounds per 1,000 gallons kills early stage mosquito larvae.
- Drill holes in the bottom of recycling containers left outdoors.
- Containers with drainage holes in the sides collect enough water for mosquitoes to breed.
- Clean clogged roof gutters every year, particularly if leaves from surrounding trees tend to plug up the drains.
- Turn over plastic wading pools when not in use.
- Turn over wheelbarrows and do not allow water to stagnate in birdbaths.
- Clean and chlorinate swimming pools when not in use. A swimming pool left untended by a family on vacation for a month can produce enough mosquitoes to impact a neighborhood. Mosquitoes may even breed in water that collects on pool covers.
- Use landscaping to eliminate standing water that collects on the ground. Mosquitoes may breed in any puddle that lasts more than four days.
- Aerate small ponds and stock them with fish.

Here are some things the West Nile Workgroup suggests to prevent mosquitoes from affecting horses:

- House horses indoors during peak periods of mosquito activity — dusk and dawn.
- Avoid turning on lights inside the stable during the evening and overnight. Mosquitoes are attracted to lights.
- Place incandescent bulbs around the perimeter of the stable to attract mosquitoes away from the horses. Black lights do not attract mosquitoes well.
- Remove all birds, including chickens, in or close to the stable.

Topical preparations containing mosquito repellents are available for horses. Read and follow instructions on product labels for proper use.

Fogging of stable premises with a pesticide can be done in the evening to reduce mosquitoes. Read directions carefully before using.

The risk of West Nile infection ends when mosquito activity ceases, typically in the fall after several days with freezing temperatures, Saville said.

For more information about West Nile encephalitis and horses, contact Saville at (614) 292-8553 or saville.4@osu.edu. Local health departments and offices of Ohio State University Extension have a series of nine fact sheets created by the West Nile Virus Workgroup.

Information about the virus can also be found on the Internet at http://prevmed.vet.ohio-state.edu/extension/WNVODH.html or http://www.odh.state.oh.us/ODHPrograms/ZOODIS/ZooMain1.htm.

Promotion For New Burger Sparks Excitement For Veal

DENVER, Colo. — Veal is now on the menus of more casual/theme restaurants, thanks to veal producer checkoff dollars and the joint veal committee of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA)/Cattlemen's Beef Board (CBB).

For instance, a checkoff-funded promotion with a leading casual/theme restaurant is sparking new excitement about menu possibilities for veal.

The chef for Champps Americana, with almost 40-company-owned and franchised units in the U.S., created a new veal burger with veal bacon as a special item — and it became so successful that the chain put the item on its permanent menu.

Champps's Executive Chef Andre Halston created the veal burger with ground veal, crumbled veal bacon and sour cream-and-onion potato chips, and after nine months it became the chain's best selling burger item. It became part of the restaurant's permanent menu on April 23, 2001.

To give the burger additional visibility, the joint veal committee of NCBA/CBB and state beef councils will be providing promotional assistance to the restaurant, and will be running promotions to help further increase sales of the veal burgers.

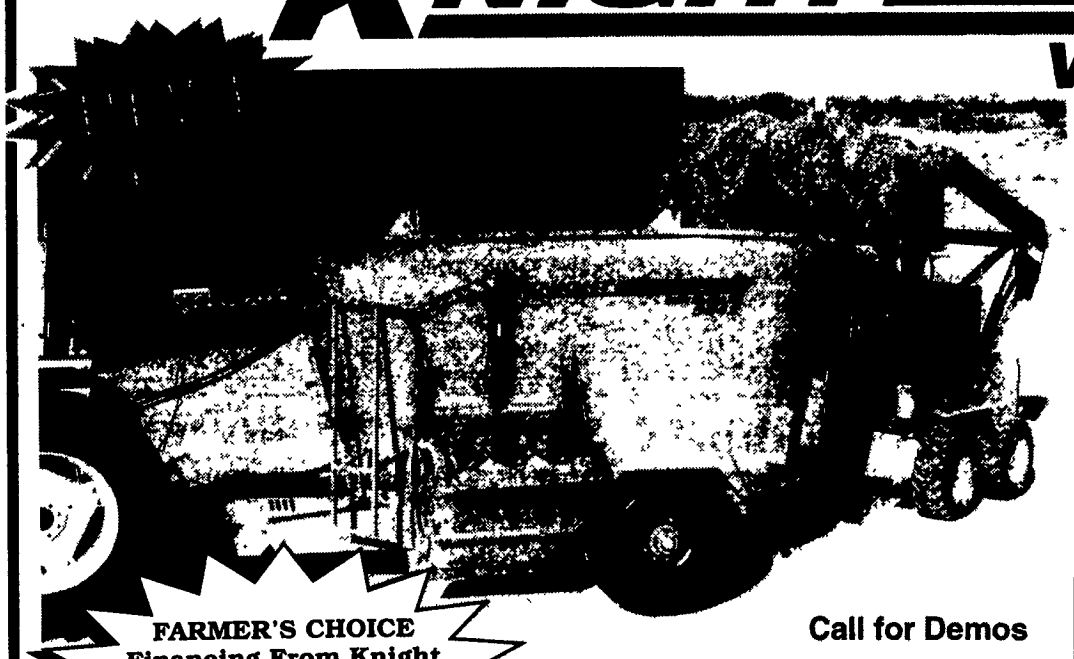
KNIGHT



Verti-Maxx™ Mixers
Introducing Models 5042 and 5060
420 and 600 cubic feet

The new Knight Verti-Maxx is the most innovative vertical mixer ever built. Its exclusive design features a simpler drive system, a lower loading height, and delivers a more consistent, thorough mix with faster processing time, all at a competitive price. The Verti-Maxx twin augers and bull gear drive provide the best performance, dependability and value in the industry, day in and day out. Check out these features and benefits:

- The Verti-Maxx vertical mixer mixes the widest variety of feedstuffs, including large round bales, large square bales, and baleage.
- Twin augers provide faster material movement and a thorough mixing action.
- Twin auger design also provides a lower loading height for easier loading.

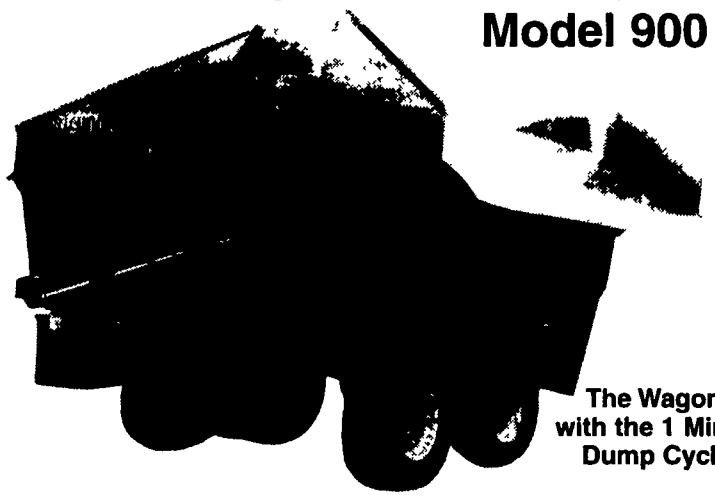
A work horse...with a gentle touch

RICHARDTON
Multi-Purpose Dump Wagon
Model 900



The Wagons with the 1 Minute Dump Cycle!

Designed to gently handle tomatoes, carrots, onions, grapes, and all fruits and vegetables.

Here's real versatility Adjust the Richardton Row Crop 900 Dump Wagon tread width from 64" anywhere up to 87" to fit various row crop widths Adjust hitch height and length to fit your needs

Easily convert the wagon to left or right hand dumping Roll smoothly over the ditches and deadfurrows with oscillating walking tandem running gear

The 900 wagon loads low to reduce crop damage, but can fill haul trucks at any height from 7'1" up to 10'7" A 36" wide lip with an 8" rubber apron gently guides all fruits and vegetables to the truck box center with minimum drop distance

Put 18,000 lbs of fresh crop in a haul truck in one minute or less and get back to harvesting Rugged design takes only minimum servicing and it's backed up by an outstanding warranty That's versatility that's the Richardton advantage!

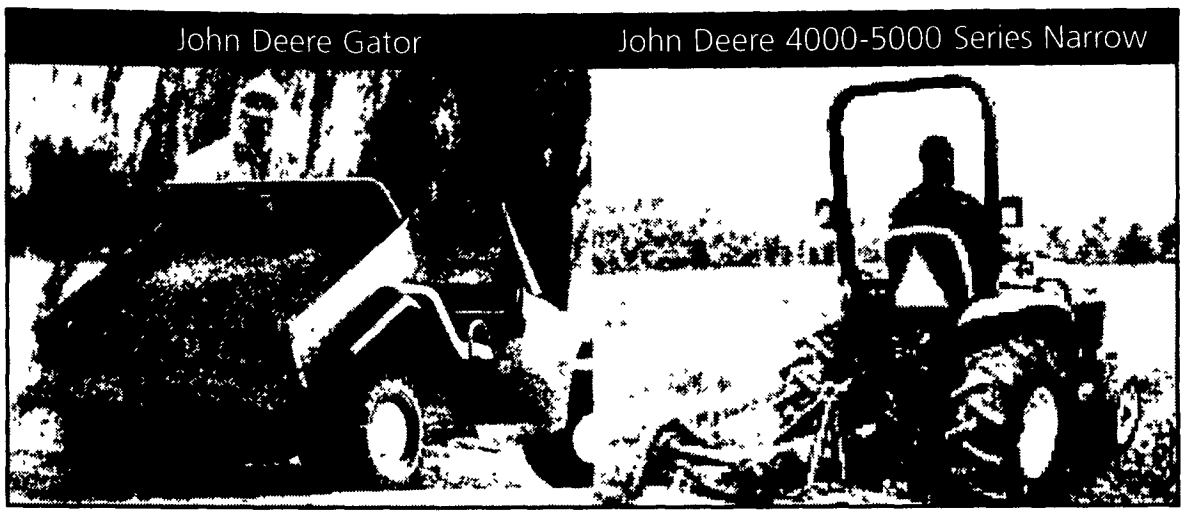
TOOLS OF THE TRADE!



Low Pressure, high floatation tires add to low ground pressure and width less than 60 inches, help gator utility vehicles travel narrow paths.

Starting at $124 month

Got narrow rows? Try the new 20hp 4100 Narrow Tractor. It's only 26 inches wide.

Starting at $175 month

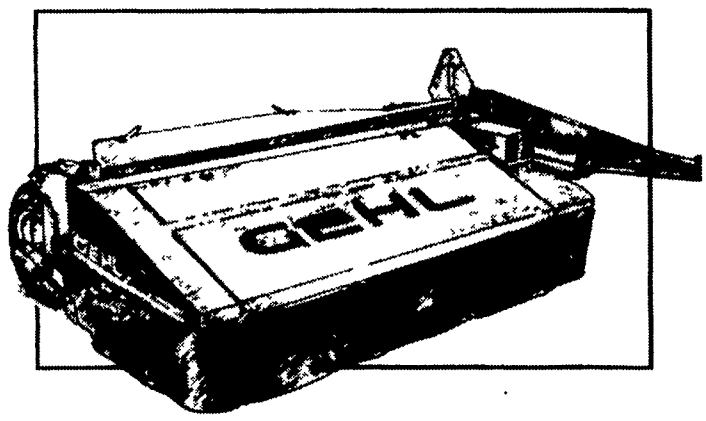
GEHL

YOUR LIVESTOCK IMPLEMENT LINE Since 1859

2345/2365 DISC CONDITIONERS



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy, the DC2345 has 7 discs and a 9'2" cutting width; the DC2365 has 8 discs and a 10'3" cutting width. A Gehl disc mower conditioner delivers exceptional cutting and conditioning, even in your most difficult crops and conditions.

- Designed with the operator in mind
- Easy access all around
- An equal angle PTO
- Three-point flotation support

PROVEN PERFORMER

Scavenger® Spreader

Gehl's Scavenger® Spreader delivers the performance you need year after year, with increased durability and outstanding application control. All thanks to the following features.

- Heavy-duty round core auger with segmented paddles to blend manure. Powered both up and down to ram through heavy loads and break up bridging.
- Special "V" tank design to handle solid, heavy bedded, semi-solid, self-leveling and liquid manure.
- Adjustable auger and expeller speeds spread more types of manure.
- Variflow™ discharge featuring square-tooth expeller paddles for smooth, even spreading at the rate you choose.
- Improved drive system with heavier final drive chains and enhanced idler system.

BE Power Train
Clutch and Gear Reduction
Model F

Features

- New style clutch Fewer moving parts than ever before Parts hardened & finish ground No linkage to wear out
- Bolts directly onto most 8-22 hp engines Can be used on engines up to 30 Hp
- 5 8-1 ratio for PT.O hookups, engine RPMs 3130, and 540 at PTO
- Run live hydraulic with belt
- No need to cut off crankshaft, just bolt it on

Take a closer look. Designed for the farmer and/or whoever needs a clutch and gear reduction for P.T.O. and other drives. This BE Clutch and Reduction can easily be mounted directly on engines such as Honda, Kawasaki, Robin w/special pilot dia., Briggs-Vanguard and others. Some engines with larger pilot diameters need an adaptor (we make them), such as Kohler, Onan, small diesels and others.

NEW! Vermeer 554XL Baler:

Cut-Out Clutch Protection
No more burnt or hot discs to wrestle with. Great protection . for those times when your baler's pulling harder on the outside rows, the tractor's overpowered, or you accidently overfill when trying to bale that last strip of hay.

Here's why:

- 5-bar pickup handles bigger windrows, faster speeds.
- Simple, horizontal bale-starting system is designed for fast starts
- Bottom drum design lets you pull in hay faster; often allowing you to drive a full gear faster.
- Best HaySaver Wheels in the field.
- Up to 1200 lbs. in a single 65" dia. x 48" wide package; 2000 lb. capacity with silage baler option.
- Silage option lets you bale wet or dry without changing a thing.
- Makes bales 17% larger* than a standard 5' dia. x 4' wide baler at virtually the same price! ****

 determined by comparing volume measurement of a standard 60" dia. x 48" wide bale versus a 65" dia. x 48" wide Vermeer bale*
 Price comparison is based on published list prices (Y2000) between Vermeer 554XL Series Baler and other 5 x 4 competitive round baler models*

Bales wet or dry

For making 4-ft.-by-5-ft. hay, straw, or silage bales, there's nothing better than the New Holland Model 648 Silage Special. This Roll-Belt™ round baler has everything you need to bale crops your way:

- Bale-Slice™ option (on Fastnet™ models) cuts crop as the bale is formed, making it more dense and easier to feed or grind
- Wide, floating pickup swallows large windrows
- Endless belts – covered by three-year Bonded Protection – provide added durability in tough crops

Permit®
HERBICIDE
For Broadleaf Weed and Yellow Nutsedge Control in Corn and Sorghum

Northeast Technical Recommendations

Permit® is tough on broadleaf weeds but easy on corn!
- ⇒ provides the widest window of application available
- ⇒ no hybrid restrictions
- ⇒ no OP insecticide restrictions

Permit® won't carryover into next years crop!
- ⇒ Permit® provides 2-4 weeks residual control
- ⇒ Permit® is a second generation sulfonyl urea that degrades reliably in the environment regardless of soil pH.

Permit® provides the best Yellow Nutsedge control in the industry!

Use Recommendations

- always read and follow label recommendations
- always apply Permit® with 4 oz/A of either 2,4-D or Banvel for maximum effectiveness
- always apply Permit® with a high quality non-ionic surfactant

Everlast Roofing, Inc. — Metal Roofing & Siding

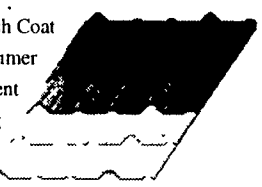
The Ultimate G-100 Process
"The Best"



1. Valspar 10S Finish Coat
2. Epoxy Primer
3. Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
4. G-100 Zinc Coating
5. Full Hard Steel (80,000 min yield)
6. Heat formed, less paint cracks
7.
Everlast II

NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

1 One of the best paints superior acid rain cracking resistance and color retention
2 Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
3 Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know you should reconsider
4 G 100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
5 Full Hard Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc
6 Heat formed Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
7 Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L F
8 Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53 37 Per Square $1 69 Per L F

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY
$46.74 PER SQUARE

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II

Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for for houses and barns.
DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED is proven best for animals.
STANDING SEAM
is ideal for houses.

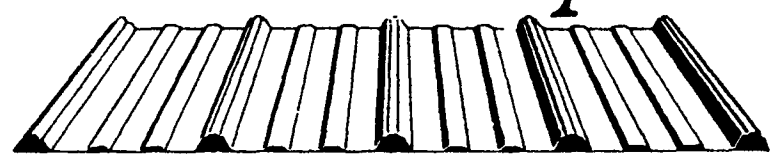
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain® roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?

Consider a Mueller pre-cooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

BEEF TIPS

Top Selling Simmental pair from Pennsylvania

The top selling Simmental cow/calf pair sold in the United States in 2000 was Pennsylvania bred. LLL Ms. Reba of Triple L Farms, New Oxford, PA. was purchased at the Virginia Beef Expo for $13,900 by Cedar Ridge Simmental of South Carolina. Reba is the mother of the famous AI stud service bull Black Shamrock E157. The national average for Simmental purebred cow/calf pairs in the 2000 was $2134. HOSTETTER GRAIN

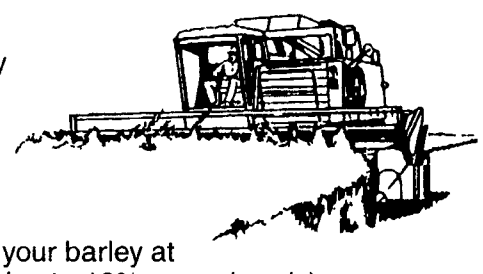
ROASTED BARLEY IS PROFITABLE
- Lower Feed Costs
- Excellent Palatability
- Better Digestability
- Removes Molds
- Maximize Your Own Grain



We can custom roast your barley at 20% moisture (approximate 10% green heads).
With our late spring and barley harvest, this process can provide a faster turn-around on double-crop acres.

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

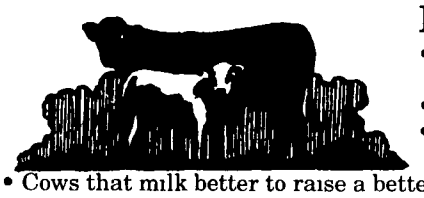
• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
• Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients



For Beef

- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -

OPTIONS IN FEEDING

Your Dairy Herd

Call us today for a feeding program built to fit your Dairy Herd and your Production Goals.

For maximum performance and income over feed cost, rations should be balanced to provide the optimum levels of degradable and undegradable protein, nonstructural and structural (fiber) carbohydrate as well as minerals and vitamins This allows for maximum utilization of the rumen microbes and total ration efficiency Because your needs may be different from your neighbor's, we adjust the following nutrients and ingredients to fit your needs and goals

- Amino Acids
- Protein
- By-Pass Protein
- Energy
- Fiber
- Calcium
- Phosphorus
- Salt
- Vitamins & Trace Minerals
- Organic Trace Minerals
- Multi-Protein Sources
